

HOLDEN IN CITY SAYS HINES WILL NOT COME HERE

Former Burlington Chief Enroute to Coast to Join Railroad Administrator On Inspection Trip.

That Director General Hines of the United States railroad administration will not pass through Omaha on his return from a swing around the country, was brought out yesterday morning by Hale Holden, regional director of the central district, who arrived in the city over the Burlington, the road of which he formerly was president, early today.

Director Hines, instead, will look over the roads of the Pacific coast region, go down to Los Angeles and return by one of the southern routes, being back in Washington about May 15.

At this time Mr. Hines is inspecting the northern lines, picking up regional directors and federal managers and taking them along with him. The same course will be pursued until he reaches Washington.

Greer in City Friday. Friday night, B. B. Greer, assistant regional director of the central district, passing through Omaha, en route west, going over the Burlington and today he will join Director Hines in Cheyenne, accompanying him for several days.

Shortly after his arrival in Omaha Mr. Holden went into a conference with former President Calvin of the Union Pacific, who, at the present time, is also attached to the railroad administration as a federal manager. Both officials left the city on a private car, attached to the Union Pacific fast mail train, westward bound.

R. H. Safford, engineer for the central region and working under the direction of Regional Director Holden, will join the party in Utah.

In Portland the Holden party will meet Director General Hines, and from that time on until Washington is reached, the railroad administration of the United States will be on wheels.

Trip Serves Two Purposes. Discussing railroads and the railroad situation, during his brief stop at the Union station yesterday morning Regional Director Holden said:

"This plan of going across the country to meet Mr. Hines is for two purposes. One is that the regional directors and their assistants may be able to make a close inspection of lines over which they exercise jurisdiction, and the other is to be with the director general and talk over just what is needed in the way of improvements and betterments along the respective roads in the zone.

"Our Mr. Safford, chief engineer for the Central division, has been in the country west of the Missouri river for several weeks. He has been out on the lines, at the offices of general managers and superintendents, and in this way has come in touch with the existing conditions. He will be able to make what improvements are needed and what the cost will be.

To Formulate Budget. "Officials of other districts will pursue similar plans, and when Mr. Hines gets the men all together and their figures, he will be in a position to make up the budget and determine how much money is to be expended and where.

"We do not contemplate any new projects in connection with the railroads of the Central district, but the properties will be kept in the best of condition to be turned over to former owners when that time comes."

Mr. Holden does not look for an early transfer of the railroads back to corporate ownership. Relative to this he said:

"The government could not well let go of the railroads at this time. Eventually, however, there are indications that they will go back and in the meantime it is important that the properties be kept up.

H. C. of L. Prevents Extension. "The high cost of labor and the equally high cost of material and equipment is going to prevent the extension of new lines and at the same time is likely to prevent making extensive improvements, other than those absolutely necessary.

"Gradually service in the service is being restored and the character of equipment that was formerly run is being put back in service. The entire situation seems to be adjusting itself and with the war ended the railroads are going to get back into business and on a satisfactory basis."

DETECTIVE FORD HAS NOW AN EVEN CHANCE FOR LIFE

Condition of Officer Who Was Shot While Battling With Confessed Burglar Is Somewhat Improved.

The condition of Detective Cary C. Ford, who was shot in the abdomen in a gun battle early Friday morning with Ray Jensen, confessed burglar was somewhat improved yesterday, physicians at the Lord Lister hospital declared.

Doctors E. C. Henry and Foltz operated on Ford Friday afternoon. The bullet lodged deeply in the intestines.

Has Chance for Life. Attending physicians say Ford has an even chance for his life.

Ray Jensen, who was slightly wounded four times in the gun battle with Detectives Ford and A. V. Lundeen in Municipal Triangle park, Thirty-first street and Dewey avenue, confessed to six burglaries. He was arrested shortly after he had entered and ransacked the homes of Miles Standish, 144 North Thirty-eighth avenue, H. J. Ehrhorst, 132 North Forty-second street, B. L. Curry, 4202 Davenport street, H. H. Allen, 4167 Farnam street, Charles Johnson, 4121 Harney street, and C. C. Buchanan, 127 South Forty-first street.

Tells of Robberies. The loot taken by Jensen consisted principally of jewelry and money, which was found on him when captured. Jensen confessed to Chief of Detectives Dunn that he stole $35 from a house on the South Side, the address of which he does not remember. No report of the theft of the $35 has been made to the police.

Detectives say Jensen is the bold burglar ever booked at the central station. At the Curry home, Jensen entered a second story window by means of a ladder. After taking a wrist watch and two $10 bills belonging to Floreine Curry, he went into Mrs. Curry's room.

Impersonated a Woman. The woman heard a noise and said: "Is that you Floreine?" Jensen replied in an effeminate voice, "Yes."

Jensen next went to the Allen home and stole a watch. He confessed to stealing a suit of men's clothes and some money at the home of Miles Standish, 144 North Thirty-eighth avenue. Several pieces of jewelry and $8 were stolen out of the home of C. C. Buchanan, 127 South Forty-first street.

The battle with the detectives followed an attempt to arrest Jensen a Thirty-first and Farnam streets at 5 o'clock Friday morning when they saw him loitering along the street.

The detectives chased Jensen into Triangle park where the burglar turned around and fired a volley of shots at them, wounding Ford.

A Dental Ditty

All through his life he had suffered With back-aches and pains in his head, And now with old age advancing, He said he wished he were dead. "Why don't you go to a dentist, And have your mouth cleaned all through?" A friend said to him one morning, "I'm sure that it will pay you." And so to Bailey, the Dentist, Joe Williams now hastened to go, And there he poured forth his troubles— His long-standing tale of pure woe. Dr. Shipperd sat patiently list'ning, Then looked at the teeth in Joe's head. "We'll have to take X-Ray pictures, Before we can help you," he said. And when the pictures were taken And defects were shown everywhere, Joe Williams was surely astonished And exclaimed, "Well, I declare!" "I see what has caused my neuralgia, What's made me go limping about; So hurry and pick up your forceps And pull every one of them out." "Ah, No," replied Dr. Shipperd, "We'll save all we can, sir, for you, Though there's pulling and filling and crowning And plenty of bridge-work to do." "But when with you we have finished, Some perfect teeth will you own, And soon your physical ailments You'll find will forever be gone." Today Joe Williams is happy, For health illumines his face And in his young, sprightly carriage Of limping there isn't trace. "And I owe it all to Bailey," He says with a grateful smile, "For he is the dentist who makes you Feel life is well worth the while."
