COMMITTEE TO LOOK INTO WAR EXPENDITURES

Jeffers of Omaha to Be One of Men to Investigate Camp Locations and Government Purchases.

Washington, May 28.—(Special Telegram.)—"A special committee of 15 members of the house, 10 republicans and five democrats, will, in all probability, be named to take charge of the investigation of the expenditures of the War department during the past two years," said Representative Jeffers today.

"This committee will be divided into a number of subcommittees, according to present plans, each charged with a specific duty, as, for instance, investigating air craft production, camps and cantonments, arms and munitions and foreign activities of the department as they relate to the establishment of camps, etc., abroad."

The present committee on expenditures in the War department will be made the basis for the larger committee, which will be empowered to send for persons and papers and to hold hearings in all sections of the country.

My understanding is that this committee will be made up of men willing to work and as that is what I came to congress to do, they can't organize and get down to business any too soon to suit me, for I am convinced there is a fertile field for investigation growing out of expenditures of the War department in connection with the world war."

Opposed to Free Seeds. Nebraska members of the house are opposed to giving free seeds to every Tom, Dick and Harry who may want them, judging from the votes today when the annual appropriation for free garden and vegetable seeds was rejected in the agricultural bill.

Germans Willing to Reduce Armament; Reject Allies' Terms

(Continued From Page One.) that the terms of peace completely ignore the fact that Germany has replaced an "imperialistic and irresponsible government" by a strictly democratic one and that Germany in its proposals for a league of nations has adhered to the principle of a limitation of armaments.

"It would be difficult to see," one section reads, "what different conditions could have been imposed upon an imperialistic government. The solemn assurances of France, Great Britain and President Wilson that the peace would be a peace of right and not of violence, have not been kept especially regarding territorial questions."

Ask Impartial Settlement. The proposal of the German peace delegation to the entente and associated representatives regarding Germany's former colonies points out to the peace conference that an absolutely impartial settlement of all colonial claims was promised in No. 14 of the 14 points mentioned in President Wilson's message to congress January 8, 1918, and claims that "an impartial settlement presupposes a hearing of both sides before a decision is taken and such hearing has not taken place."

"While appealing to the promise, and especially to the principle, that the regulation of colonial claims should take place with due regard equally to the interest of governments and the governed," says the German note, "the proposal is made to refer colonial questions to a special committee. This committee, to be formed of mandatories and experts of both parties, shall take as the subject of its deliberation the aforementioned point five, and other points mentioned in President Wilson's note of November 5, 1918; the article of the draft of the peace conditions relating to colonial questions and section nine of the George league of nations proposals, as well as the interests of the populations and the governments concerned."

Germany, it says, "is ready, should a league of nations be formed in which she is immediately elected with equal rights, to carry on the administration of her colonies, in accordance with the principles of the league of nations, and in given circumstances as its mandatory."

ALIENISTS GIVE OPPOSING VIEWS ON SANITY ISSUE

(Continued From Page One.) Mrs. Van Ausdell at first denied that she had gone with Police Officer Plotts to her home, following her arrest, to deliver to him the revolver with which the shooting was done.

Yesterday was the third day of the trial of Mrs. Van Ausdell on the charge of shooting with intent to kill Mrs. Viva Ijams on the evening of February 16, 1912, near Twenty-second and Leavenworth streets, because Mrs. Ijams and Mr. Van Ausdell had been intimate.

Regarding events of the day of the shooting Mrs. Van Ausdell's memory was extremely poor.

DEMOCRATS TO MAKE TREATY AN ELECTION ISSUE

Party Leaders Glad to Take Up League of Nations in Next Campaign; Feel Confident.

Chicago, May 28.—Describing the republican party as an organization which "complains and moves backward" and the peace treaty and the League of Nations covenant as "the greatest document of human liberty ever prepared," Chairman Homer S. Cummings, of the democratic national committee, today sounded the keynote for an aggressive presidential campaign in 1920.

Party leaders declared they welcomed the opportunity to make the peace treaty and the League of Nations covenant the issue in the forthcoming fight and expressed confidence of victory.

Congratulate Wilson. The committee adopted a resolution congratulating President Wilson on his work at Paris in drafting the treaty of peace and the League of Nations covenant and calling on the United States senate promptly to ratify the documents.

American Financial Interests Consider Russian Situation

New York, May 28.—American financial interests met today at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. to consider the Russian financial situation, particularly the payment of Russian external 6 1/2 per cent bonds, maturing June 18 next.

Both issues have been subject to violent fluctuations since the overthrow of the Russian monarchy, but recently they have shown a firmer definite policy or program was formulated because of the complex conditions still prevailing in that country and the inability of bankers to negotiate with any constituted or recognized authorities.

colors blend and the width of the stripes differ greatly. One length makes the whole skirt, and you need not remark that I'm no sylph, the material is so exceptionally wide.

"You know I started to buy the material for only one street dress. The new Trico in a walnut shade, was what I finally decided upon. This Trico is a cross between Jersey and Tricotee, but wears much better than either. It took a strong mind, my dear, to decide on one shade, as there was the newest Jap blue, a taupe, a rose, and an exquisite pale sand color. I'm going to have this lovely stuff made into a suit-dress."

"I bought a figured Georgette in silver gray for Mother; large rings were embroidered in the same shade. There were other pieces that I wanted so badly for myself, one of sand and navy blue, and another of navy blue and henna. Have you noticed how much they are combining those two shades now?"

"As a final deed of reparation for my extravagance (really the prices are very reasonable, but, of course, Jim won't see it that way) I bought some silk shirtings for him. The La Jerz with the stripes woven in has a texture that isn't often found in ready-made shirts. I also chose one of Crepe de Chine and another of a soft Sans Gene that is lovely in coloring."

"And since I am running to browns this spring, a lovely clinging crepe de meteor in panolis, simply bewitched me into buying it. This panolis is a new brown, very dark, between a nigger brown and a taupe."

"I've needed a separate plaid wool skirt all this spring and just found what I wanted today. The design is in blue and brown, a nine-inch plaid; now, that really is not as startling as it sounds—the
