How to Read Your Own Gas Meter

Can you read your meter? Or if you can, do you ever read it? We hear a lot about unduly high gas bills, yet it is a very simple matter to verify your bills from month to month. We often wonder if there is gas escaping in the house. You can discover that fact also by reading the meter.

Co-Operation Miss Gross will be very glad to receive suggestions for the home economics column or, to answer, as far as she is able, any questions that her readers may ask.

000. The number above the dial represents the number of cubic feet of gas used when the hand has made one complete circuit of that particular dial. Thus when the hand has gone around the 1,000 dial, 1,000 cubic feet of gas has been used. Hence each division of that particular dial is worth 100, and on each dial the divisions are worth just one-tenth of the amount printed above the dial.

Detecting Gas Leaks

If you suspect a small leak in the house, read the meter some time when no gas is being used in the house. This test is impossible if one has a self-lighter on the stove.

Spring Recipes. Cream one-third cup of butter or substitute, add gradually one-half cup of sugar, stirring constantly; add the yolks of two eggs beaten until thick and light.

Mrs. McGill Plans "Bunny Party" at Athletic Club For the Kiddies

"Easter," all written bold in the largest capital letters is the thought in the minds of the little children, who are fortunate enough to have mothers and fathers as members of the Athletic club.

For Easter Sunday night is to be their special and own occasion when from 6 until 9 p. m. in the large dining room of the club, which will be decorated in the springiest of spring flowers and daintiest of pastel colors, 150 little children up to 10 years will have their "Bunny Party"—the event of their season.

Already Mrs. McGill whose "Bunny Parties" are the happy dream of little children in other towns, is receiving reservations from these proud Omaha kiddies.

Final instructions for the drive were given and supplies distributed. Mrs.

Puffings Are Popular

The puffings which delighted our grandmothers when they studied the pages of Godey's Ladies' book in the late sixties have returned to add loveliness to the spring wardrobe.

An effective afternoon gown of mid-eighteenth century is made with an old fashioned long-waisted basque. The deep U neck is outlined with a corded puffing. The opening is filled in with a vest of tucked organdie and lace, both 'ecru' and color. A color of the same material finishes the neck. The sleeves are quaintly old fashioned and end in a bell-shaped cuff made of corded puffings.

The long waist line is edged with a puffing, and a sash of taffeta ties at the waist. The gathered skirt is held in a narrow line around the feet by puffing shirred on cord. This gown is extremely picturesque and smart.

Rosewater was assisted by her assistant major, Mrs. W. H. Garratt. Mrs. F. W. Judson and Mrs. W. J. Hynes of the executive committee for the woman's division were present and gave short talks.

One hundred and fifty of the Victory loan workers will meet in the ball room of the Blackstone on Wednesday. After the business tea and wafers will be served.

Miss Katherine F. Worley, state publicity chairman for the Victory loan, is spending several days out in the state, speaking for the loan and assisting in organization work. Tuesday she will address the precinct chairmen of Clay county, who will be in session at Sutton. A conference will be held with the Lancaster county women's committee on Wednesday afternoon. Wayne county women are well organized and many programs, motion pictures, etc., are being given boosting the loan.

Mrs. Jessie Scott Millener Sails as a Canteen Worker in France

Mrs. Jessie Scott Millener, formerly of Omaha, sailed last week as a canteen worker in France. Mrs. Millener is a daughter of W. C. You (By Ermentinde Martin.) Love, do you know where the love is? That winds among the hills, And on and on until it fades In the twilight's purple stills?

It lies through meadows starred with flowers, O'er hills and dewy vales, And o'er mammoth rocks and crags At which the bravest pales.

But at the end I know I'll find A heart that's staunch and true, For, like the fabled pot of gold, At the end of the road is—YOU.

LUNCHEON. Fish Chowder, Crisp Rolls or Crackers, Cottage Cheese Salad, Lemon Jelly, Fish Chowder.

1 pound steakfish, 1 quart diced white potatoes, 1 cup cut onions, 1 tablespoon drippings, 1 cup cracker or dried breadcrumbs, 2 cups rice stock or milk or half stock and half milk, 2 tablespoons flour, 1/4 teaspoonful paprika, 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley.

Boil and pick the fish into small pieces, add to the potatoes and onions, which have been boiled until tender in very little water. Put drippings in pan, add the flour, stir until smooth, then add to potatoes and fish. Add rice stock and seasoning. Just before serving add crumbs and parsley. This makes a very hearty dish.

Egg Dinner. The trimmings from yesterday's fish are used for this soup. Eggs golden glow with green peas. Cabbage salad. Pineapple tapioca.

Fish Soup. Use backbone and belly piece to make a pot of soup. Boil the pieces in a quart of water for 30 minutes strain and pick the meat from bone. To the stock add: 1 c. finely diced 1 T. of soft butter, 1 c. cut onions 1 T. of flour, 1/2 c. of finely cut onion rubbed together, 1 c. of Parsley and dried thyme to taste, 1 T. of Worcestershire sauce, Salt and pepper 2 T. catsup, 1 c. milk.

Boil potatoes and onions until tender.

Beatrice Fairfax's Lovelorn Advice

Dear Miss Fairfax: We are two boys, 14 and 15 years of age, in the second year of high school. We are quite popular with both sexes and considered quite attractive. Of late we have been invited to about two parties a week. Our parents don't approve of us going. The boys call us sissies because we don't go and we are among the oldest in the crowd.

We have two girl friends who are very respectful and who go to these parties. I do not care to go all the time, but I don't think that going on Friday would hurt anything. One of us boys' father is a teacher and the other a school day school and church every Sunday while the rest of the boys have a good time. Now, Miss Fairfax, don't you think we are old enough to go out Friday night with a date?

I must close. Hoping to see my letter in print. We remain, MUTT and JEFF.

You boys are mere children. No wonder your parents object to your going to parties two nights a week. You need all your strength and plenty of sleep at 14 and 15 unless you wish to dwarf your brain and body. Think of girls and parties when you finish high school and have a wee bit more knowledge on which to base your likes and dislikes.

Good Little Peggy. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Please let me, too, have the advantage of your advice. I am 17 years old, and am not beautiful, just the ordinary type. About a year ago I moved out here a stranger, and became acquainted with some who were considered the nicest kind of girls, but they are so different from the girls I have been accustomed to chum with, so different in actions, I mean. They tell me that if I don't change and act like them I won't be popular with the boys. Now, I don't want this to happen, as I like a good time. My mother always told me that the forward and bold kind of boys soon tire of them and would turn to the modest girl. But somehow I am beginning to believe that this is an old-fashioned maxim and with the boys don't hold true any more. What do you think? And what shall I do? Thanking you in advance, I remain, LONESOME.

An overwhelming desire to be popular with the boys had kept more girls from the limelight than any other thing. You are pursuing the right course and your Prince Charming will love you the more for not having been too "popular" with other boys. Your mother is right. The bold girls bring bad luck, as most people express it, to themselves, and when the prizes of life are awarded they are greatly surprised to find that they get nothing but the "booby prize."

A Baby Child. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am a girl, 11 years old, and am very tall for my age. I go with a young man, 28 years old. He thinks I am about 21. Should I tell him my right age? We never go to shows at night unless my folks go along. Is that right or not?

So please tell me if I behave all right or not? BLUE EYES.

Gracious! How out of proportion you are beginning life. Everything will be chaotic, helter-skelter, by the time you are 21. Tell the young man your right age and be a little girl for a while. You are missing the best years and the greatest fun of life by posing as a young lady.

An Unusual Mother. Dear Miss Fairfax: I just have to tell you that your advice is splendid. That explains itself. I just want to tell you about myself. It is almost unbelievable. I sure would appreciate your advice. My mother is very cross. She always tells me if I do not like my home that I can leave. I certainly don't like it. I have a step-dad. Mamma seems to think only of him, never of us. Well, Miss Fairfax, I cannot tell you everything because it would make a book. I am a sophomore in the High Daily We Discuss Our Affairs and Bring the Sad and Gay Together for Sifting, Assorting and Untangling.

School of Commerce. I wish you could tell me some way to get a position. Of course, I would have to have some place to stay. I am thinking of quitting school and going to work. Mother told me that if I got any clothes I would get them myself. How can I, when I go to school? I have refrained from being a quitter as long as possible.

Now, Miss Fairfax, I wish you would please advise me on this matter. I sure would appreciate it. How is my writing? As all my friends call me, I will sign myself "THE KID."

I cannot understand how a mother can take this stand with her own daughter. I suggest that you go over and see Miss Kathleen O'Brien or Miss Betty Stearn in the government employment bureau in the court house. They are kind, sympathetic and altogether human. I am sure either of them would be able to give you valuable help.

Square With One Man. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I have read your advice to others and it has often been helpful to me also. Now, Miss Fairfax, I am going to ask you for some advice which may seem foolish to you, but will mean a great deal to me.

I am in love with two boys and they both seem to think a great deal of me. One has proposed to me and I'm expecting the other one to do so at most any time. (I am almost 18 years old and will soon be through high school.) Now, Miss Fairfax, one of these boys lives here, but the other one lives in another town. Neither of the boys know I love any one else. They both think they are the "only man." Which one shall I marry?

You will, perhaps, tell me to consult my parents. I have already done this and they tell me to do just as I please—that I will have to live with him, not them. I'm going to put a great deal of faith in your answer and will look for it soon. Thanking you, I am, M. H. S. J.

Wait a minute. Don't rush in this bargain for life. A girl who is so utterly undecided isn't in love with either of the boys. Anyway, what kind of happiness do you expect to glean from a field of deceit? Change your tactics and be square with some one man.

Sincerely—Why do you not frankly tell your father and mother how much you care for this boy? If you love him and he loves you, that it is not fair to either to give up your friendship without an excuse. You have both tried to seek other friends and could not, so that it does not seem a passing infatuation. Your parents must have some reason why they object, and it may be a very, very good one.

Worried Sixteen—So often it is our own wishes that make us most unhappy when fulfilled, isn't it? If you write the boy not to come, and that you were not going out this summer, then why should you wonder that he did as you asked? It is that girlish whimsy handed us from, perhaps, Eve, herself, that we often say only the opposite of what we mean in our hearts. If you are sure that you are ready to accept this, I should certainly return his expensive wrist watch. Wouldn't it be a mistake to accept it? At 16 you are "worldly weary." It seems to me, and while I can see no reason why you should not have good times with your boy friends, why did you so emphatically say that you were giving them all up?

Brown Eyes—Prices differ among different teachers of the violin and guitar. You may find that they range and vary according to the teacher, method and city.

Blue Eyes—It will be far easier for you if you could go to school now than in the years to come. At 13 one is in the "school-girl age," while older people have more difficulties than you can realize. Make every possible effort to continue your studies now until you at least have a foundation that you can more easily build on.
