FOUNDED BY EDWARD ROSEWATER

VICTOR ROSEWATER, EDITOR THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY, PROPRIETOR

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Associated Press of which The Bee is a member, is exclusively entitled to the use for publication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper, and also the local news published herein. All rights of publication of our special dispatches are also reserved.

Tork-286 Fifth Are.

leago-1730-23 Steger Bld.

Louis-New B'nk of Commerce Council Bluffs-14 N Main St.

Labington-1211 G St.

Omaha-71e Bee Bldg.

South Omaha-2218 N St.

Limcoln-Little Building.

APRIL CIRCULATION Daily 65.830—Sunday 63.444 Average circulation for the month subscribed and sworn to by E. R. Ragan, Circulation Manager.

Subscribers leaving the city should have The Bee mailed to them. Address changed as often as requested.

Still registration to participate in a bond election is hardly a fair test of the fair ones.

Henry Ford is pulling a lot of free advertising, no matter how the verdict of the jury may come in.

Omaha is ready to go forward by leaps and bounds if all interested in its progress will only

Organized labor has its problem, too, to keep the law-abiding element in control and hold the turbulent, mob-violence bunch in check,

A League of Nations against anarchy might look good to a lot of people not sure about the other league.

"Cash and Carry" may work all right for groceries and dry goods, but it sets too narrow limits to a municipal ice plant.

Remember that the labor unrest is not local but nation-wide and world-wide. Readjustment has always involved industrial friction after every great war.

If any copies of the treaty have been carelessly left lying around, depend upon some thrifty person to pick them up and market them on Wall street.

The Grocers' and Butchers' association, otherwise known as "the Rainmakers," must have overlooked a bet in timing their first picnic of the season.

Uncle Sam's national debt has reached the high water mark of $25,900,000,000, which is but world 25 years ago.

No service insignia has been provided for sailors. Wake up, Mr. Secretary of the Navy, and vindicate the right of the jackies to equal treatment with the Sammies.

Large amounts of counterfeit American money are reported in circulation in Soviet Russia. We might try to get even in kind if Russian rubles were only worth counterfeiting.

Are two cups of coffee too much to drink during the day? This question is propounded by a reader to a health expert, who gives a guarded answer. Why not tell him it depends on what else he can get to drink?

But where are our state railway commisions to come in, if congress fails to restore their rate-regulating powers, along with the restoration of the power of the interstate commerce body? Must they keep on inventing excuses for continued existence?

It's a safe prediction that the strongest opposition to ratifying the equal suffrage amendment will be found in the stronghold of the democratic party in the south-in fact, the south is the democratic stronghold solely by reason of the disfranchisement of a large part of the

Of course, any inquiry into the conduct of the war instituted by congress will be denounced as "partisan" by those who don't want to be investigated and to whom the plain unvarnished truth will be highly distasteful. Those who have nothing to cover up or apologize for will have no objection to investigation by anybody.

French "premium" bonds are being advertised for sale in this country, which look very much like a good old-fashioned lottery. An American "enterprise" on the same lines would likely run up against an order debarring from he use of the mails, but Mr. Burleson is doubtless too busy playing peanut politics to give attention to such a little thing at this time.

"Governor Lowden's program of administrative reform, working the abolishment of an infinity of boards and commissions and what not and the establishment of a few efficient state departments," says the Chicago Tribune, "leaves a few things to be desired; chief among them the removal of the unwieldy and unbusinesslike state board of equalization and the formation of a small competent state tax commission." Yes, and we'll get to that also some day here in Nebraska.

Mystery Easy of Solution

A regretably large number of people in this country share the inability of the allied representatives in Paris to see why the Germans should complain so bitterly about the terms of the peace treaty. The problem is one not at all difficult, really, and even here, in pacifist, pro-German, I. W. W., Sinn Fein, and bolshevist circles, its solution was instant and the right sort of talk about the cruel, imperialistic tendency of the allies began at once.

The grievance of the Germans is a very large and solid one. They made and carried out with characteristic efficiency plans by which, in defeat as in victory, they would gain the great and lasting advantages of an industrial sort which, as Germans, they ought to haveadvantages which have an economic necessity for them just as the violation of Belgium was a military necessity. Who but they would have been foresighted enough to blow up all the French coal mines and to destroy or take home all the Belgian machinery?

But are they to be allowed to gather the natural and well-eared fruits of wisdom? No! The offered treaty explicitly and intentionally and entirely robs Germany of those fruits and imposes on it a part of the loss it expected its neighbors to bear! Hence the German moans of grief, the German howls of rage, and hence are those moans and howls so sympathetically here echoed by all of our parlor socialists, and by all the people "We are not friends of Germany, STILL THE BOURBON DEMOCRACY.

If evidence were wanted that the democrats in control of the party at Washington still reflect the same old bourbon democracy so often revealed in their party's history, it is offered by the amendment to the suffrage resolution proposed by the senator from Mississippi. This southern democrat, who holds has seat solely by reason of the lawless disfranchisement of more than one-half of those who, under the federal constitution, are qualified voters of his state, would limit the benefits of the proposed equal franchise to white citizens, and thus go back to ante-bellum days when the color of a person's skin determined his civil status and a black man had no right which a white man was bound to respect.

True, in Mississippi and many other southern states, the constitutional guarantees of equality, regardless of race, color or previous condition of servitude, are notoriously and flagrantly nullified by all sorts of cunningly devised artifices, but that the United States, that has just fought out the battle for freedom for the whole world, should again by writing color line into its fundamental law, go back to the days of slavery, is unthinkable. That such a thing should be seriously proposed by a democratic member of the United States senate is enough. How humiliating it must be to democrats who would have people believe that theirs is the party of enlightenment and progress and what an eye-opener to misguided folks persuaded that the democratic party of today had shaken off the bourbonism of its past!

Genesis of a Great Institution.

Nearly all American visitors to London are familiar with the enormous block of buildings in Tottenhan Court Road, which was erected some years ago for the general offices of the Y. M. C. A. and at the same time to serve as a permanent memorial to the late Sir George Williams, the founder of the association. Many people who passed the bronze bust of Sir George, which stands just within the main entrance to the buildings, thought they detected an added benevolence in the features of the illustrious philanthropist today, for this was the 75th birthday of the great organization of which he was the founder, and which he helped to develop into a society of world-wide scope and in-

It was on June 6, 1844, that the Y. M. C. A. first came into existence. On the evening of that date half a dozen young clerks and shop assistants gathered in Williams' bedroom in a modest lodging house in the West End of London and at his invitation took the initial steps a trifle under the total of the public debt of the toward the organization of "a mutual improvement society and a young men's missionary so-

> That the organization of such modest beginning would some day spread its helpful influence to all parts of the world, that it would aid in the education and uplift of hundreds of thousands of young men of many different nationalities, that its services would be no less distinguished in time of war than in time of peace -these were things not even dreamed of by the founders of the movement. The young men, including Williams himself, were employes of a drapery establishment in London, and their most ambitious hope was that their society and its work might be extended to the employes of other drapery houses in the metropolis.

Within a few months after the Y. M. C. A. was first organized it was found necessary to hire a large assembly room to accommodate the weekly meetings. Early the following year the first paid secretary was appointed, and larger quarters obtained. The association continued to grow on an unprecedented scale. Popular lecture courses were arranged and various other features added to the work. The association spread throughout the United Kingdom, then to the continent and to America and the most distant British colonies. In 1855 Williams was present at the first international conference of the organization, which met at Paris, and formulated plans on which a world-wide society was built up.

Lord Shaftesbury, with whom Williams became closely associated, accepted the presidency in 1851. On his death in 1886 Williams was induced to accept the presidency. In 1894 the jubilee of the organization was celebrated in London, when Queen Victoria knighted Williams and the freedom of the city of London was conferred on him. The founder lived to be 85 years old. He is buried in the crypt of St. Paul's, where a magnificent memorial has been

Call It the Roosevelt Canal.

All sorts of suggestions have been made for a fitting memorial to the late former President Roosevelt, but what to us seems to present the most powerful appeal of all is that sponsored by Senator Calder of New York as embodied in a bill introduced into congress by him to change the name of the Panama canal to the Roosevelt canal. As explained by the senator, "My bill does not carry any appropriation, for none is necessary. The mere renaming of the great ditch after the one man who made it possible, will be sufficient to carry out the idea."

Every one at all familiar with the career of Colonel Roosevelt knows that while he did many wonderful things in many widely separated fields for which he will be remembered, the Panama canal stands out above all as a permanent, tangible monument to his tremendous energy and far-seeing vision. It exemplifies particularly his precept for "getting things done" and getting them done by the most direct route, even though so doing might not comport with the niceties of fashionable etiquite. On the other side, there is no compelling reason why the water way that joins the two oceans should have to bear the same name as the isthmus which separates them. We may be sure that had the Panama canal been renamed the Roosevelt canal after him during his lifetime. he would have esteemed it the greatest honor that could have been conferred.

The referendum is a two-edged sword. Its ostensible purpose is to enable the people to head off vicious legislation which trustless lawmakers attempt to put over. It can also be used, however, by interested parties to suspend and defeat meritorious measures enacted for the public good. It is up to the individual citizen to distinguish between the right and the wrong use of the referendum before he consents to affix his signature to the petition papers.

Judging from remarks. Austrian critics of the treaty are not stuck on President Wilson's 14

A Survey of America

This is a report of a tour of observation made for the London Times by its American

'Having completed my 10,000- mile trip through all parts of the United States, visited of the largest cities and the majority of the states, and talked to editors of all political parties, business men, labor leaders, and persons in all walks of life, I feel warranted in describing American sentiment on current ques-

First I shall deal with the league of nations and the peace treaty. Nine-tenths of the peo- much-discussed federal prohibition ple have not carefully analyzed the covenant and the treaty; among one-tenth there is division of served in congress since 1902. It opinion. The overwhelming majority of the was in that year that he was elected people are not acquainted with the larger questions involved, but they approve of both documents on the ground that the present war is ended by them and the effort to prevent further wars begun.

Blind faith in Mr. Wilson's leadership among the masses arises from his reputation for the by profession. He was educated at pacific settlement of world disputes. The same the University of Texas and the Yale masses who elected him in 1916 because "he Law school, receiving his A. B. dekept us out of the war" are ready to approve of the league as a step in the same direction. The politicians are still wrangling in Washington about amending the peace treaty, but if that process means thy delay public opinion will denounce the effort and compel ratification. The proposed agreement to come to the aid of France in case of an unprovoked attack by Germany arouses little enthusiasm. Though the sentiment of affection for France prevails, nevertheless, the American people is unwilling to sign a blank cheque to any nation; it wants to judge the circumstances and facts of every quarrel before agreeing to employ armed forces. Opinion may change when Mr. Wilson explains the details of the proposed agreement, but the indications thus far seem to be unfavorable.

Mr. Wilson's Prestige.

The second matter I shall discuss is the prestige of Mr. Wilson. Unquestionably Amerca is still irritated over his long absence abroad. Most people are unable to understand why his mission was not delegated to others, though this feeling will undoubtedly diminish, if not disappear, when he returns and tackles neglected domestic problems. My observations in America after comng home from the Paris conference showed the people of the United States to be hardly any better informed upon European politics than before the war.

The Wilson cabinet is denounced by people of every section, including the south, which is a stronghold of the democratic party. For instance, Texas seems almost unanimous in condemning Mr. Burleson for his handling of the telephone rates question. It is generally expected that the president will have the hardest fight of his career on his return to Washington, and it is thought that he will begin to build up immense strength for himself by dispensing with the services of burdensome cabinet members.

The Presidency.

The suspicion that Mr. Wilson may stand for ted in many of the important battles a third term of office has much to do with the of the war and was severely wounded lack of faith on the part of some people in his at Shiloh. Many years ago he took motives. It is generally agreed that if he would up his residence in Washington, announce definitely that he had done with where he has since been engaged politics and call upon the senate to abandon in writing a history and collecting politics as well, the people would follow his military records for the War deleadership. The country is more or less irritated over the professional politicians and the beginning of the presidential campaigns. A pronouncement from Mr. Wilson raising him above the political turmoil would give him an incalculable increase of strength with public opinion.

Just now foreign policy is not being discussed by the various aspirants to office, owing to the uncertainty of the situation in the senate. My canvass of the sentiment of both parties shows that Gen. Leonard Wood is the man most talked of by the republicans and Mr. McAdoo, the people have well nigh forgotten the former secretary of the treasury, the man his partiality for the sea, and the crime? Greater because by its namost desired by the democrats everywhere for fact that in his young days it was nomination. This, of course, is subject to change during the next 20 months.

The present outlook for the republicans in the presidential campaign of 1920 is very bright, but the American people will scrutinize carefully the performances of republicans in the next congress. There is evidence that the democrats are preparing to accuse the republicans of efforts to obstruct and delay the ratification of the peace treaty, but in the end, judging by sentiment in all parts of the country, the republican congress will not delay the signing of the peace treaty unless other parliaments are the same thing. Many conservative minded republicans want to see the treaty and the covenant of the league out of the way so as to enable the presidential campaign to be gauged on other lines.

Business Conditions.

The third subject of my report is business Generally speaking, America is Retail and wholesale business is exceptionally brisk. Some parts of the country such as the Rocky mountains, are adversely af fected by the closing down of copper mines, due to the falling price of copper. Also the Pacific coast shipyards being unable, until last week, to accept contracts for foreign building naturally caused much apprehension and business became stagnant. This condition has been partly relieved by the announcement that the shipyards may accept foreign contracts, though it is debatable if American vards can compete with foreign builders owing to the high scale of My fourth subject is the industrial situation The number of bolshevists and anarchists is not greater than it was a decade ago, but this group s now noisier and more anxious to take advantage of such discontent as grows out of disturbed world conditions. Conservative labor leaders seem everywhere to have control of the situation and to be as anxious to keep extremists out of power as the employers.

On the whole it seems as if the situation were tending towards an understanding between of a new kind of concrete, made the conservative union leaders and the employ ers and manufacturers. Incidentally, much in-terest is being taken by business men everywhere in improving the living and working conditions of their employes, and also in retaining the present scale of wages so far as possible Much encouragement is given to the movement among working people to build their own

The Day We Celebrate.

Madame Rejane, for many years a leading actress of the French stage, born in Paris 62

Samuel Dickie, president of Albion college and a noted prohibition leader, born in Canada Rt. Rev. Michael J. Hoban, Catholic bishop Scranton, born at Waterloo, N. J., 66 years

Dr. James A. . Kelso, president of Western Theological seminary, born in India 46 years

Frances Starr, a prominent actress of the American stage, born at Oneont, a N. Y., 33

Thirty Years Ago in Omaha.

The secretary of war has decided to purchase a new site for Fort Omaha, a tract of 540 acres about eight miles from Omaha, which can be had for about $67,000. F. L. Ames of Boston has purchased two lots near Sixteenth and Farnam. On them he will build an eight-story building for occupancy by the S. P. Morse company. Permit was granted J. L. Kennedy to build a two-story frame residence on Thirty-second street, near Woolworth; estimated value, $5,500. "Ye Last Daye of Ye Old Tyme Skule" was given by the young people of First Congrega-

People You Ask About

Information About Folks in the Public Eye Will Be Given in This Column in Answer to Readers' Questions. Your Name Will Not Be Printed.

Let The Bee Tell You.

A Sponsor of Prohibition.

J. U.—In partial answer to your question it may be said that Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas is widely known as the chief sponsor of the to the house of representatives to fill out the term of his father, John L. Sheppard, and after more than 10 years of service in this post was similarly chosen to complete the unexpired term of Senator Joseph W. Bailey. Mr. Sheppard is a lawyer gree from the former in 1895 and his LL. M. from the latter in 1898. In addition to leading the fight in the senate for prohibition, he has also been a staunch advocate of the proposed woman suffrage amendment.

British Labor Representative. James Henry Thomas, M. P., who soon to make a tour of the United States and Canada in the interest of the international labor cause, is regarded as the leading representament. As organizing secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, his position is an in-fluential one. Mr. Thomas began work as an errand boy when 9 years old, later he became an engine clean.

"And there are cruel monsters. old, later he became an engine cleaner, and rose to be a fireman, and then engineer on the Great Western railway. He was made town councilor of Swindon, and became president of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants in 1910, the same year in which he was first returned to Parliament. During the war he as a staunch supporter of the allied cause, and threw all his energy into the work of carrying on the war to the end.

Southern Soldier.

Replying to your question regarding surviving confederate officers from the civil war: There are there were 464 general officers com missioned by the Confederate States of America during the conflict of 1861-5. Of these survivors we are able to give you only one name at the present time, Brig. Gen. Marcus J. Wright, who is in his 88th year. General Wright is a native of Tennessee and entered the army as a private. Wthin 12 months after his enlistment he had risen to the rank of brigadier general. He participa-

King George V. Fifty-four years old June 3 was leorge V, "by the grace of Gd, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India." His majesty is now in the 10th year of his reign. Dur- crime greater than that committed ing the last few years he has appeared so frequently in khaki that on Fort Sumter on that memorable the navy rather than the army that called him. An amusing story of his navy days associates him with a difficult to contend against, yet no keen sense of humor and a healthy appetite. He was breakfasting upon the Dreadnought, and the allowance of ham and eggs was meager. Prince George, as he was then, sent for the steward, who responded flurriedly and nervously and with many "your royal highness." "I don't want so much of your royal highness," said the prince. "I want ham and eggs."

An Empress in Exile. Twenty-seven years ago last nonth in the Italian province of ucca was born a little princess who was destined to play in later years a unique role in the great European war drama. The little princess was Zita of Parma, who later was to become Empress Zita of Austria. What a strange fate has been hers From the quiet of a convent school at Zangbert to the brilliant salons of Vienna, to the imperial throne and the retreat in Switzerland, spans the career of this young woman of 27, who began life as a member of family long deprived of all semlance of royalty except the name. attained one of the most exalted poitions in Europe, and who is likely spend the remainder of her life exile. Those who are inclined toward superstition may see some connection between the ill fate that has overtaken the beautiful young empress and the fact that she is the ## 13th child of the late duke of Parma. FROM HERE AND THERE.

An elephant can pick up a needle with its trunk.

One pound of phosphorous will supply heads for 1,000,000 matches. Rembrandt, the great painter, knew the Bible by heart from end to

In England houses are being built principally from slag and seaweed. The socalled cork legs do not owe their name to their composition, but to the fact that their inventor was a

England is now the only country of which possesses an upper house parliament composed entirely of hereditary peers.

DAILY CARTOONETTE I'LL TIE FIDO TO THE REAR

OF THIS AUTOMOBILE WHILE GO INTO THE STORE!

Little Folks' Corner

DREAMLAND ADVENTURE

By DADDY.

Peggy's Rash Wish.
DEGGY was almost dozing over a tale she had been reading. wish I could go to Story-Book Land," she murmured, set tling herself back comfortably in her porch chair and looking up at the along a bit faster. there came unbidden to her lips the ting joggled to pieces," protested had previously summoned the speed. Mighty Bronze Genie: "Wisherame, in the wink of an eve." than the Mighty Bronze Genie stood salaaming before her. "Wisherame, wisheramy, your wish has come true in the wink of an eye! Whither away, fair Prin-

"To Story-Book Land!" answered ful valley on the other side. Peggy, promptly, her drowsy feeling passing away. The Mighty Bronze Genie straightened up quickly and a look of alarm came into his eyes. "No, no, fair Princess! There are nany dangers in Story-Book Land." "But there are heroes and heroines and princesses and beautiful damsels and fairies there," argued wicked kings, ugly witches, hungry wolves, and evil ogres," declared the Mighty Bronze Genie. "Home is a much safer place." "But I want adventure," urged

"Your wish is my law," said the Mighty Bronze Genie sadly. ."Hang on tight! This warning was needed, for sud-front—just like a Japanese jinriki- Turk surrounded by attendants and sha. The Genie got between the slaves. With a shudder of dread Wooster on the League.

Silver Creek, Neb., June 3 .- To

he Editor of The Bee: In Washington news of June 1, it is said that immediately on his return to America President Wilson will call a conference "for the purpose of discussing plans for the adoption of the league," or, in other words, for forcing the league down the throats

Now, that looks very innocent,

does it not? And yet the thing proposed would be a blow at one of government, namely: That we have three co-ordinate departments of government, neither of which must,

in any manner, interfere with the duties, powers or prerogatives properly pertaining to any other department. This is plain and well understood, but how many will stop to think that if the president should do that he would be committing a

by the man who ordered the firing

ture it is not easily apprehended; its legitimate effects are not so manifest and striking, and therefore are more less destructive of democratic government. The fact that from the beginning of his first administration

Wilson has been continually committing such offenses, and all, as he would have us believe, from motives inspired by a lofty patriotism,

would not lessen the enormity, but,

Perhaps I may be pardoned for here stating for the possible benefit of some thoughtless persons another well known fact, namely, that the president has no right to attempt to force the hands of the senate to approve a treaty-no more right than verdict as to the guilt or innocence

American wants peace at the ex-pense of our own independence as

If the league of nations' covenant

should be ratified by the senate.

which in my opinion it never will be, the United States should be made a mandatory and put under charge of some such illustrious sov-

the queen of the Cannibal Islands

until such time as we might become Immortality.

Hancock, Ia., May 28.—To the Editor of The Bee: A priest on immortality, infidels and agnostics

should not go unanswered, his state ments being malicious and misleading if not false, especially to those who are in the habit of allowing the clergy to think for them, and they are not a few. Why? Because the infidel and agnostic does believe in every scientific fact, because the infidels and agnostics are not dishonest skeptics, but seekers for the God and immortality, backed fitted for self-government. CHARLES WOOSTER.

ereign as the sultan of Zanzibar or sheriff to try to influence a jury's

We all want peace, but no good rather, aggravate it.

of a prisoner.

nation

the foundation principles of

of an unwilling senate.

trot. They bumped down the steps, swirled around the corner, and jogged out into the country.

very first bump. After a time the Genie turned (In this story Peggy and Billy make a gan to climb rocky, forest-covered bills. The story Peggy and Billy make a gan to climb rocky, forest-covered bills.

cried. "I've never seen this place before."

wisheramy, may my wish come true Red Beard's wedding," he panted.

"He is Blue Beard's brother," gasped the Genie, jerking the cart over a mass of boulders at the top of the hill and starting at full speed down a slope that led into a beauti-thrill of alarm. "Ten times as cruel!" replied the Genie. "That's why he is going to marry 10 wives.." This astonishing news so startled Peggy that she almost bounded out of the cart. "Stop!" she ordered, "I've changed my mind. I don't want to go to Story-Book Land."

passed the border, and am now under the spell of Red Beard's powerful magic. I can't turn back.

"Take me to Story-Book rushed down the steep hill, his pace growing more and more reckless. And, looking ahead, Peggy saw what seemed to be drawing him, a great castle set amid towering trees at denly Peggy found her chair mount- the edge of a forest. On the lawn ed on two wheels with thills out in in front of the castle sat a swarthy truth and have reached a satisfactory conclusion such as given mortals to know. Other communication has proved a dismal failure. Neither has the least worthy saint done more for the world than the greatest infidel thinker. Then, how misleading must be the declaration of a priest

and yet how cunning, to ask leniency

for Ingersoll, putting the blame (as though blame there must be) upon his bigotted father. Beware, take care! There shall not always be darkness to shadow. Better that a

I admit that Taft and Incersoll

would have fared better in worldly things had they affirmed the deity

of Christ, unscientific though it be

"Though they slay me yet will serve Him." "A man is a man for a' that" (policy). The periodic cycle of evolution is returning. Then what of the slaver? Then we will have a press where others than sect dare to enter. The scientific fact of God and immortality is the property of the infidel and agnostic, whereby they attain to a hope, faith and belief. Says he (a priest): "If a man

"If a dog die shall it live again? If a tree die shall it live again?

Science says everything that is, al ways was, and we infer always will be, making destruction or annihila-tion an absurdity. God and immortality conclusive. Are we to cease

our scientific researchs; our inves-tigations along the lines of physics

because it is the death knell of

And to him who is trying to find a place for his god in the peace treaty league, let him remember this treaty is democratic, hence incom

Anna, dear, I love you yet, Although your mud was mighty wet She who rests secure on creed, The best she knows is all she needs.

Going to Move?

If so we are prepared to move

you any time you say, from any place to any point. We have the very best and latest equipment

to do it the easiest and quickest

OMAHA VAN &

STORAGE CO.

806 South 16th Street.

Phone Douglas 4163.

way possible for you.

DR. J. F. STEVENS.

And to Anna in the News:

patible with creed.

Are You

with the spirit world than scientific

"This is the border of Story-Book words of the charm with which she Peggy. But the Genie put on fresh "We must hurry to be in time for This answer puzzled Peggy, as she No sooner were the words uttered never heard of Red Beard.

"Who is Red Beard?" she asked.

> "Oh, is he as cruel as Blue Beard?" cried Peggy, feeling a cried Peggy, feeling a

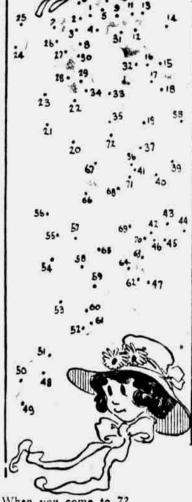

"Too late," groaned the Genie in tones of despair. "I've already

Peggy hadn't hung on tight she would have been jarred out at the hills. The two-wheeled cart bounced and jounced until Peggy's teeth

Land," answered the Genie, trotting

It seemed too true. As if pulled by a magnet of intense strength he DAILY DOT PUZZLE

When you come to 72, Then a - I'll give to yo. Draw from one to two and so on to the overed with whiskers of a flery hue. It was Red Beard himself.

(In tomorrow's chapter will be told how Peggy is received at Red Beard's castle.) IN THE BEST OF HUMOR.

"Did the play have a happy ending" "Comparatively so. All money was refunded after the second act.—Answers. "Lend you a hundred? Why man, you

Banking Convenience for Women

Women more and more find it to their advantage to have a bank account.

Handling a bank account gives a woman valuable experience in business and finance that often proves of very great value.

The First, on account of its very convenient location, its exclusive women's banking room in charge of a woman banker, and its ability to handle any banking transaction, no matter how large or how small, makes it an ideal bank for

You are cordially invited to open an account with the FIRST and remember there is always a welcome for you here.

First National Bank of Omaha

Capital and Surplus $2,000,000

Personal Service for Personal Accounts

Because of our unusually complete equipment, this bank can give personal accounts a high degree of painstaking personal attention.

Professional men; men and women whose chief item of income is through salary: women responsible for the spending of monthly budgets, will find our service particularly well fitted to their needs.

> The Omaha National Bank

> > Farnam at Seventeenth