Chicago, June 9.—1t was a see-saw market in corn today, with price changes and the volume of trading both much restricted by the new rule limiting to 200,000 bushels the total current business of any single interest. The close was unsettled %c net lower to ½c advance, July $1.68% to 590,009 $1.63% and September $1.60% to 590,009 $1.63% Oats lost ½c to %c. In provisions, the finish ranged from 15c decline to a rise of 30c.

a depressing effect on oats. Exporters were offered round lots from the west, but made no response worth mentioning. Higher quotations on hogs gave strength new high price record.

FINANCIAL

New York, June 8.—The stock market today was forced to contend with renewals of the profit-taking and short selling which were effective in depressing of prices during various periods last week. Moreover, the list did not open with its customary unward rush, attributed in part to the fact that buying orders over the week end were effective in contents.
