VIOLENCE MARKS WINNIPEG STRIKE FOR FIRST TIME

Police Called Into Action to Quell Sympathizers, Who Endeavor to Enter Building.

Winnipeg, June 2.—Violence by strike sympathizers in a parade of 2,000 men today marked the eighteenth day of the general strike here. For the first time since the strike began Winnipeg policemen were called into action and demonstrators who attempted to force their way into the Board of Trade building were checked by policemen, detectives and volunteers.

The paraders first marched to the provincial parliament building, for the third time since Friday, and demanded the resignation of Premier T. C. Norris and his cabinet on the grounds of "incompetency." Premier Norris announced he had not receded from his previous stand, that he would do nothing regarding provincial legislation which the union men are demanding until the sympathetic strike is called off. Howard Lloyd, a business man who stood on the curb wearing a Canadian flag on his coat, refused to remove the flag and several of the marchers attacked him. He proudly displayed the emblem still on his torn coat after the melee.

Important Developments.

The most important strike development today from a conciliation standpoint was an announcement by the railroad brotherhood executives, attempting to mediate the controversy, that they had transmitted to the executives of the Winnipeg Metal Trades council an offer of settlement which had been received from the heads of Winnipeg's three leading iron works.

Premier Norris and his cabinet were requested to resign by speakers of the delegation of returned soldiers, strikers and strike sympathizers, who took possession of the provincial legislative chamber for the third time today. Premier Norris told the crowd that he would not give up his office, but that he would use every effort to obtain legislation which might tend to improve industrial conditions in Manitoba.

A few of the commercial telegraphers who have been on strike returned today, it was announced at one of the offices.

John Barrett Kills Self, Thinking He Was to Be Left Homeless

John Barrett, an umbrella mender, 50 years old, shot and killed himself at 8:45 last night when his niece, Mrs. F. O. Flew, seventy-fourth and Main streets, Benson, told him that she and her family were to move today, and leave him, as he thought, without a home.

Barrett locked himself in a room of his niece's home, shot twice into the floor and then sent a bullet through his brain. Police believe that he discharged the two bullets into the floor to see what effect it would have on his relatives and as they, thinking he was pretending, failed to go to his side, he killed himself.

A doctor was sent from Central station when the shooting was reported. Barrett was dead when the doctor arrived. The doctor said Barrett's wound was instantly fatal. At midnight, police had been unable to locate any of the county attorneys and the body still lay in a pool of blood on the floor where it had fallen.

Monroe Salisbury in "The Blinding Trail" has a thrilling photoplay of the north woods country at the Brandeis theater, starting Wednesday. The picture will run continuously from 11 to 11. Monroe plays the part of "Big Jim" McKenzie, who is blinded when he collides with a tree while trying to avoid injuring his employer's daughter. The girl is infatuated with him and marries him, though he is a rough lumberjack. Later she looks about for diversion with other men when her blind husband tires her. The play will be shown Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Sessie Hayakawa's newest photodrama is "His Debt."

Among the most interesting players in the cast of "The Unpardonable Sin" which is being shown at the Boyd theater, are a group of particularly clever children, including Masters Wesley Barry and Bobbie Connolly.

Niles Welch plays the second male lead in Cecil B. De Mille's Artercraft production, "For Better, For Worse," now at the Rialto. Elliott Dexter has the leading male role, with Gloria Swanson playing opposite him.

Two famous beauties support Wallace Reid in Paramount's "Valley of the Giants." Grace Darmond, who has appeared opposite Earl Williams lately, and Kay Laurel, of Follies fame, are the dainty trio.

An exact reproduction of California's famous penitentiary, San Quentin prison near San Francisco, was built at Universal City, recently, for the taking of scenes in "The Chatterbox." Priscilla Dean's latest crook melodrama written specially for her by Bayard Veiller. Under the direction of Rollin Sturgeon, assisted by the playwright, the story is being speedily filmed. Francis George Melford, who directed Ethel Clayton in Paramount's "Men, Women, and Money," departed from the usual procedure of set designing by using an exact reproduction of the hallway of his own home for one of the sets.

"Square Deal Sanderson," William S. Hart's coming Artercraft picture, is rapidly nearing completion. Billie Rhodes has finished "In Search of Arcady," a story of plain old-fashioned people.

Mary Miles Minter has another charming drama, "A Bachelor's Wife," with plenty of mixups and laughs.

AT THE THEATERS

OMAHA extended a cordial greeting to Henry Miller, Ruth Chatterton and their select company of associates at the Brandeis theater last night when "A Marriage of Convenience" was offered in all of its picturesque costumes and its bright and epigrammatic lines.

This four-act comedy by Alexander Dumas, and adapted by Sydney Grundy, has a charm which takes firm hold of the auditor and carries him on from scene to scene with its scintillating dialogue. The humor is as delicate as the costumes which Miss Chatterton wears of the period of 1750. The story does not tax the mental processes, and yet there is enough of a plot to hold the interest until the end, when the Comtesse De Candale discovers that she loves her husband, the comte.

Mr. Miller, as the Comte De Candale, offers an artistic interpretation of the male sartorial refinements of the days of Louis XV, this eminent actor is himself a picture. Miss Chatterton is the real comtesse of the young woman's day dreams. She is dainty and pretty and is the admired of all who have the privilege of seeing her in this series of costumes which she wears.

The use of one scene for the four acts of the play sustains Mr. Miller's contention that scenery does not make the play. The subtle humor of this comedy is enough to justify itself to the discriminating attendant. The story reveals to people of this day and age that human nature was not much different in the year 1750 A. D. and that when Louis XV was holding down the throne there were eternal triangles and quadrangles, and a woman even then was not mistress of her own heart. There is no attempt at any time in this delightful comedy to force the action for mere dramatic effect.

Lucile Watson won deserved approbation for her clever acting in the role of Marlon who is counselor and maid to the comte. More versed in the ways of the world and of the ways of men, she teaches the comte a few lessons in the art of flirting. She tells her mistress that "flirting is the art of making a man love you and then of getting rid of him when you are tired of him."

Charles Trowbridge, as Chevalier De Valcos has a nice conception of the temperament of a man who loves a young woman who has married for convenience as in the case of the comtesse. The chevalier maintains a proprietary interest in the comtesse and when the right time arrives he gracefully retires from the scene. The comte, a man who has had an affair with a marquise, four times married and once a widow, comes to the realization that he loves his wife who tried the never-failing ruse of jealousy.

David Glassford made an excellent general. The play may be accepted as an artistic triumph and it was so received by a crowded house last night. Matinee and evening performances today will close the present engagement.

The Florida Four, colored quartet appearing at the Empress theater, are creating a veritable riot with their harmony singing and comedy. The oriental dancing number by Emma Francis and her Arabs furnishes exceptional entertainment.

COURT UPHOLDS INCREASES MADE IN RAIL RATES

Advance in Telegraph and Telephone Charges Made by Burleson Are Also Sustained.

Washington, June 2.—Railroad freight and passenger rate increases made by the railroad administration last June were today upheld by the supreme court.

North Dakota supreme court decrees enjoining the Northern Pacific railroad and Director General Hines from enforcing an order of the railroad administration increasing rates in that state were reversed. The court also set aside lower court decrees which hold that under section 15 of the railroad control act, existing intrastate rates remained in effect as lawful police regulations.

Increased telephone and telegraph rates put into effect under an order of Postmaster General Burleson, were upheld today by the supreme court.

The court held that under the joint resolution by which the wire systems were taken over by the government there was authority for interfering with intrastate rates. The opinions in all of the wire cases were unanimous.

More Mileage Adjustment on Goodrich Tires

Fabrics--6,000 Miles
Cords--8,000 Miles

To automobile owners and drivers—to Goodrich Dealers—the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company herewith declares a more-mileage adjustment on Goodrich Tires—6,000 miles for SAFETY TREADS, and 8,000 miles for SILVERTOWN CORDS.

Fix these new Goodrich Adjustment figures firmly in your mind—6,000 miles for SAFETY TREADS—8,000 miles for SILVERTOWNS—instead of the 3,500 and 5,000 miles respectively heretofore in force.

This new adjustment stands back of all Goodrich Tires, including tires already purchased in the hands of user or dealer.

Goodrich Tires in actual usage on road and pavement are today unfolding such matchless mileage, regularly in excess of adjustment basis, that Goodrich knows it has the strongest, most durable tires the rubber industry has produced.

The Goodrich adjustment mileage is increased because Goodrich knows the mileage in its tires, and it wants to give every motorist a share in their economy, and all-around benefits.

Go to a Goodrich Dealer, and buy a Goodrich Tire—or buy four Goodrich Tires—sure that with fair and square usage a Safety Tread will render you at least 6,000 miles; and a Silvertown Cord at least 8,000.
