School Teacher Writes of Horrible Conditions During Revolution Against Japanese Rule.

Washington, May 5.—Conditions in Korea during the revolution against Japanese rule are described in a letter made public here today by the headquarters of the "provisional government of Korea."

In the letter, Miss Dillingham said: "Korean school girls had been tied to telephone poles and flogged publicly by Japanese gendarmes, Christians in jails had been tied to crosses, stripped of their clothing and beaten, two American women had been assaulted by Japanese soldiers, and churches had been looted and bibles destroyed."

"The soldiers fired into the crowds and killed and wounded many of the students, boys and girls who took part in the demonstrations," Miss Dillingham wrote. "Dr. Falwell's hospital is full of them. Two died, one has to have an arm amputated and one a leg. Schoolgirls were tied to telephone poles by their braids and flogged. One of our missionaries saw a man standing with his back to the road, stabbed with a bayonet."

"Mrs. Moore and Miss Trissel (missionaries) were stopped on their way to our hospital. They turned to go back in obedience to the guard's demands and he struck them both in the back with the butt of his gun."
