

WOMAN'S SECTION OF THE BEE

Whether a flag is worth fighting for will depend upon what that flag stands for. Unconditional loyalty to any country is treason to mankind.

He who would perform his task well must make of it no task at all. No great deed can ever be performed in the workshop of time.

Odd Corners Are Made Into Lounging Rooms In Factory Building.

By taking over the homely corners, waste closet space and other unattractive discarded rooms in factory buildings in Petersburg, Va., and outfitting them with dainty furnishings, the Y. W. C. A. of that city is making it possible for factory girls to have charming lounging rooms.

It is remarkable what soap, water and a little feminine ingenuity will do for these odd corners that have never been used for places other than "dumps," declare some of the girls who have been active in trimming up the corners. It just means putting a lounge here and a bright pillow there, a lace curtain at a window and a dainty lamp with a colored shade on the table and such little feminine touches, and "ne first thing you know the girls have a dainty place of their own where they may read, talk or rest. In each case the Y. W. C. A. co-operates with the manager. The latter is almost always glad to have the renovating take place.

Rainey-Altman Nuptials. A pretty wedding took place at St. Mary Magdalene's church at high noon Tuesday, when Miss Marie Altman became the bride of Mr. Ralph Rainey. Rev. Father Sinne read the marriage lines.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Emily Altman, who wore a blue suit and large hat. A corsage bouquet of sweet-peas and roses was worn. Mr. William M. Wood attended the bridegroom as best man. The bride was very attractive in her traveling suit of brown with a close hat to match. A corsage of orchids and sweet peas completed a very smart costume.

Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served at the University club, when covers were laid for 50 guests. Bride's roses were used on the table, forming an attractive decoration.

After an eastern trip Mr. Rainey and his bride will be at home at 3720 Mason street.

Exquisite Wedding Gown

By GERTRUDE BERESFORD. The long waistline continues to hold its popularity. The charm of this fine is beautifully expressed in this wedding gown of ivory white charm and lace. The bodice is cut like a long-waisted jumper, with a deep "U" shaped opening and large armholes, to display a vest and sleeves of soft shadow lace. A tunic of this lace falls from beneath the blouse in straight, soft lines. Beneath the tunic appears a narrow draped skirt of ivory chamoise. A broad band of pearl embroidery borders the blouse. The deep armholes are outlined with satin-covered buttons. The long train is made of ivory satin. The gown is also very effective without the train. The veil, which is made of net, is held by a bandeau of orange blossoms.

War Camp. The Americanization night school which has been held during the winter in Council Bluffs has changed its meeting place to the Girls' Community house at Seventeenth and Dodge streets, where the first meeting was held last night. Mrs. Topp is in charge of the class, with Miss Dorabee Jones. There was a good attendance Monday night and several discharged soldiers were present. These classes will meet on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, from 7:30 until 9 o'clock.

Heart Beats

By A. K. Yesterday was gloomy. The gray clouds Hung low And the sad rain Fell slowly From a weeping sky. Sorrow Filled our life While the day Sobbed Itself into Eternity. But a new day Is dawning In the east. We shall forget— Forget the grief of Yesterday The day now passed To join "Yesterday's Seven Thousand Years."

We shall meet This new morning With a smile Of gratitude— We shall march Our forces And bring into service Ambition And Energy And Faith And Tolerance And Sympathy And Kindness. Then it will not Matter if the day Is sad Or if the sky weeps When we have enlisted In the army Of Happiness And meet Today And tomorrow And every new day With a Sense of Humor And when the Great Day comes— Pass on into Eternity unafraid.

Telephone Service Is Getting Back to Normal. Two years ago you were getting good telephone service. Then war came. Many of our trained men were called into military service. The abnormal demand for women employees in other lines of work caused considerable shifting in our operating forces. These conditions, coupled with the inability to get equipment promptly caused unsatisfactory telephone service in many localities. Now we are getting back on a pre-war basis. Manufacturers are supplying us with telephone equipment more promptly now, although we are paying much higher prices than before the war. With the abnormal demand ended for women workers in other industries there is now more stability among our operating employees. Our trained men are gradually being released from military service and resuming their old positions. As the supply of labor and equipment becomes more and more normal, telephone service is steadily improving. NEBRASKA TELEPHONE COMPANY.
