

HARTY IN PERSON TAKES CHARGE OF THE MERCY DRIVE

Archbishop Addresses Large Audience of Church Sodalities on Campaign for Mercy Working Girls' Home.

Archbishop J. J. Hart, who arrived home after an extended business trip in the east, the latter part of the week, immediately began active work to help the Sisters of Mercy in their campaign to raise funds to erect the new Mercy home for working girls.

He at once realized the urgent necessity for more active work on the part of all those who have the welfare of the city and working girls at heart and started to consolidate and direct their efforts.

Addresses Church Sodalities.

Saturday afternoon the Archbishop addressed a large gathering of members of the church sodalities of all parishes in Omaha at St. Berchmann's academy. Working committees were formed and captains elected for each; the plans of the canvass of the city were gone over, every one knowing just what was expected from them to do their part.

Many other societies and clubs are taking hold of the active work and appointing team workers with capable captains that promise a lively campaign. Several handsome silver loving cups will be offered as prizes for those teams leading in total subscriptions.

The Columbia club, which has been doing much good work for the soldiers "over here" and "over there," expect to have every member in the front line trenches as active workers for the big drive which begins April 7.

A big get-together meeting will be held Monday night by the Ancient Order of United Workmen at their temple on Twenty-fifth and M streets for the purpose of completing the organization of their campaign activities. About 300 are expected to be present.

Many letters from friends throughout the state have sent in contributions and pledges and have promised the Sisters of Mercy active support in their communities.

South Side JOHN SAFARIK DROPS SEVENTY FEET IN WELL

Youngster Pulled From Hole by Mother, Aided by Neighbors, Who Use Clothesline.

A 70-foot plunge down an old well failed to injure 6-year-old John Safarik, jr., 3904 Q street. Friday afternoon the boy, in company with his playmates, was running about in the vicinity of the well, near Thirty-ninth avenue and Q streets. Departing from his playmates, John ran to the well and climbed to the top of the platform covering it. The boards gave way and the child fell to the bottom.

The mother, attracted by the cries of the children, succeeded in bringing the uninjured, but badly scared child, to the top with the aid of the neighbors and an extra strong clothesline.

Meeting to Be Held to Get Ideas on Location of Park

City Commissioner Towl, L. M. Lord and W. E. Reed will address a meeting at the Social Settlement called to consider the location of the proposed South Side park. It is proposed that the park be located near Q street, between Twenty-eighth and Thirtieth streets.

The matter of the park has been discussed on many occasions and public sentiment seems to be in its favor. The location of the park has not been decided upon and the meeting has been called to give South Side residents an opportunity to express themselves on the subject. Members of the West Side boosters, the South Thirtieth Street Improvement club and the Gile's Improvement club are especially requested to be present.

Former Member of Bee Staff Dies in Cincinnati

John Becan Ryan, formerly a member of The Bee staff, died Thursday in Cincinnati, O., of heart disease. He was well known for a number of years in Omaha newspaper circles and by reason of his jovial disposition and clerical appearance was called "Father Ryan." He came to Omaha in 1890 and acted as correspondent of the New York Herald in the Wounded Knee Indian uprising.

He was born in Cincinnati and when he left Omaha he went back to that city, where he worked on the Cincinnati Enquirer. Ten years ago he suffered an accident to his back, which prevented his working steadily and five years ago he had a paralytic stroke. He continued doing newspaper work even after he was unable to be in it actively, and the Cincinnati papers bought his manuscripts at good prices.

Earl Eselin, son of George C. Eselin, 1816 Maple street, has returned home from overseas duty with the heavy artillery troops. Young Eselin spent eight months in France. He enlisted in the coast artillery last February and received his training on the Pacific coast. He went overseas two months later.

The transportation department of the army, which handles all subsistence for the American expeditionary forces, is in charge of Sgt. Maj. Richmond B. Wells, formerly an employe of a local creamery company. Many of the helmets taken from German soldiers are now being distributed throughout this country, pass through the transportation department in Washington. Sergeant Major Wells lived in Alexandria, Neb., before coming to Omaha.

On September 19, 1917, Earl G. Beach, assistant station agent for the Union Pacific at Fremont spent a farewell day with F. J. Roach, head of the War Service club of the Union Pacific, before going to Camp Funston. Today, a husky soldier, wearing wound and service chevrons stepped into Mr. Roach's office.

He was Sgt. Earl Beach, just returned from overseas. Mr. Roach was hardly able to identify Beach as a former pal. The sergeant was wounded in the battle of St. Mihiel less than two months after he arrived at Camp Funston. He was able to return to the trenches in August, 1918, 132 men out of his company were gassed, he said. Sergeant Beach will resume work with the Union Pacific railroad.

Capt. M. Wood, Tekamah, Neb., just returned from overseas, where he served with the British forces in Flanders, and later with the American army at Verdun, Chateau Thierry and the Argonne woods. He passed through Omaha enroute to Tekamah, where he will resume the practice of medicine.

Following an absence of 22 months, nine months of which was spent in the hospital at Camp Wadsworth, S. C., Sgt. George E. Eddy, son of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Eddy, 517 South Twenty-fifth avenue will arrive in Omaha Sunday.

Sergeant Eddy went south to Camp Cody with the Sixth Nebraska and later was transferred to Camp Wadsworth, where, last June, he suffered a fractured leg in an automobile accident. He was released from the hospital a short while ago and has been visiting in Fort Wayne, Ind., at the home of Major Rawles, the surgeon who attended him while in the hospital.
