Pleas Own Case and Invites Judge and Defense to Fish Fry

Ed. Kazmirski, riverside resident at the foot of Missouri avenue, pleaded his own case before Justice G. S. Collins yesterday and won.

The court allowed him $20 for towing the Boy Scouts' launch from a sandbar to the Kazmirski dock. The craft broke from its moorings at Gibson and drifted down stream to an island opposite Missouri avenue.

The scouts refused to pay Kazmirski for his services and they recovered the boat on a writ of replevin. The hearing resulted in an amicable settlement.

Kazmirski told the court that the Missouri is a government stream and he based his claim against the scouts on the laws of salvage. He contended that his claim of $25 was only nominal, considering his skill as a river man. He accepted the $20 and invited Justice Collins and the officers of the local council of Boy Scouts to a fish bake at his cottage.

Wife Says Relatives of Her Husband Cause Unhappiness

Mary Willuhn filed an answer and cross petition yesterday to petition of her husband, Edward, for a divorce miled a few weeks ago in district court alleging that her husband's sister and mother are the cause of their unhappiness. She says they lived in perfect harmony for several months after their marriage in January, 1917, until the mother and sister of her husband interfered and induced him to treat her cruelly.
