He hopes to go to Nebraska before congress is called in extra session. Senator F. E. Warren and Mrs. Warren will go to White Sulphur Springs, Va., on Wednesday for two weeks' stay. Mrs. Warren has been ill with tonsillitis, and it is thought a change will prove of benefit to her. After their trip to White Sulphur Springs Senator and Mrs. Warren will go to Wyoming.

South Side SEVEN APPEAR IN SOUTH SIDE POLICE COURT

Epidemic of Fights and Brawls Keep Police Busy Sunday; One Man Gets Sixty Days.

An epidemic of street fights, brawls and cutting scrapes swept over the South Side Sunday. As a result seven persons were arrested and haled before Police Judge Foster Monday morning. Three of those involved were either fined or jailed. Two of the cases were postponed. The rest were dismissed.

J. E. Everett, Twenty-fifth and M streets, who attempted to reprove George Sturm by beating and cutting her, was given a 60-day jail sentence to be served in the county jail. Testimony showed that axes, knives, hammers, razors and flatirons played a prominent part in the fracas.

The woman also was given 30 days. The brother, who interfered in behalf of the Sturm woman, and was in consequence slashed by Everett, was discharged.

John Grosa, 4827 South Twenty-sixth street, was fined $10 and costs on a charge of disturbing the peace by fighting. Bill Borean, Twenty-fifth and N streets, the combining witness, failed to testify against Grosa.

The case of John Pearson and his wife, charged with drunkenness, was continued to Wednesday.

FLASHES from FILMLAND PHOTO-PLAY OFFERINGS FOR TODAY

ENID BENNETT who was born and lived most of her life in Australia before coming to America and entering motion picture work, has many admirers in both the Australian army and in American regiments. She has one of the largest collections from "No Man's Land" in this country, sent to her with appreciative letters concerning her screen work.

And Viola Dana's new car is upholstered in Pershing blue—you know, the same color as Hindenburg's state of mind.

Mme. Nazimova has had her hair cut short again for her new part in "The Red Lantern," a screen drama of the Orient which will be distributed by Metro.

J. Warren Kerrigan's newest photoplay will be "The End of the Game." Lois Wilson is his leading woman.

J. P. McGowan is a director of great resourcefulness. Marie Walcamp's new serial, "The Red Wolf," is filled with thrilling fights in which beer bottles and revolvers are often wielded. Bottles of resin were substituted for glass. What puzzled McGowan was the revolver angle. He wanted the heavens to really strike with their guns, but didn't want his hero actually killed. Then came the idea—a rubber revolver. Taking a Colt's for a model, McGowan made a mould into which he ran a melted rubber composition.

Jim Corbett is organizing a base ball team at Universal City, where he is taking the leading part in the serial, "The Midnight Man."

City Commissioners Still Having Trouble Over Dempsey's Place

The city commissioners are still having their troubles over a feature of the police department's new salary ordinance, which was recommended last week for passage in an amended form.

The council committee of the whole favored a feature which provided for an assistant of police instead of an inspector chief of police, the latter position now being held by Michael F. Dempsey.

Some of the city commissioners are uncertain whether the provision for an inspector without provision for an assistant chief, would mean the retirement of Mr. Dempsey. Commissioner Ringer stated that the proposed inspector of police would necessarily, under the new ordinance, have to be a man who is now serving as captain, and he declares that this feature has no connection whatever with the Dempsey matter. He also stated that he does not care to discuss the Dempsey matter further than to say that he has been placed on the payroll for April as assistant chief.

IMPROVEMENT OF MRS. LAND IS TALK OF NEIGHBORHOOD

Was So Nervous Telephone Had to Be Muffled—Tanlac Restores Her.

"Our whole neighborhood thinks my wife's recovery the most remarkable that was ever seen or heard of, and even I can hardly believe my eyes when I look and see what Tanlac has done for her," said A. G. Land, 707 5th Ave., Peoria, well and favorably known as a successful contracting carpenter.
"The breakdown in Mrs. Land's health occurred about seven years ago," he continued, "and while she had a lot of complications, her troubles mainly have been from her stomach, and with her nerves. After eating she suffered awfully with cramps and shortness of breath. Sometimes I have seen her have a smothering spell, and she would just beat the air with her hands trying to get her breath. She was nauseated a lot and sometimes there would be weeks on a stretch when she could not retain a morsel of solid food on her stomach. She had headaches that nearly drove her wild at times, and she never was free from a pain in her back that hurt her so much she could hardly dress herself, and often I would have to lace her shoes because she couldn't bear to stoop over. Her nerves were so upset that I have often seen her jump almost out of her chair when the paper boy would throw the paper on the porch, and I even had to muffle the telephone because the ringing of the bell startled her so. She got so weak and run down that she could hardly walk upstairs, and I moved her bed downstairs to save her the pain and trouble of climbing the steps. I did everything in the world that I could think of to help her—took her to the best specialists and bought a lot of medicine, but nothing gave her any relief.
"Then I heard about Tanlac and got a bottle for her and it certainly was glorious, the way that medicine began to help her from the first dose. She has a fine appetite now, and never complains of cramps, gas, or that smothering feeling, and she is also rid of that awful nausea. I am proud that her nerves are so calm and steady—well, my wife's nerves are now just as good as mine and she says she could sleep if a train of cars were to run by the house. The pain in her back has left her and she walks so well now that she doesn't mind climbing the stairs a bit. I am happy to say she is as well and strong now as she was the day we married."

Tanlac is sold in Omaha by all Sherman & McConnell Drug Company's stores, Harvard Pharmacy and West End Pharmacy. Also Forest and Meany Drug Company in South Omaha and the leading druggist in each city and town throughout the state of Nebraska.—Adv.

PHYSICALLY FIT AT ANY AGE

It isn't age, it's careless living that puts men "down and out." Keep your internal organs in good condition and you will always be physically fit. The kidneys are the most overworked organs in the human body. When they break down under the strain and the deadly uric acid accumulates and crystallizes look out! These sharp crystals tear and scratch delicate urinary channels causing circulating pain and set up irritations which may cause premature degeneration and often do turn into Bright's Disease.
One of the first warnings of sluggish kidney action is pain or stiffness in the small of the back, loss of appetite or rheumatism.
Do not wait until the danger is upon you. At the first indication of trouble for the cause at once. Get a trial of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Sulfur, imported direct from the factories in Holland. This will give immediate relief. If for any reason you should not, your money will be refunded. Get GOLD MEDAL Sulfur today. Write to G. C. Knoll, Sole Importer, 1000-10th St., Omaha, Neb.

AT THE THEATERS

"WOULD YOU ALL like to join in on that chorus? None has a better right; you paid to come in. Sing as long and as loud as you like, lift the roof off the blooming theater; it doesn't belong to me," were the words of Harry Lauder last night after he had sung a few verses of his new peace song about the war being over. The words aroused laughter because Harry Lauder spoke them, and he spoke them in his own heart-to-heart manner.

The famous Scotch entertainer appeared yesterday afternoon and evening in the Boyd theater and will appear twice today before proceeding on his way to Australia. His geniality scored just as strong as it did when he was here a year ago. He appeared a wee bit more buoyant last night, because a year ago he was still laboring under a weight of personal woe. His voice last night was more tuneful and his step was lighter, and it seemed that his versatility had grown.

His first song last night was "Back, Back to Where the Heather Grows," one of his new songs, which for tunelessness takes a place among his best numbers. Then he appeared in the garb of a sailor lad in "There Is Somebody Waiting For Me." Between the verses of the song he gives one of his inimitable bits of intimate conversation with the audience, telling how the sailor boys on his particular ship are very particular when they encounter the blandishments of the lassies in port. But when homeward-bound all they think of is that "There Is Somebody Waiting for Me, in an Old Cabin by the Sea."

In striking contrast in his next number, a character song of an old man whose age is given as 74, and who sings of "When I Was Twenty-One." It is a clever bit of character work.

And when Harry responds to an encore with "Wee Hoose Mang the Heather," without orchestral accompaniment, he lets out a few links of real heart singing. Before he begins to sing he gives some inside information about this particular wee hoose because there are two wee hoooses, one where his mother lives and another where Maggie abides. It is about the latter hoose that he sings. The audience can visualize the little chimney and the wee lassie as she greets her laddies coming down the lane.
Another encore and the orchestra strikes up "I Love a Lassie," and the audience applauds this old favorite. Then everybody begins to wish Harry would sing some more, but he begins to talk. A Lauder concert without a talk by Lauder would be like—well, why make comparisons?

A year ago he gave us a stirring war talk, one of the most stirring of those dark days. Now he urges us to be ready for the boys as they come home, to see that they are employed; and he pictured the possibilities of unemployment. He said bolshevism is Prussianism and urged us all to be real Americans. "I glory in the thought that I am a free man," he said. He made a plea for the use of the English language and declared that Germany is the place for the German language.
He gets a merriment out of his concluding appearance as auctioneer of his own photographs. His first photograph reached the $40 offer when George Brandeis and two companions in a box offered $100 each for autographic pictures. The money thus raised is for the Harry Lauder Fund for Maimed Soldiers. Mrs. Lauder stood at the theater door and received subscriptions to the fund as the audience passed out.
For the current week the show at the Orpheum takes rank as one of the liveliest of the vaudeville season. As the stellar attraction "The Only Girl" is featured. It is a musical farce, the book by Henry Blossom, and the music by Victor Herbert. Presented with a cast of 10 people, the comedy is done in three scenes. The vaudeville version is quite as effective as was the three-act production. A colored singing quartet, the Four Harmony Kings, gives one of the most popular acts of the bill. The comedy, "Who is She?" is effectively presented by Joseph E. Bernard and Nina Bristow. These are but a few of the offerings which score decided hits.
"Step Lively, Girls," with a host of pretty girls, and a number of startling scenic effects, will be the attraction at the Gayety all week. Arthur Pearson, the producer of this musical surprise party, has provided for his company everything that is essential for a high-class musical comedy. Herbert Stothart, the composer of a wealth of musical material, has written the music for this production, while Thomas J. Gray is responsible for the book. Rich McAllister and Harry T. Shannon are featured in the cast, which includes many other players of equal note. Ladies' matinee daily all week at 2:15.
"Sweethearts of Mine," the headline attraction at the Empress theater, is a musical comedietta from the pen of Will Hough, and is presented by Boyle Woolfolk company. Special scenery and a typical Woolfolk cast, headed by Jack Price Jones, assisted by Helaine Lynn, a pretty ingenue, and a company of six artists, present the act.
