

SOMEWHERE IN MEXICO IS BURIED $12,000 IN GOLD

Fearing an Approaching Bandit Horde, Three Americans Buried Money and Then Fled to States.

Grass Valley, Cal., May 25.—"Somewhere in Mexico" $12,000 in gold bullion is buried, it's where, about known only to J. A. Mathis, formerly a miner of Plumas county, north of here, and two companions who aided in secreting it. Mathis recently arrived here after an absence of two years. He is going back to find the gold, which was buried because the men valued their lives more than the precious ore, the weight of which impeded their progress when chased by Mexican bandits.

Describing the flight, Mathis said: "Two of us slept, while the third stood guard. Before daylight the guard awakened us to hear the hoofbeats of approaching horses. Soon three horsemen rode through the chapparal and we could distinguish the high, pointed hats of the bandits. We wasted no time in challenging but immediately opened fire. Two of the men fell from their horses. The third tried to escape, but he tumbled headlong before he had gone far.

"We tried to catch the horses, but without success; so after stripping the bodies of all arms and ammunition, we started again for the coast. Valuing our lives more than the heavy bullion just then, we decided to leave it behind, and it was buried in the sand and secret markings noted.

"We reached the coast after a toilsome journey and in a nearly famished condition."

Britisher, in Spite of Loss of His Hand, Is Able to Play Golf

Del Monte, Cal., May 25.—The possibility of achieving athletic success even under the handicap of physical disability is being demonstrated on the golf links here by Capt. A. Sutton, a British army officer who lost a hand in the great war.

Always a gold enthusiast and rated a first-class player, Captain Sutton had forever dismissed from his mind the possibility of ever being able to indulge in his favorite game again. The possibility of, at least, amusing himself by one-handed putting occurred to the captain. The experiment was a success and he continued to improve in accuracy. Incidentally he was strengthening his remaining hand and arm by constant use.

It was not long before he was trying out some of the other clubs and, in the course of a short time he found himself going through with his swing quite as he did in the old days. Today, there is not a club that Captain Sutton is not able to manipulate and he is able to go out and play a round with any of his friends without asking anything in the way of a handicap advantage. In fact he is considered the marvel of the course, and always attracts a gallery.

Recently he paired with Jack Neville, former California state champion, and defeated another pair of excellent players. Captain Sutton's work on the green was a distinctive feature. In driving approach shots and putting, he quite held his own, both in the matter of distance and accuracy. He has made a medal score of 84 over the course, which is better than a large majority of the players is able to accomplish. He is considering entering a Decoration day tournament which is to be held here.

Old Georgetown U. to Plant Sixty Memorial Trees for Its Heroes

Washington. — Old Georgetown university, at the commencement on June 16, will plant and dedicate 60 trees in honor of her graduates who gave their lives in the world war. The trees will be marked by the American Forestry association and registered on the national honor roll being compiled by the association.

Father Nevils, who has charge of the tree planting program, has arranged with the American Forestry association for the special tree markers. Georgetown university thus becomes the first college in the country to so register its memorial tree planting. Georgetown is celebrating its 130th anniversary this year.

The trees, Lombardy poplars, will be planted in the amphitheater on the athletic grounds. Georgetown graduates will fly over the college buildings on the high ground which overlooks the famous memorial to Abraham Lincoln that is now nearing completion, and from which can be seen, in the distance, that other famed monument, the shaft to George Washington.

As each tree is placed and the marker with the name put around the tree a hero's name will be called out and former classmates will tramp the ground about the tree, while a Georgetown aviator circles above.

The suggestion of the American Forestry association for planting memorial trees has been taken up all over the country. The latest colleges to report tree planting to the association are the University of South Carolina with 28 and the University of Denver with 15 trees for the gold stars in their service flags.

2-Day License Prolongs Life of John Barleycorn

Cleveland, O.—John Barleycorn, due to pass away in Ohio today, drew a 24-hour respite when license officials ruled that special liquor licenses, good only for Monday, May 26, might be issued. The one-day licenses cost the holders $305 each, but there was a grand rush on the part of saloonkeepers to pay their money. Many hotels, however, will close their bars tonight.
