

O weary hearts! O slumbering eyes!
O drooping souls, whose destinies,
Are fraught with fear and pain,
Ye shall be loved again—Longfellow.

WOMAN'S SECTION OF THE BEE

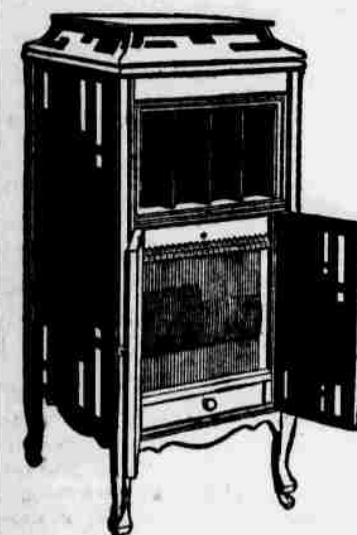

Though thy slumber may be deep,
Yet thy spirit shall not sleep;
There are shades that will not vanish,
There are thoughts thou canst not banish.—Byron.

Ideas for April Fool's Day

The keynote of entertaining on April Fool's day is the unexpected. The more you keep people guessing, the greater a success will your affair be. Of course the stunts carry out this plan. One particularly idiotic stunt, which is certain to enliven any group, is a fish talk. The whole company is gathered into a circle; then the hostess announces they are to make a very important contribution to the sum of human knowledge. Scientists have long wondered what and how a fish would talk if it could talk. It is up to the company to supply that knowledge. Thereupon each guest is given an opportunity to express himself as a fish.

After the guests have arrived, the hostess might pass a dish of good looking candies. She should do this with many smiles and hints of a stunt, which proceeding will naturally make the guests suspect the candy is a joke. The majority will probably refuse; and the joke is on them, for the candy should be the real article and no person allowed a second chance at it.

The refreshments should be disguised as far as possible. The table may be a caricature of a real table, for instance a table cloth and napkins of wrapping paper or cheese cloth. One extreme idea is to serve the courses backward if the party happens to be a dinner or a luncheon. That seems a bit hard on the guests unless they are youthful enough to enjoy anything. A good center piece for an April Fool's table is a fruit jar of vegetables. Rather good looking effects are possible with parsley and carrots.

The dishes can add a great deal to the unexpectedness of the refreshments. We do not realize what sticklers we are at form until we see everything reversed. Here are a few suggestions: Serve: Soup in teacups. Olives in a sugar bowl. Crackers in a vegetable dish. Meat on a cake plate. Vegetables in a glass berry bowl or poured from a pitcher into glasses. Gravy in a sauce dish. Bread in a salad bowl. Jelly on a meat platter. Pie or other desserts on dinner plates. Sugar in a gravy boat with a gravy ladle. Cream in a teapot. Water in after-dinner coffee cups. Teaspoons for soup and table-spoons for a beverage.

Camouflage in Food.
The usual April Fool's stunt is to have cotton batting, chocolates or doughnuts or even cotton layers in biscuit. A clever variation of that idea is to have a few imitation foods mixed in with legitimate foods. Then the person who gets a cotton doughnut wonders if there is something wrong with him, or if the rest of the company have lost their senses and are eating what never was intended for human consumption.

Some ways of disguising ordinary food are as follows:
Apricot and Rice Pudding.
Cook one cup rice in one quart boiling salted water for 15 or 20 minutes; drain, reserve the water in which the rice was cooked (it will make excellent starch for delicate waists or dresses). To the drained rice add two cups of the fruit which has been cooked and sweetened. Serve with a sauce made of apricot juice.

Heart Beats

By A. K.
Beautiful!
Glorious!
Idyllic!
Spring!
And we yawn
And smile and
Find ourselves consumed
With that lovely
Feeling of tolerance
For the whole world
And folks' weaknesses
And we breathe the
Fresh air and drink—
Drink, drink—
The sunshine
Sins lose their grossness
And become only
Half-sins.
But the Stress of Spring fever
Wilts waxy spines
Perpetual sighing
Will kill the trying
Spirit
And undermine the energy
We find ourselves
Wishing for a vacation
Wishing for money
Wishing for love
Wishing for leisure
Wishing for fishing tackle
And a broad rimmed hat
And the open road.
Wishing for bright new
Clothes as the old ones
Lose their style
Wishing for most anything
From gold or jewels
Rare
To an extra hour's sleep
In the morning.
And yet we know
That spring wishing
Is a dangerous
Treachorous
Tricky
Occupation for
Our wishbone
Will outgrow
Our backbone
If we don't watch out.

Thomas Wood Stevens to Tell Omahans How to Produce Pageants

Thomas Wood Stevens, head of the department of dramatic arts at Carnegie Institute of Technology, will lecture before the Fine Arts Society Friday at 4:30 in the ballroom of the Fontenelle.

Mr. Stevens has written and directed 18 plays and pageants in this country and in Europe. The largest and most impressive was the pageant of St. Louis, which the Omaha board of governors and directors of the Ak-Sar-Ben attended as special guests. There were 7,500 people in the cast and 100,000 in the audience.

"Joan of Arc" and "The Drawing of the Sword" are two pageants that, written since the war, have made Mr. Stevens known for patriotic dramatic work, both here and abroad. "Joan of Arc" was first produced in France on the steps of the temple of Domremy.

The twentieth century has shown a wonderful revival of the pageant in England," said Mrs. Myron Learned, "which began there in the 14th century. America has caught the fever in the last 15 or 20 years. Some day Omaha will surely have caught using all the local picturesque Indian stories, characters and legends.

Kansas City will have a pageant this summer which Mr. Stevens will direct.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Love Comes Unbidden and, "To Love or Not We Are No More Free Than the Ripple to Rise and Leave the Sea."

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

His Trouble.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I wish you would let me know how I can get a girl's father to let me come up to see them. I am 19 years old and have black hair, brown eyes and am five feet six inches tall and am pretty enough for any girl. If you can't answer this, then give me some girl's address so I can get acquainted. Hoping to hear from you in next week's paper.
WALTER.

What is the father's objection to you? If you are all right speak to the father—tell him that you enjoy his daughter's company and that you wish to call like a gentleman. No reasonable man will object unless he has some specific charge against you. You may be pretty enough for any girl, but have you any sense? Some fathers require this seemingly small asset before giving their consent.

Widower Wants Wife.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: As I read your advice to so many young women in The Bee, I am coming to you for advice, but for help. I am a widower, a farmer, 42 years old, and have four children. I want a housekeeper about my age. Now, Miss Fairfax, if you are not in this business, maybe you could at least help find a good woman that would be a good home. I have no objections to one or two children. I get a good, honest woman, I will guarantee her a good home and fair treatment. I am sure I can satisfy a good woman. My wife died six years ago and I feel as if I need another woman. Now, Miss Fairfax, I know that this isn't your line of work, but you want to help people. If you can help me in this line I will be thankful for it and will never forget you. Hoping you will put my letter in print in The Bee or hand it to some good old maid or some good widow.
S. K.

No, this isn't in my line, but I'll gladly "take the burden upon me." Vary in these burdens is the spice of life. Hope that some one will see this or else I'll have to begin the search for the old maid or widow.

She Wants But Little.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I know you will answer a few questions on a club lesson and help me out with it if you can answer crazy questions about the movie play-wrights and what-nots. Can you give me the biography of the following humorous poets: Bixby, Carolyn Wells, Paul Laurence, Dunbar and Guitermann, a writer in Life? I am wanting some quotations by them, a popular song by Dunbar and a poem by Guitermann. Anything you can give me in the "humorous poet line" will be gratefully accepted. Oh, yes, "how is my handwriting" would be a good one.

I have about made up my mind a poet has to die to become known.

Yes, I could give you the biographies of Bixby, Carolyn Wells, Dunbar, Guitermann, and even Leacock and Irvin Cobb, but don't you think you are asking quite a lot of one who has a few other duties to discharge during the day? Glad to know they are humorous. (?) I respectfully refer you to the library or to the encyclopedia or the "Books of Knowledge." There is a book entitled, "Ten Thousand Quotations," which might help you.

To Our Bachelor Farmer.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I, too, wonder whether a loveless marriage can bring real happiness. In the last eight years I have been in many homes. I find there is no love in the home there is very little else but friction. I have also seen where the little "god of love" reigns supreme, such is truly a wonderful home.

We can not truly say that we have lived until we learn to love with mind, heart and body, where these four are appreciated a home will be heaven indeed.

A few years ago I kept company with a wealthy doctor, a very good man, and about 20 years my senior. As the time drew near for the wedding I could not bear to think of becoming the mother of this man's children, because I did not love him. I do love children. The very thought that possibly sometime I might have a home and become a little mother has been a very refining influence in my life. No, I shall never marry for aught but love.

As I am a few years your junior, "Bachelor Farmer," I will continue to hope the love is waiting just around the corner.

Please let me hear from those who know, who speak with authority, because of experience.
"JAQUELINE."

The Wrong Idea.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a tall, good looking young man with blue eyes and light hair. I read your "Advice to Lovelorn" and enjoy it very much.

Now Miss Fairfax about two weeks ago a girl friend visited at my home. I have known her from childhood. We have always been good friends.

We went about together while she was here and thought a lot of her when taking her home. I asked if I may call again. She accepted my call. When I called again I learned from my sister that she was engaged. I did not call on her again.

Now Miss Fairfax, what is the right thing to do? I have a great deal of her to not tell me of her engagement? Hoping to see this in print. I remain anxious BLUE EYES.

Old and Young.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I suppose you are aware that the old as well as the young are interested in your page in The Bee. Well, I am not one of the lovelorn. I traveled that road 25 years ago when I was 15, and it may seem strange, but it is true that the boy I loved then as a sweetheart I love just as dearly today as a husband, so you see, Miss Fairfax, sometimes boys and girls know what true love is at 15, but it is not love I want to talk about now. I have plenty of love from my husband and children. Will you please tell me where I can get the electric needles? Can it be used with safety in removing moles? My little girl has two moles on her face. I would like to have them removed. Thanking you in advance.
M. E. A. F.

This is proof indeed that sometimes boys and girls at 15 do know true love. Electric needles are very satisfactory for moles according to the experience of many who have tried it. Any beauty parlor will give you information.

Young Philosopher.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a daily reader of your "Lovelorn column" and have often found some good advice in it. It happens that I am not in love. I am 17 and have had three proposals. Now, Miss Fairfax, my parents are of moderate means, and although they have both worked hard and are still working hard, they think I ought to marry some one that has a home, but I will not have very much to do. They think I should have taken one of those who have proposed to me. Now, these are quite a bit older than I am, and neither of them want a home, just board and no children. My greatest ambition in life is to become a loving wife and mother and the greatest desire is to have a home of my own. I am not looking for a husband who has all kinds of money and has not made it honestly. I do not care for stylish men, having five and six suits a season, wears silk shirts, etc., but some one who has a dirty face, hands and overalls. My ideal is a home-loving farmer like you think I will find one? I have spent vacations in many states and have not met my ideal yet, although I have met some very nice men. My parents think it is terrible I do not marry, but, Miss Fairfax, I cannot think of anything worse than going through life with some one you do not love, do you? After you are married once you're a long time married. Must close now, as I am afraid my letter will exceed over 200 words. Please do not print my name, but would be glad to hear from any lonely home-loving farmer.
LITTLE LIZA JANE.

You have philosophy beyond your 17 years, indeed. No, I can't think it would be pleasant to go through life with some one you did not love, but please don't make a dirty face one of the qualifications. It would grow tiresome. Lonely home-loving farmers, here is your chance.

Two Brown-Eyed Girls.—Perhaps some of you could suggest to this girl in a nice way that her use of profane language was very objectionable. Do so in a way that will not hurt her feelings and perhaps she will discontinue the practice.

An Unpainted Doll.—It is a matter of personal opinion whether a hospital or a library is of the most good. Your other subject is too vague, I cannot answer.

French Poodle.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Could you put me on track of some one who has thoroughbred white French poodles for sale? Thanking you in advance.
ELIZABETH IRENE.

No address given. Therefore I cannot help you.

Mary Ann.—We have no way of knowing whether the men in this company are white or colored.

Perplexed.—Of course it would be proper to cultivate a friendship if you wish to think that the woman you spoke of is willing. At least you could write her.

Girls of Every Race

Meet and Mingle at Honolulu Y. W.

Housing girl workers is a problem in Honolulu just as it is in New York, Chicago, Washington or any large city in the United States, according to Miss Gertrude Gogin, girls' work secretary of the national board of the Y. W. C. A., who has just returned from the Hawaiian islands.

"As a result the waiting list for the boarding home is a long one. The house accommodates 40 girls and it is always filled, mostly with American girls who go to the islands to accept commercial positions, though a few Hawaiian girls stay there, too. But the space is inadequate for the demand put upon it.

"The city association is just as crowded. Sitting in the lobby at any time of the day you can see girls of practically every country in the world passing through—Korean, Chinese, Japanese, Hindu, Filipino, Portuguese, French—many in practical costumes. There are typewriting classes in that Y. W. C. A. with not one English-speaking girl among the students; English classes with members from as many as 30 nationalities, mostly oriental.

"We also have a cottage at Waikiki, the well-known Hawaiian beach, where girls may go for weekends, for picnics and good times.

The problem of the islands is not a racial one, rather one of providing an all-around day's program for girls of all nationalities, who mingle together in business and at the cottages. At Waikiki there are tennis courts and a basket ball field, where I saw Korean girls playing basket ball, exercise which they had never before thought of indulging in.

"The Girl Reserves, a movement for teen age girls, has been started in the islands, and through it I hope that we can teach the younger girls how to play and how to work. Also, I hope that we can help to increase the percentage of native girls who finish high school."

Baked Apples Stuffed With Nuts.
Scrub six large apples. Take out cores with apple corer, and set apples right side up in a baking pan. Fill core holes with nut meats—any kind of nuts. Sprinkle one salt spoon of cinnamon on top of each hole. Pour one half cupful of water in the pan. Sprinkle three-quarters of cupful of sugar (brown sugar is better) over the tops. Bake 30 minutes. Serve hot with a spoonful of whip-cream on the top of each apple. These baked apples, which because of the nuts are more than usually nourishing are fine to serve with eggless bran muffins for luncheon or tea. A left-over apple can be wrapped in oiled paper and put in a school lunch.

Two sure-fire systems for getting rid of money are: (1) throw it down a sewer, and (2) get into a game of stud poker.

The Big System Back of the Little Telephone

How much would your telephone be worth to you without a big organization back of it?

Ordinarily, nothing is seen of the means we take to insure the public continuous telephone service.

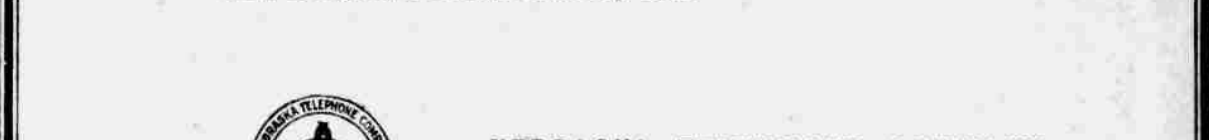

But when an emergency arises the "organization" which has been working silently behind the scenes is put into motion.

When some financial problem must be met, when sleet storms strike, when fires occur, when some catastrophe happens, or when a big piece of construction work has to be done, the organization of this company instantly begins to move.

When such events take place executives and other trained employees, who know from long experience that such things will come sooner or later, are at hand to arrange and direct.

Where the necessity arises, funds which have been slowly accumulating are available for immediate expenditure, material which has been gradually assembled is ready to prevent delay, and every facility, kept always in readiness, is directed to restore or expand telephone service as quickly as possible.

At such times the benefits derived from a big and well organized company are immediately felt.

NEBRASKA TELEPHONE COMPANY

For Colds, Catarrh or Influenza.

Do you feel weak and unequal to the work ahead of you? Do you still cough a little, or does your nose bother you? Are you pale? Is your blood thin and watery? Better put your body into shape. Build strong! Now's the time.

An old, reliable blood-maker and herbal tonic made from wild roots and barks, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This "nature remedy" comes in tablet or liquid form. It will build up your body, cure your cold, and protect you from disease germs which lurk everywhere. One of the active ingredients of this temperance alterative and tonic is wild cherry bark with stillingia, which is so good for the lungs and for coughs; also Oregon grape root, blood root, stone root, Queen's root—all skillfully combined in the Medical Discovery. These roots have a direct action on the stomach, improving digestion and assimilation. These herbal extracts in the "Discovery" aid in blood-making, and are best for scrofula. By improving the blood they aid in throwing off an attack of influenza and act as oil on machinery.

Catarrh should be treated, first as a blood disease, with this alternative; then, in addition, the nose should be washed daily with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy which can be had at drug stores.

Boulder, Colo.—"About seventeen years ago I was given up by home physicians. I was discouraged, but hearing of Dr. Pierce's wonderful Golden Medical Discovery thought that I would give it a trial. I coughed night and day, but after taking the third bottle of the 'Discovery' the cough began to cease and I lay down for the first night's sleep in six weeks. I then wrote to Dr. Pierce and took specially prepared medicines for about three months. I also kept taking the 'Golden Medical Discovery' during this time and continued for one year. I can safely recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to all."—Mrs. O. J. Adams.
