BREAD WILL BE DEAR EVEN IF FLOUR IS CHEAP.

New Orleans, April 23 .- "Even though the price of flour falls so that it costs the bakers of the country no more than the water they in their bakeries, the price of bread will not fall to its former level," said George S. "No matter how low the price of flour falls, and there is no prospect of any reduction at all," Mr. Ward said. "the price of bread cannot go to the old figure. The reason for this is the fact that all other materials, all operating costs and all labor costs have gone up so high this increase would more than offset any drop in the price of flour."

There has been talk in the last 48 hours of a substitution of Herr Leinert, president of the Prussian assembly and of the national soviet congress, for Dr. David. If this is it signifies an important eleventh-hour victory for the conservatives and other elements, the guiding motive of whose policy is Anglophobia. David has been assailed in these quarters of late as a "friend of the English" who might agree to concessions at Germany's expense and in favor of Britain. He is viokently anti-Russian and has for years advocated the dismemberment of the Muscovite realm.

Statement Regarded as Challenge. Pres' lent Wilson's emphatic declaration that he will not yield on the Adriatic question has created the most profound sensation in peace conference. He has thrown down the gauntlet to the supporters of secret treaties in a manner which almost took away the breath of the delegates who have been urging compromises on points covered by many secret documents and at variance with the president's 14 points.

President Wilson's sweeping decaration, while aimed directly at the Adriatic problems, also reaches the Kiau-Chau controversy, in which Japan relies on secret agreements made with Great Britain, France and Italy in 1917 to support her in her claim to the concessions held by Germany in Shantung.

The peace delegates generally regarded President Wilson's statement as a challenge which once for all will dispose of the question (Continued on Page Two, Column Three.)
