| Chicago Grain and Provisions. |
| Chicago March 27.—Weakness developed in the corn market dody largely as a result of sharp declines in the value of rye and barley and owing to reports of Argentine corn was being bought to come to this country. The close was heavy, % to 2 cents net lower, with May $1.48 to $1.48%; and July $1.27 to $1.37¼. Oats lost 1% to 2½ cents and provisions 7 to 15 cents. |
| Bearish sentiment which dominated the corn market during the last hour was in decided contrast with the fact that throughout the rest of the day prices, although nervous, had shown gains. The railles were ascribed to a renewal of confidence on the part of buils who had, been disturbed by estimates of a huge exportable surplus in Argentina and by 50c sig that prices for the March delivery hers had become artificial. Toward the evident that the market was overbought, and prices crumbled rapidly after rye and barley had suffered breaks varying from clarked curries both at United States guif ports as well as New York. |
