'DRESS-UP' WEEK NOT CONFINED TO CLOTHES ALONE

Omaha Merchants Bending Every Effort to Make Event Gala Period of Shopping for Spring.

The promoters of "dress-up" week, which will be observed in Omaha next week, wish to stress the thought that the spirit of this nation-wide movement is not confined to wearing apparel. Buying a new hat, pair of shoes, suit, dress or other article of wear will be in line with the occasion. The Associated Retailers, however, wish to explain that dress-up week also includes dressing up the interior of homes.

During the period of the war many husbands and wives postponed the purchase of household furnishings which otherwise they would have obtained. Next week will be the particular time to make these deferred selections.

Wife, for instance, has gone without a buffet for several years because of the exigencies of war. She was glad to make the sacrifice. It will be the patriotic duty of her husband to buy her that buffet next week. Or it may be a set of new dining room chairs, or a piano for the daughter who will be graduated this spring.

An easy chair for the missus or a new rug for the parlor; or some dishes to take the place of those which have become passe, a new bedstead for the spare room, and so on, as the case may be.

Merchants are bending every effort to arrange their stocks and show windows so that prospective buyers may be interested. It will be a gala shopping week in the glad-some springtime, and it is believed that no home is so humble but that the occupants will be able to brighten their fireside, according to their ability.

The Omaha Athletic club will give a dress-up dinner on Monday night, from 6 to 8 o'clock, following which a dance will be held.

Paid $15 for Her Support.

Mary Fern Bendorf declares in a petition for divorce, filed yesterday in district court, that her husband Frank R. Bendorf, entered the army and later transferred to another regiment under the name of James Bradford, so that she was unable to get an allotment from his wages. They were married in Omaha in August, 1917, and she alleges he has contributed only $15 to her support in their whole married life. She says he earns $18 a week as stockman in a down town department store and that she has been compelled to work to support herself. She wants her maiden name, Reed, restored.

Boys, Who Appear at Central High in Old Clothes, Sent Home

When 50 boys pupils appeared at Central High school yesterday dressed like refugees just in from a long march, Principal J. C. Masters sent them all home with instructions to don attire which would be more in keeping with the dignity of Capitol Hill.

This is an annual stunt at Central High. The idea is to appear at school in old and grotesque clothes. When 50 celebrants of the occasion met at a rendezvous on the high school grounds in the morning, the other pupils, and even the teachers, were highly amused.

Some of the boys displayed ingenuity in their sartorial divertisement. Principal Masters admitted that the situation was provocative of cachinnations, but he did not believe that such demonstrations served the best interests of the school.

The boys were disappointed when Principal Masters sent them home, because most of them had worked hard to make themselves appear ludicrous and they wanted to amuse the other pupils and the teachers.

Old Man, Said to Be Sleepwalker, Found on Porch in Underwear

When police responded early yesterday to a burglar call sent in the central station by Mrs. Emma Nygaard, 2807 Burt street, they found Peter Nelson, 70 years old, clad only in his underwear shivering on the front porch. He said he was lost.

Nelson's sister, Mrs. John Gilquist, 3011 Webster street, thinks the aged man walked in his sleep.

Nelson was taken in charge by his sister after spending the night in the matron's department at the city jail. Mrs. Gilquist brought clothing for him.

Police said Nelson had narrowly escaped death when Mrs. Nygaard's son, awakened by his mother's cries, fired several shots from an upstairs window.

BUSINESS MEN TO CREATE FUND TO ADVERTISE LOAN

More Money Will Be Spent in Advertising V. Loan Than in Two Other Loans Combined.

The Omaha Victory Liberty loan committee is a great believer in advertising. It realizes that the glamor of war is over, and the people are not sufficiently acquainted with the necessity of oversubscribing the coming loan.

The committee has deliberately set out to mold public opinion through the printed page. Since the government will not pay for advertising space, a fund is being raised among the business men of Omaha to pay for the advertising.

The committee is not asking for any free space or reduced rates from Omaha newspapers. It realizes that advertising space is the stock in trade of the newspaper, and there is no more reason why a paper should give its space away for government activities any more than clothing manufacturers should be asked to donate the uniforms which the soldiers wear.

Committee of Experts.

The committee realizes that large space is necessary to impress the public. As a consequence more money will be spent in advertising the Fifth loan than was spent in the previous two loans combined.

The advertising is in charge of a committee of experts, who are donating their services. If this force were working under salary it would cost the Victory loan organization over $100 a day. The committee has been at work a month and will serve through to the end of the campaign. It will have given 10 weeks' time, or over $7,000 worth of service, before its work is completed.

The committee consists of Leo Boxell, Lloyd Mattson, J. J. Isaacson, E. T. Swobe, A. A. Hoopinger, Frank Buita, James Henderson, Sam Rees, H. M. Thomas, Earle Allen, Earl Bell, E. J. Berg, Frank Selby, J. D. Weaver and Arthur Thomas.

State Agent and 3 Others Violate Traffic Rules

Four persons were fined in police court this morning by Judge Fitzgerald for violation of the traffic ordinances.

Mrs. A. Feldman, 4815 Davenport street, paid $2.50 and costs for passing with her auto a street car at Twenty-ninth and Farnam streets; M. Forbes, 1722 North Twenty-fourth street, was fined $7.50 and costs for passing a car at Twenty-second and Leavenworth streets; J. A. Kavanaugh, a salesman for the Oldsmobile company, fined $2.50 for speeding, and P. C. Smith, a state liquor agent, paid $1 and costs for obstructing a fire plug.
