

GOVERNOR OF IOWA ACCUSES STATE EDITOR

Executive Censured and Attorney General Criticized for Activities in Rathbun Case.

Des Moines, Ia., April 17.—Iowa's house of representatives ended its investigation of the Rathbun case at noon Thursday by criticizing Attorney General H. M. Havner for his activities in the case, after censuring Governor W. L. Harding last night for his connection with the affair.

Eleven hours after the house had adopted the minority report of the judiciary committee censuring the governor it accepted the majority report on Havner, which criticizes the attorney general's action, but declares he was not guilty of misconduct.

The motion to substitute the minority report recommending censure of Havner for the majority report was defeated by a vote of 33 against and 49 for substitution. It would have required a constitutional majority of 55 votes to pass the motion.

With the case of the chief executive disposed of, the house turned its attention to the part relating to Attorney General Havner and before its forenoon session convened at 9:30 o'clock it was indicated that prompt action would be taken.

Consider Havner. Reports of the judiciary committee were before the house regarding Havner—the majority report recommending his exoneration and the minority recommendation for his censure. There was no early indication which would be adopted.

The deciding vote on the Harding case came a few minutes before 11 a. m. The minority recommendation for censure of the governor was substituted for the majority report urging impeachment—70 voting for and 34 against the substitution, with four members absent or not voting.

Immediately after the substitution resolution had been adopted the majority report—in the guise of a majority report—was accepted by acclamation, terminating the legislative inquiry into Harding's part in the now famous pardon case.

Governor Harding, confined to his bed with diabetes seriously ill, heard the verdict of the house within a few minutes and almost immediately gave the following statement to the Associated Press:

"I am pleased over the result of the vote in the house. No man in Iowa has had to submit to more severe political persecution than have I. My enemies are well known. Their hand is not covered, and sooner or later their conspiracy will be laid bare to the people of Iowa.

"When the record in this alleged conspiracy is finally made, the governor continues the name I have I. My enemies are well known. Their hand is not covered, and sooner or later their conspiracy will be laid bare to the people of Iowa.

"Scores Register. "The vote in the house last night was an impeachment of Gardner Cowles and his style of newspapers in the state of Iowa. The whole controversy was stirred by the Register and kept alive by it. Of course, I am under deep and lasting obligation to thousands and thousands of loyal friends throughout the state and especially under obligation to the loyal men in the legislature. The Register and its backers have put a blot on Iowa in their ambition to injure me. I expect to continue serving the people of the state faithfully and impartially. I can look the world in the face for I have not tampered with the jury."

Both houses of the Iowa general assembly passed a resolution late today to adjourn Saturday noon, April 19.

Missionary Boards Refute Charge of State Department

Boston, April 17.—The American board of commissioners for foreign missions is investigating the conduct of one of its missionaries who is reported to have engaged in pro-Bulgarian activities.

In a statement today Dr. William E. Strong, secretary of the educational department of the American board, declares the report from Washington, yesterday misleading and in most of its charges untrue.

Dr. Strong pointed out that the American board had no missionaries in Persia.

New York, April 17.—Dr. G. T. Scott, speaking in behalf of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions, denied today that any missionaries representing the board in Persia had interfered in local affairs there as represented to the state department. He said that instead of stirring up strife between Persians and Assyrians, as alleged, the Presbyterian missionaries had done their utmost to allay troubles between the races in Persia.

Bluffs Man Dies in Denver Week After Arrival of Parents

A telegram received by friends here yesterday announced the death of Jay Bonham at Denver. Mr. Bonham was born and reared in Council Bluffs, but went to Denver some time ago when physicians discovered traces of tuberculosis. He improved so rapidly and liked the change so much that he prevailed upon his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bonham, to sell the family home, 220 Harmony street, and go to Denver. Their daughter, Clara, formerly Mrs. Snodgrass, has been living there for several years, and the brother and sister purchased a cozy home for the old people, and had it ready for them when they arrived a week or more ago. The son met them at the railway station, and the sharp eyes of the mother detected the fact that he was ill. It was the first stage of the influenza, and a week later he was dead in the new home.

Mrs. Bonham is nearly helpless from injuries received three years ago when she fell down a stairway in Denver while visiting her daughter. "Uncle Mack" Bonham had spent a couple of weeks in the soldiers' home at Leavenworth before arrangements were made for the new home in Denver.

The funeral of the son will be held in Denver Saturday and the body will be buried here.

MUSIC

MISCHA ELMAN, the celebrated Russian violinist, was presented in recital yesterday evening at the Brandeis theater to a fair sized and extremely enthusiastic audience. The artistic qualities of Mr. Elman are so well known that comment upon them seems almost superfluous. Although a brilliant technician the outstanding feature of his playing, as evidenced again on this occasion, is the beauty and variety of his tone, which is at all times true and artistically appropriate.

The program was not overly long and if open to criticism at all, it was on the score that it did not include more of real musical worth. Either Mr. Elman has the mistaken idea that the middle west must be played down to, or the program of yesterday evening was intended to be a "popular" one.

The familiar and ever beautiful Concerto in E minor by Mendelssohn was the piece de resistance. The first movement, with its impassioned strains alternating with bits of haunting melody characteristic of the composer, was splendidly played. It holds one of the finest cadenzas in violin literature and in this cadenza Mr. Elman wove a marvelous spell of tonal beauty. This is followed by a slow movement of deep appeal and a rapid, sparkling movement, which, after a strong introduction, changes to real elfin music, the technical difficulties of which are prodigious.

The violin playing, throughout, was superlative. Josef Bonime, at the piano, did his best to make the audience forget that there was no orchestra—which is to say he negotiated the very great difficulties with success and gave ample support.

The second number on the program was the hackneyed "Faust Fantasy" with its brilliantly pointless introduction and airs, serving mainly as a vehicle for beautiful tone and technique. Mr. Elman played it in a style worthy of a better cause.

The group which served as the third number opened with an impressive Intrada (or introduction) by Desplantes-Nachez. This was played in a deeply religious style with a beautiful broad tone and was truly soul stirring. The Beethoven "Turkish March" set for violin by Auer; a delicate Spanish serenade by the Russian composer, Rachmaninoff, (muted with a charming accompaniment) and the delightful "Sicilienne and Rigandon" by Francaur-Kreiser completed the group. The program came to a brilliant conclusion with the Gypsy Airs by Sarasate. The plaintive airs, the passage work with the frequent minor intervals characteristic of gypsy music, as well as the cheap pyrotechnics of the composition (or melody) were given with the impeccable art of Mischa Elman. Numerous encores were given, including the Schubert serenade and "Ave Maria," the familiar Beethoven minuet and "Oriente" by Cui.

As in the Concerto, Mr. Bonime was a satisfactory accompanist throughout the evening. E. L. W.
