SOUTH SIDE MAN AT PITTSBURGH

Before National Live Stock Exchange; Has Hopes of Bright Future.

W. B. Tagg of Omaha, president of the National Live Stock Ex-change, opened the thirty-first an-nual meeting of the National Live Stock Exchange at Pittsburgh yes-

He reviewed the part that the Ex-changes had played in the past war and among other things said:

Future of Railroads. "Nearly every stockman is opposed to government ownership because of the poor service given the last year and a half by railroads. Rates have been raised, service depreciated and stock schedules longthened out, and now they are talking of another raise in rate while the claim departments of the roads are doing everything they can to get out of paying damages on acof poor service. of to set out of paying damages on acof poor service.

"Personally, I believe that government supervision has been of considerable benefit to the live stock trade, not only for the direct good it has accomplished, but for the feeling of security it has given to the country, who felt that if there was anything radically wrong at the public markets the government authorities would discover it and have it corrected.

Should Be Stated.

Should Be Stated.

"I believe if government supervision of live stock market activities is to continue in the future, the authority of the bureau of markets, or whoever is to have this matter in charge, should be clearly stated by law, and not left to department or bureau regulation.

"I believe government ownershop of either stock yards or packing houses would be a serious mistake and a step backward. I do not think that the government can handle them efficiently or as economically as they are being handled at the present time. What this country needs now is more business, less agitation: more experience, less theory, more confidence, less supplien; more study, less talk, and a little more willingness to take the same laws and regulations we want to see the other fellow get.
