WILLARD STARTS EAST TO BEGIN TRAINING JUNE 4

Bob Edgren and Sparring Partner Accompany Champ From Los Angeles; Ex-Soldiers to Usher.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 28.—Jess Willard, champion heavyweight boxer, left here today for Toledo, O., where he will fight Jack Dempsey, July 4. Willard was accompanied by Walter Hemple, a sparring partner, and "Bob" Edgren, a sporting writer. Willard said he intended to stop over for one day at Lawrence, Kan., to see his wife and children, and from there would go to Toledo. According to Willard, his business representative, Ray Archer, now en route to Toledo, will arrive there in time to have all training arrangements for the champion completed on the latter's arrival. Four more sparring partners are to be engaged by Archer in the east, Willard said.

Ex-Soldiers Will Usher.
 Toledo, O., May 28.—Eight hundred former soldiers will be deputized as special police and serve as ushers for the heavyweight championship contest between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey in the Bayview Park arena here, July 4. Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest, announced today. These men have all seen service overseas as members of the 112th ammunition train and Batteries B and E of the 32d division. They will be armed and will be under the direct supervision of Mayor Schreiber and C. F. Wall, director of public safety.

My Heart and My Husband ADELE GARRISON'S New Phase of "Revelations of a Wife"

Why Dicky Said, "The Explanations Will Be Up to You."

"Miss Dean!" I echoed in amazement. "What?"

I broke off abruptly. Not for worlds would I ask my husband for any explanation of his surprising statement concerning my colleague in the teaching force of Bayview, although the revelation, casually though it was made, that he had seen the pretty, dashing girl in whom he had betrayed so much interest at the Stockbridge reception, was an unmistakable shock to me. But my knowledge of Dicky's volatile, careless nature, the memory of former mistakes of mine in my attitude toward his escapades, above all the recollection of Lillian's sage advice to me so often repeated, aided me in preserving an attitude of good-natured indifference toward the information Dicky had just given me. "She isn't my keeper," I said gaily, with a hasty shelving of my amazed attitude. "And my important business had nothing to do with the school. So as she wasn't on the train with me—she left on the train before mine—she could not possibly have known anything about my errand. I'm sorry. Next time I'll give her full particulars."

I kept my voice care free, mirthful, but I couldn't refrain from the sly reference at the end of my sentence. Dicky's face flushed, but he grinned reluctantly. "Think you're smart, don't you?" he muttered boyishly, then wheeled toward me, evidently bent upon explaining matters.

"I suppose I'd better trace me tracks, footstep by footstep, from the door of me studio to home or you'll be imagining all kinds of things," he began.

I held up my hand protestingly. "Maddy's Diplomacy."

"Oh, Dicky, please!" I said with a bored air. "When there are so many interesting things to talk about, why waste time explaining how you happened to run across one of my acquaintances?" I made the correction deliberately.

I knew, as I had known from the time of first seeing Bess Dean, that while I probably would have no cause to count her as an enemy, yet I could never call her friend. "Miss Dean," I continued, "frequently goes into the city directly after school, and comes out again on the early evening train. It is the most natural thing in the world that you should meet her. Tell me about that movie program at Cresthaven. Is it too late to go over? I believe if we hurry we could get there in time for the second run. We could take a taxi over and that'll be back. Then we'd have time for a cup of coffee if we wanted to after the performance."

I had about as much interest in a movie program at Cresthaven as I had in the ponderous discussion of the old theologians concerning the number of angels who could dance on the point of a needle, but my instinct recognized a tensely in the atmosphere surrounding my husband and me which I would have taken almost any means to loosen. To my surprise, Dicky showed distinct traces of embarrassment.

Dicky's Reasons.
 "Why, I guess we've got time enough!" he said. "But—well, you'll have to do the explaining to Miss Dean."

I took a firm grip on my temper and suppressed any indication of surprise.

"I'm the best little explainer in the state, probably in the country," I retorted gaily, "but I certainly will have to have an outline of what I'm to explain. If you'll just give it to me in words of one syllable—although perhaps Miss Dean will understand better than I do."

Dicky's face was a brick red by this time, but there was no possible word of my little speech which was obviously challenging, so he answered in as matter-of-fact manner as he could command.

"I suppose you know that Miss Dean lives in Cresthaven."

He paused for confirmation of his assertion.

"She has told me so," I returned sweetly, with an air of accepting nothing as truth unless it were proved to me.

"Oh,—" Dicky named a place far removed from Cresthaven and its present climate, then made a frantic grasp after calmness.

"On the train tonight she happened to mention the unusual excellence of the movie program at the Cresthaven theater, and wondered why we never came over there. I thought perhaps you'd like to go, and as she's such a pal of yours there was nothing else to do but to ask her to meet us and go with us to the show and some supper afterward. I didn't have her telephone number, so I couldn't explain to her when you didn't come, and now, if we go, the explanations will be up to you."

'Bolshevik Element' Caused Riot at Yale, According to Mayor

New Haven, Conn., May 28.—The riot which kept this city in an uproar most of last night was attributed today by Mayor Fitzgerald to "bolshevik elements," which had taken advantage of a minor clash between discharged service men and Yale undergraduates, caused by unconfirmed reports that Yale men had hissed the 102d regiment band. The police reports showed five men hurt, two by bullets, none seriously, and about a dozen detained pending inquiry. Considerable window glass in Yale buildings was broken and a few store windows were shattered. Many citizens were either knocked down or roughly jostled.

The students' council today, in a statement after expressing admiration of Yale men for the men who served under the colors, especially the 102d men, expressed the opinion that neither service men nor students were responsible for last night's outbreak. It believed that other elements planned and controlled the affair.

Dario Resta Joins French Ballot Team for Indianapolis Race

Indianapolis, May 28.—Dario Resta, the famous Anglo-Italian who ruled as betting favorite for the international 500-mile Liberty sweepstakes race on the Indianapolis speedway, May 31, prior to the withdrawal of the English Sunbeam team from that contest, has cast his lot with the French Ballot combination, composed of Rene Thomas, Albert Guyot, Louis Wagner and Paul Bablot, that ranks as the most formidable contestant in the field for Indianapolis championship honors at the present writing.

Following the defection of the Sunbeam combination, Resta was swamped with invitations to join rival camps in the big Hoosier classic. The shrewd Italian, however, always has an eye to the main chance, and his selection of the Ballot contingent is final proof, if such were needed, that this galaxy of European speed stars is the most dangerous among all Indianapolis 500-mile contenders.

The general manager of John Pesek, "Baldy" Slattery, announced that in the event of his man being the victor in the match at Gordon, Neb., on June 14, he wanted a match for John with Champion Earl Caddock and would post a forfeit of $1,000 to bind the match and if Melady and Caddock wanted it, he would let the money go as a side bet.

The farmer boy had a hard tussle with Chris Sorenson at Lincoln, Monday night, but he won, which Mart declares is the main thing, and he surely expects him to do the same thing on June 14. Manager Mart told me that he thought Caddock would, or at least should, give Pesek a chance at the title. He has met Zbyzsko, Lewis, Stecher and all the rest of the big bunch and he thinks that John should be given next chance.

The Shelton boy's manager certainly talks in a business-like vein, offering to post a good-sized forfeit and let it go as a side bet if the title-holder and his manager want it that way. He will be right after the champion as soon as the result of the bout with Zbyzsko next month becomes known and will make him agree to a match or admit that he fears the farmer boy.

Peters vs. Gana.

The man who does the business for Charlie Peters, Jack Lewis, told Al Fiori last week that Peters would meet anybody that he could get for him, early in June and last night Fiori closed with John Gana of Firth, Neb., for a match, probably on June 10. Gana at present is acting as John Pesek's wrestling partner and announces that he will be in fine shape by June 10. He will prove no "set-up" for Peters, either, for he has met some of the best men in the mat game, Champion Earl Caddock among them. He lost to Caddock at Fontenelle, Ia., in 45 minutes, three years ago. He has beaten Pete Fromme and Chris Sorenson and a number of other good men. He should give Peters a real good go and Fiori is to be congratulated for getting a match of this caliber for the Council Bluffs auditorium. Peters has been promised another match with Pesek if he can dump Gana.

Mayor Finds $10 Note.

Alton, Ill., May 28.—Mayor Sauvage believes in the motto "pick up the scraps" in any city clean-up process. Directing a gang of laborers here in such an undertaking he himself stopped and picked up small bits of paper. Unfolding one he discovered a $10 bill. Its owner was later found.

7,000 MILES ON SPRAGUE TIRES

OFFICERS THE AMERICAN SHALE REFINING COMPANY
 REDUCERS OF OIL SHALE AND SHALE OIL
 FIRST NATIONAL BANK BUILDING
 DENVER, COLO.
 May 1st, 1919

Sprague Tire & Rubber Co., Omaha, Nebr.

Dear Mr. Sprague:

Being the owner of an Omaha made car, the Douglas Eight, I decided to try out some Omaha made tires and see if they were as satisfactory as my Omaha made car.

I purchased two 35x4 1/2 Non-skid Tires from your factory last October, and have been driving them continuously since that time. I drove from Omaha up through the Sand Hills of North Western Nebr, over the worst roads I ever saw, from there to Denver and have been driving over good, bad and indifferent roads, through the snow and mud and over frozen ground, a mileage of over 7,000 miles, and my tires are today in good condition.

I have been driving cars for the past twelve years and during that time have purchased almost every tire I have ever seen advertised and I want to state to you that the "best investment I have ever made in tires" was when I purchased the SPRAGUE TIRES.

One of the tires has never been off the car and the other one was removed to fix a puncture, caused from running over a very large spike on a culvert. You are making the right kind of a tire and putting the material in it that will establish a reputation for your tire, that will, in a very short time, make it the best known tire in this section of the country.

Very truly yours,

W. C. Jackson

Such commendations as this from Mr. Jackson and others prove beyond a doubt that
