My Heart and My Husband Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

What Happened After the Punch Bowl was Broken.
As the full meaning of Kenneth Stockbridge's seemingly inadvertent action flashed upon me I unobtrusively dropped the cut glass cello filled with the fruit punch which Milly Stockbridge had laded out for me. As it, too, shattered itself against the polished floor the only traces of whatever it was the half-crazed woman had tried to do were lost in the trickling streams of liquid trickling over the floor.

My gown had miraculously escaped being splattered. As I stepped back to keep the liquid from ruining my slippers, I kept my eyes on my hostess, for I was filled with a very wholesome respect for her ability to make things unpleasant. True, I had no real proof that she had put anything in the fruit punch which would harm me, although

Advice to the Lovelorn

Love Comes Unbidden and, "To Love or Not We Are No More Free Than the Ripple to Rise and Leave the Sea."

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Puzzled Youth.
Dear Miss Fairfax: I am a boy of 17, 5 feet 7 inches tall, and have a good complexion. I can dance and sing, and like music and a good time.

I go with all kinds of girls, but found only one that I care for. Went to her for eight months, and she didn't answer my letter, so what may I do?

Is it right for a boy like me to go with one girl one night and another the next? I think it is, but may be mistaken. I tell the girl when I take her out all alone that I am out for a good time and I don't want to be married to any one girl.
Now, am I right?
CUPID.

It is all right for a boy of 17 to go with different girls and it would be less embarrassing if you would omit the announcement that you are not seeking matrimony. That should be taken for granted until your conduct proves otherwise. If you have given the particular girl you speak of an opportunity to answer your letters and she does not do so, try to forget about it. You are too young to take seriously her failure to respond.

Some Girls!

Dear Miss Fairfax: We are two girls, 17 and 20 years old, and are coming to you for advice. Each of us is in love with two men, one a soldier and one a sailor. Both are very nice young men and we know we would be ideally happy with either. Now, our trouble is this: We really love the sailor's best, but we think the soldier's look best in their uniforms. Which would you advise us to marry? Do you think we are too young to marry? What color of wedding gowns would look well with the boys' uniforms?

Thanking you in advance for your advice we beg to remain, Sincerely Yours, BET EYES AND BROWN EYES.

Marry the good-looking boys instead of the ones you love. Don't let sentiment stand in your way. I suggest blue and white checked gingham for your wedding gowns. As I recall it, this is the material usually worn by inmates of feeble-minded institutions, and you might as well get used to it.

Bud—you are young for a serious love affair, but if you know yourself well and are sure the girl you speak of is your ideal and you care enough for her to marry her, then I think you can, in honor, tell her in a manly, straightforward

NUCOA

Stands for quality. NUCOA Nut Butter, nature's product of sunshine, is always quality nut butter. It is made right. It is perfect. It was the best first and has never lost its title. It welcomes comparison even with creamy butter, at half its price. It is sanitary, pure and sweet—stays sweet. Insist on NUCOA from your grocer and do yourself a favor.
