COMMISSION RULES ON AUTO TRUCK HAULING

Fixes Rates on Basis of Terminal and Hauling Charges, Making the Minimum Fifty Cents.

Lincoln, May 23.—November 12, 1918, the Douglas county highways transport commission of Omaha, organized by the Council of National Defense, applied to the State Railway commission for approval of a schedule of rates for motor truck transportation between Omaha and points outside for a distance of 60 miles, applying western railway classification, with some exceptions.

In an opinion by Commissioner Victor Wilson, in which the matter of overland transportation is gone into, in part he says: "It developed that applicant was not engaged in the business and that it was acting as the representative of a carrier operating out of Omaha, but 'pro bono publico' for the most part. The prayer of the commission was in effect that the commission make the necessary investigation and establish all of the requirements."

Realizing that the issues under the committee's application were not broad enough to support findings of the character desired and which the situation seems to require, the commission on February 20, 1919, adopted a resolution of investigation of the business of common carriers of goods, merchandise and commodities for hire by means of trucks or other vehicles used upon public highways between Omaha and other points in Nebraska for the purpose of determining who are engaged in such business and subject to the jurisdiction of the commission and further fixing rates, service, charges, etc. A hearing was had in Omaha.

Stallard of the highways committee had operated a two-ton truck for four months. The truck cost $3,000, and the service life was estimated at 36,000 miles. The tires, which were solid, cost $280 and their life 6,000 miles. Driver's wages amount to $5 a day, and the daily haul was 60 miles with an average load of 4,000 pounds. Gasoline, lubricating oil, repairs and insurance and loss and damage to freight were included in cost items.

P. A. Barrows, Correspondent.

But no estimate was made for advertising or bookkeeping, which he admitted were essential. The showing was made for 300 days in the year.

The Ford Delivery company, Lincoln, made a showing on a 125-mile trip made with a 3 1/2-ton truck. The trip was from Lincoln to Omaha and return: Gasoline, $7.50; oil, $1.20; labor, $18; tires, $26; depreciation, $4; interest on investment, $1.10; insurance and maintenance, $1.50; overhead, $4; hotel bills, $4.30; total, $67.60; cost per mile, 54 cents.

On a 50-mile trip with a two-ton truck the cost was given as: Tires, $4; oil, $1; gas, $1.50; depreciation, $3.33; maintenance and cost of insurance, $1.50; interest on investment, 80c; labor, $5; hotel bills, $3.75; total, $20.88; cost per mile, 41 cents.

Fixing the Rate.
The matter of rates, according to Commissioner Wilson, is one that will have to be governed by the kind of commodity in transportation. Companies which have been operating have been charging from a little over one cent per 100 pounds per mile, to two cents.

The commission therefore constructs the scale on a basis of terminal and haulage rates, placing the terminal rate at 15 cents per 100 pounds first-class, and says: "A terminal rate of 15 cents and a haulage rate of one and one-half cents per 100 pounds per mile first-class, results in a third-class rate of approximately one and one-half cents per 100 miles haul, and the scale will be constructed on that basis, with the minimum charge per shipment of 50 cents."

Barrows Writes to Find Out About State Fish Car

Lincoln, Neb., May 23.—State Fish Commissioner W. J. O'Brien called at the executive offices Friday regarding the matter of transportation of the state fish car. He hopes that immediate action may be taken that a condition existing in Scotts Bluff county may be met. The fore part of the week Acting Governor Barrows addressed a letter to the State Railway commission in an effort to discover why that commission could not allow the railroads to give transportation rates on the fish car. It is claimed by the commission that the railroad administration has greater authority in this case than the state commission, and in an effort to find out just who has authority the acting governor has sent letters of inquiry to all members of the Nebraska delegation in congress.
