How to Plan, Locate Home Food Gardens

Lime Often Beneficial.

An application of about 10 ordinary 10-quart pailfuls of hydrated or air-slaked lime to a plot of ground 30 by 60 feet in size will generally prove beneficial. Lime has the effect of loosening and pulverizing any

Who Shall Deny Us the Right of Saying "Movie" If We Like

"Movie" as a term for the photoplay, has been branded taboo by scores of editors.

Priscilla Dean, the Universal star, wants to know why. And another star, Mary MacLaren, "The American Beauty of the Films," has undertaken to tell her why.

Here are the opinions of the two screen luminaries on the virtues and vices of the contrasting terms "movie" and cinema:

"MOVIE" By Priscilla Dean. Why, I want to know, should we of the motion picture craft abandon a typically American term for a foreign expression? Ever since its birth the photoplay has been popularly known as the "movie."

"CINEMA" By Mary MacLaren. The photoplay has gone beyond the days of its infancy. It is no longer an experiment or a cheap amusement. It has assumed the dignity of the stage and is building up an art that is independent of the legitimate dramatic craft.

At the moment the motion picture ceased being a manufacturing process and entered into its artistic phase, the word "cinema" should have been banned—and, indeed, did not the newspaper editors and photoplay experts of the country get together at the instance of the producers to ban the word "movie"? "Cinema" is thoroughly in accord with the advance of the photoplay and has become popular in consequence. The photoplay is not merely a series of pictures shown in quick succession upon the screen. It is a fine art, a high dramatic accomplishment and a vulgar term like "movie" is no more indicative of the craft than it would be indicative of the beauty of a portrait painting to call the process "coloring."

To the intelligent cinema spectator "movie" has no place in his vocabulary. I fall to see any reason for changing now.

Advo Coffee Famous Brew

'Tis Springtime; the appetite flags! The sassafras barks--the day drags--Sulphur and molasses mixing, Camomile and saffron fixing. While all these teas and steeps are fine And people yet remember wine, The finest drink in store for you is Advo Coffee--Famous Brew.

Call up your grocer right away; "Send Advo Coffee--no delay." Tell him your pep you must renew With Advo Coffee--FAMOUS BREW.

heavy clay soil, and of binding loose, sandy soils. Lime also corrects any sourness in the soil due to lack of drainage, but in a case of this kind proper drainage should be secured. Lime should always be applied to the surface, and in no case should it be put on the land at the same time as commercial fertilizer.

The proper method would be to spread the lime upon the land just after plowing and before harrowing; then apply the commercial fertilizer one week later. Under no circumstances should lime be mixed with commercial fertilizer or with manure, as it liberates the nitrogen from them.

Preparation Saves Work.

The work of cultivating the garden will be greatly reduced if special attention is given to the thorough preparation of the soil before any seeds are planted. In spading the land it should be turned over in small slices and thoroughly pulverized with the edge of the spade. No amount of raking of the surface will result in pulverizing the lower strata of soil unless this is done as it is turned over. In soils that are easy to handle, a 4-time spading fork is to be preferred to an ordinary spade, because it breaks up the soil and pulverizes it to better advantage.

ough preparation of the soil before any seeds are planted. In spading the land it should be turned over in small slices and thoroughly pulverized with the edge of the spade. No amount of raking of the surface will result in pulverizing the lower strata of soil unless this is done as it is turned over. In soils that are easy to handle, a 4-time spading fork is to be preferred to an ordinary spade, because it breaks up the soil and pulverizes it to better advantage.

The home gardeners of England take great pains in the preparation of their garden soils, even going to the extent of throwing the surface soil to one side and then spading manure into the subsoil to a depth of 14 to 15 inches. After the subsoil is so treated, the surface soil is replaced and great quantities of decayed manure mixed with it. This process is known as "trenching," and has the effect of carrying the crops through the drouth period in much better manner than where the soil is not broken so deeply.

Stuffed Dates Supreme.

Two pounds dates, one-third cup black walnuts, one-third cup pimento cheese, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Wash the dates in warm water, dry them. Cut a slit in the sides and carefully remove the stones. Fill the cavity with the cheese and chopped walnut paste, well blended with the salt. Firmly press the filled dates together and pack closely in a waxed paper-lined box.

Cream of Celery and Potato Soup.

To two cups of diced potato and the same amount of chopped celery add a tablespoonful of rice and cook all in salted water until the vegetables may be pressed through a sieve. Now add to the puree a pat of butter, a little white pepper and a taste of mace (if liked). Thicken white bubbling with a little cornstarch, rubbed into cold water. Lastly add three pints of hot new milk. Serve with crisp crackers.

Suggestions for a Box Social

To carry out the idea in the contents use the following menu: Salmon Eggs, Cheese Sandwiches, Sautéed Nuts, Pickles, Lemon Fruit Gelatine in Grape Fruit Cup, Yellow Frosted Surprise Cakes.

A Springtime Box.

No color is more suggestive of spring than yellow, so choose that for the color scheme. Cover the box smoothly with plain white paper. If one is artistic, paint a border of yellow tulips around the top of the box and the sides. If you cannot draw you can get an excellent effect as follows: Find a picture of a tulip and purchase some yellow paper. Using the picture as a pattern, cut out enough tulips to be pasted on as a border. Tie the box with golden cord or ribbon.
