Oil Prospectors Buy Banner County Land, U. P. Learns

Advices to the Union Pacific state that Banner county, Neb., is entering upon the first stages of an oil boom. It is reported that a company, presumed to be an auxiliary of the Standard Oil company, has taken leases on some 5,000 acres of land lying midway between Kimball, Kimball county, and Harrisburg, Banner county, and is preparing to drill a number of wells.

It is said that oil prospectors have been overrunning Kimball, Banner and portions of Cheyenne county during the last two months and that following them, other men have been quietly taking leases giving them the right to drill for oil.

Contractors who are sinking one well north of Kimball are reported to have told farmers in the vicinity that they are going to drill 3,500 feet in their efforts to find oil.

Daniels can keep him a year more and he'll still have time to come in for his split of the world's series.

The Victory Liberty Loan

We Started a Job in April 1917
Now We Must Finish It.

A man said to us: "My Liberty Bonds are worth less than I paid and I'm afraid to invest any more money in Government securities."

We told him: "Have faith in your Government, brother! Bonds or Notes of the United States Government have never failed eventually to hold up, and in every case they have attained a premium."

The Victory Liberty Loan will be the last Liberty Loan.
Short Term Notes will be issued for this Loan instead of longer term Bonds

Omahan in Charge of Food Distribution in Hamburg

Charles T. Neal, Who Was Connected With Local U. S. Grain Corporation Office, to Regulate Wheat Supply In Largest Port on European Continent.

Charles T. Neal who came to Omaha in August, 1917, to take charge of wheat buying for the government and who was called to Europe in February to assist Herbert Hoover in distributing food in war-stricken countries, has been placed in charge of the Grain Corporation office in Hamburg, Germany. Associated Press news dispatches of Thursday bear testimony to the important work in Hamburg entrusted to the former Omaha man.

The red flag, which has been flying from the city hall since the revolution there last November, was hauled down as two American relief ships, loaded with precious cargoes of American meat to be distributed under Mr. Neal's guidance, sailed into port.

Mr. Neal is well-known to Omaha grainmen, having been in the grain business in Lincoln and Kansas City before he became "$1 a

SAYS DAYLIGHT PLAN DETRIMENT TO THE CHILDREN

Mothers of Lake School Pupils Say Youngsters Do Not Get Enough Sleep Under New System.

A vigorous protest against "daylight saving" is registered by mothers of children attending Lake school. They say their children do not get enough sleep under the present schedule.

Mrs. J. C. Dauble, 2008 Ohio street, took an informal survey of the opinion of mothers and teachers in the Lake school and declares them all to be opposed to daylight saving.

"Children cannot sleep while it is yet light and hence go to bed by sun time. They must get up by the new time in order to get to school," said Mrs. Dauble.

"A sufficient amount of sleep is highly important to children. I have four children, 11, 9, 7 and 5 years old and I have a hard time getting them to sleep while it is yet light. I think the regular schedule is the one to observe," she said.

If she can get enough persons interested, Mrs. Dauble intends to register her protest with officials who will take some action, she said.

"We would do anything during war-time but there is no reason for us to observe daylight saving now," she said.

Bungalow in Stucco and Shingles

This house was designed for Mr. Charles W. Martin in Minne-Lusa addition and has proven so popular that a number have been built close following these lines in order to satisfy the resulting demand.

The exterior appearance leads the visitor to expect a warm welcome. The expectation is fulfilled when one enters the living room from the vestibule and feels the inviting rays from the fireplace.

Hospitality is the keynote of this design. This effect is carried out by joining the large living room with its delightful built-in bookcases, to the cheerful dining room by means of the bookcase pedestal opening.

The guest in this house is sure to be pleased with the complete separation of the chambers from the kitchen and living portion of the bungalow. Spacious closets are a feature that will be appreciated by those who still have an extra suit or two.

For further information relative to the cost of the above bungalow, or the plans for a new home, write or call on the architect, Everett S. Dodds, 715 Brandeis Theater, Omaha, Neb.

DRESS-UP WEEK NOW RELIEVED BY CLEAN-UP WEEK

City Officials Co-Operate With Busy Omaha Housewives to Do General House and Yard Renovating.

Last week Omaha "dressed up." This week the order of business will be to clean up; to clean up yards, alleys, and upstairs and down in the homes where men abide.

Mayor Smith, Health Commissioner Manning and City Commissioner Butler of the department of street cleaning and maintenance, are co-operating in this annual clean-up.

The street department will send a battery of city trucks and wagons over the streets during the week, to collect all heaps of rubbish which will be placed by householders.

Work Free of Charge.

This work will be done by the city without charge to residents. City officials wish to impress householders with the statement that the trucks and wagons this year will not traverse the alleys, as was done in previous spring clean-up weeks. Everything must be placed along the curbing in the streets, and all sorts of rubbish will be collected, the only exception being ashes.

Citizens are urged to have the heaps of rubbish ready for the collectors, as the vehicles will go through the streets only once and according to the following schedule:

Monday—All territory south of F street inclusive.
Tuesday—North of F street to Center, inclusive.
Wednesday—North of Center street, inclusive, and from the river to Forty-eighth street.
Thursday—North of Cuming street to Ames avenue, inclusive, and from the river to Forty-eighth street.
Friday—West of Forty-eighth street, including Benson and Dundee.
Saturday—All territory north of Ames avenue.

Once Famous Jockey Bids Police Judge for Chance to Go in Jail

Though he had won races on the leading race tracks of the country and in his day was a favorite jockey with eastern and southern millionaires and followers of the turf tracks, John Fulton, nationally known in the sporting world as "Racehorse" Fulton, begged Police Judge Foster in police court this morning to be "allowed the privilege of being a trusty" at the city jail. His request was complied with.

Fulton was arrested on a charge of vagrancy. Old sportsmen who know "Racehorse" Fulton remember him as the winner of derbies on Long Island, Florida, Kentucky and Georgia tracks years ago.

Today, "Racehorse" Fulton shows age. His hair is gray and his old sportive instinct appears gone. He is "broke," and says his only employment now is to eat and sleep and think of the good old days of turfdom.

He has been in Omaha during the past year.

Let Friend Wear Ring Just for One Day; Now Sues Him to Get It Back

Irene says she let Grover take her ring to wear just for a day or two and declares he refused to return it. And so Irene has taken the case into court.

The suit of Irene Baker against Grover Smith was filed today in district court.

She states that she showed her diamond ring to her friend, Grover Smith, on March 23, and that Grover prevailed upon her to let him wear it for just a day or two.

Two weeks have elapsed since then and though she has asked him for the ring, repeatedly, she says he has failed to return it.

The ring, she says, is valued at $400, together with interest at 6 per cent since March 23.

Smith works for T. F. Stroud & Co., and Miss Baker is employed in a women's wear store.

Take Husky Indian Back to Winnemago Reservation

John Bigbear, Indian of the Winnemago reservation near Valentine, Neb., and graduate of Carlisle university, appeared in police court this morning to answer a charge of drunkenness. His immense stature and appearance of virility prompted the police judge to inquire: "How many policemen arrested you?" Department of justice officials took Chief Bigbear back to Valentine, no sentence being placed against him.

Automobile Big Factor in Whisky Case, Now in Court

The fate of a big touring car hangs in balance in a case now before Judge Woodruff in federal court.

Wesley Shach of Omaha in December, 1918, was arrested on the Winnemago Indian reservation with a quart of whisky in his possession. He stated that he had driven the car for Lewis Stevashsky, packing house employe. Stevashsky says he did not give permission to Shach to drive.

The car is also claimed by J. W. Ohlmann of Sioux City, who has a $2,000 mortgage on the car.
