lane at Lisbon reached the Navy lepartment first through a dispatch from Brest, France, sent by Rear Admiral Halstead, commander of the American navy forces in French waters. The message was received at the Otter Cliffs, Me., station and relayed to Washington Immediately Secretary Daniels cabled the congratulations of the department to Commander Read and sent a cable to President Wilson telling him that American naval aviations had been the first to cross the Atlantic. The message to Commander Read follows: "The entire navy congratulates you and your fellow aviators on your epochal flight. The ocean has been spanned through the air and to the American navy goes the honor of making the first transatlantic flight. We are all intensely proud of your achievement and thankful that it has been accomplished without mishap to any one of the daring aviators who left ou shores on the first air journey to Europe. To all of them and to you, all honor is due."

Cablegram to Wilson.

The cablegram to President Wilson said: "Know you will be delighted to learn naval aviators first to cross Atlantic." Secretary Daniels said today no definite plans for further transoceanic flights had been made. He explained that the first trip was the beginning of a series of experiments probably, after defects in naval aircraft had been corrected, another squadron of seaplanes would be headed across the Atlantic. Daniels said he had not decided whether the NC-4 should attempt to fly back to the United States or "knocked down" at Plymouth and shipped back to America.

Log of Flight. Following is the brief log of the flight as it was told by the guardian Naval officials emphasized that the long delay at the Azores was due to the weather and to no weakness of the machine or its daring crew, nor to any failure of the carefully laid plans of the department to guide the flyers to their destination. The 14 destroyers strung from Ponta del Gada to Lisbon reported with machine-like precision today as the flight progressed. The plane was never off its course and there was no moment when officials in Washington did not know to within a few miles where it was in the air.

Destroyers Relay Reports.

To maintain adequate communication for this stage of the journey, the destroyers stuck to their posts after the flying boat had passed, relaying back to Ponta del Gada reports from ships farther eastward. The chain was not broken until after the plane was not broken until after the plane was safely moored for the night near the cruiser Rochester, at Lisbon.

PROHIBITION MAY DEPEND ON OHIO ELECTION

Thirty-Five States Have Ratified Amendment and Measure Held Up in Ten; Thirty-Six Necessary.

San Francisco, May 27.-If the electorate of Ohio refuses to ratify the national prohibition amendment at its general election next November, the operation of the amendment will be suspended throughout the United States at least until the general Maine election, in September 1920, Theodore A. Bell, attorney for the California Grape Protective association, announced here today. "The referendum to place th measure on the ballot has been started in 10 states." Mr. Bell said "Forty-five states ratified the amendment through their legislatures and three declined to do so

That means that the measure is held up in 10 states by the referendum, leaving but 35 where final ratification has been effected, whereas 36 are necessary to make it operative Ohio to Decide.

"If Ohio, which will be the first state to vote on the referendum, ratifies it, the necessary 36 will have been gained. But if it declines, the amendment will be suspended until the next general state election in in long-distance flying and that very Maine, in September, 1920. The remaining general elections come in November, 1920,"

The referendum is now pending California, Washington, New Mexico, Colorado, Nebraska, Missouri, Ohio, Arkansas, Michigan and Maine, Bell said.
