

SCOUTS' DRIVE NEARS GOAL AS FUNDS POUR IN

Total of $24,935.25 Now Reported; Workers Expect to Go Over Top by Thursday.

The Boy Scout financial drive in Omaha nearly reached its goal yesterday when at the regular Wednesday meeting of the Rotary club total subscriptions to date of $24,935.25 were reported by the teams which have been working the 29 districts into which the city is divided in the drive for $27,000.

"It's a little discouraging," said W. E. Reed, head of the drive, "but I am sure we will reach the goal by Thursday noon. The territory has not been fully covered and some teams have not made full reports."

John W. Welch reported subscriptions of $450 from Benson. Dr. Fickes' team brought in $450 in addition to its previous "takings." The Omaha Grain Exchange team reported $1,154 additional. Several Rotarians made subscriptions of $25 each.

Scout Executive R. M. Hoyt was the chairman of the meeting and he made a plea for scout masters.

"We must have scout masters," he said. "Even if we had raised a million dollars it would not have solved the problem of getting good men to give their time and effort to personal attention to the boys."

Many schools are demanding troops of scouts. Boys often stop me on the street to find where they can join a scout troop. I refer them to a troop, but some of the organizations are becoming so large that we can't manage them. I appeal to Rotarians and others to volunteer for the great work of scout masters.

Scoutmaster Morley Young gave a demonstration of "first aid" with a squad of boy scouts following the meeting.

"Toots" Young Charges Life With Hubby was Nightmare

Omaha Broker's Wife Who Showed Her Cotton Hose to Police Judge, Sues for Divorce.

Mrs. Mae Bryden Young, pretty 24-year-old wife of David Young, 45-year-old Omaha broker, filed suit for divorce yesterday in district court, charging her husband with extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Young gained prominence three weeks ago when she had her husband arrested on a charge of non-support. At the hearing in police court the pretty young woman raised her skirts and called upon Police Judge Fitzgerald to look at her stockings.

"They're the only pair I own and they are full of holes," she said.

The judge ordered Mr. Young to pay her $50 a month.

Mrs. Young, better known as "Toots," was formerly a vaudeville artist. She married the broker October 23, 1918, and he brought her to the home of his mother, Mrs. Erastus Young, 3172 Dodge street. The late Erastus Young was formerly auditor of the Union Pacific railroad.

The troubles began then. "Toots" alleges in her divorce petition that her life in the home of her mother-in-law was "one long, hideous nightmare, astonishing in the ingenuity of its cruelty."

She alleges that finally her mother-in-law served her with written notice to leave. She and her husband then went to live at 2109 Douglas street.

Hubby Seldom Sober. She alleges that her husband was seldom sober; that he beat her and threatened to kill her. She says he devoted his time and money to other women. She charges also that he tried to employ other men to compromise her. In April of this year, she charges, he took her to St. Joseph in an effort to accomplish this alleged purpose, and, failing to do so, she says, he stole her purse and left her there "stranded." She says she borrowed money on which to come home.

Mrs. Erastus Young, at the time of her son's arrest for not supporting "Toots," said she had ordered the girl out of the house because she was always asking David for money, nagging him and smoking cigarettes.

"Toots" said her husband never took her anywhere except on several occasions when he took her to dine in chop suey parlors.

"Having married a wealthy man, I found I had to go to work to support my young life," she said. She is working at present as a manicurist in a barber shop.

"He didn't give me any money when we were living on Douglas street," she said, "and I had to come through with my little $15 per. I've been compelled to wear cotton hose and I haven't a silk taddy to my name."

Ask $992,000 Balance On Sale of Farm Said To Have Potash Lakes

A suit for $992,000 was placed on hearing before a jury in District Judge Leslie's court yesterday. It is that of Peter Long and Anna Long against John Krause and Herman Krause.

The Longs sold a 640-acre farm in Sheridan county to the Krauses in February, 1916, for $8,000.

There were several alkali lakes on the place and these, it is alleged, were considered a detriment to the land and caused the low valuation at the time of sale, though soon hereafter they were the real source of wealth, for they were found to be rich producers of potash.

The Longs allege that the Krauses knew this. They allege that the farm was worth $1,000,000 because of its rich potash deposits and they are suing for $992,000 as the balance of the purchase price which they say they should have received.

Alleged Moonshiner Says Wife Operated Still; Ordered Held

Yovan Ursevich, alleged Austrian "moonshiner" of the South Side, before United States Commissioner McLaughlin, yesterday attempted to hold his wife, Rosa, responsible for running an illicit still. The wife admitted that she was the party who had been making the "moonshine" liquor, but nevertheless, Ursevich was held to the federal grand jury under bonds of $500.

Before the United States commissioner, as evidence, there was the still, and about a gallon of the alcoholic product. Ursevich testified that the still was in the kitchen of his home, but that it was operated by his wife and that he had never had anything to do with it, or the manufacture of liquor.

Mrs. Ursevich testified that she bought the material for the still, set up the plant and put it in operation. However, she insisted that the product was not sold, or offered for sale, but instead, was manufactured as a medicine for her own private use.

Ten Children Witnesses In $25,000 Damage Suit

Ten young boys and girls are witnesses in the $25,000 damage suit which began yesterday in District Judge Walker's court. Harvey L. Waller is the plaintiff and the defendants are James J. Parks, Mrs. Parks, their son, James Parks, Jr., and their niece, Mary Corcoran.

The Wallers live at 1602 Missouri avenue and the Parks family at 1624 Missouri avenue. Waller alleged that the Parks boys threw clods of dirt at Mrs. Waller. On June 6, 1917, he says, Mary Parks and Mary Corcoran met him and struck him with a stick. Later, he says, James Parks, Jr., threatened to strike him with a base ball bat. Then they had him arrested. This caused him great humiliation and mental anguish.

NEWSPAPER COMMENTS

NEW YORK TIMES: "It (the Ampico) reproduced in every degree in dynamic graduation and tonal shading, the artist's interpretation."

NEW ORLEANS ITEM: "When a mechanical instrument has been brought to the perfection of the Ampico, it compels recognition as a serious work of art."

NEW YORK GLOBE: "Musicians said they were unable to distinguish except through the eye, when the artist was performing and when the Ampico was performing."

BOSTON JOURNAL: "Many really believed that the artist had responded to an encore, until a glance showed the Ampico itself was performing."

NEW YORK AMERICAN: "Not only was every dynamic modulation, every accent, every pressure of the finger, every lingering caress reproduced with astonishing exactness, but every twist of rhythm was registered in perfect conformity."

BOSTON GLOBE: "The result was startling in the fidelity with which the Ampico reproduced every trait in Mr. Buhlig's playing."

ST. LOUIS STAR: "It was an uncanny night. There were two pianos on the stage. Godowsky played one and the Ampico repeated his every performance with wonderful fidelity."

And the Chickering Ampico

The reproduction of an artist's playing on the Ampico differs only from that of the living pianist in that in one case the artist is actually present, and in the other he is not at the keyboard. The performances, however, are identical. It brings the giants of the concert stage right into your own home, playing on your own piano, and whenever you are in the mood to hear them.

Not only the greatest classic masterpieces played by the greatest pianists, but any of the hundreds of favorite numbers that one does not hear on the concert stage; heart songs, Irish melodies, sacred music, music for dancing that is irresistible, the latest musical comedy and popular songs, all played with deep feeling, just as you would like to hear them.

The only player that plays exactly like the artist does

ARTHUR BODOWSKY says of the Ampico: "There could be nothing more wonderful. It was not a clever imitation; it was the artist himself. Nothing can equal the Ampico."

You are invited to visit our piano department and hear this marvelous piano perform. Impromptu Recitals Daily.

LEO ORNSTEIN has this to say of the Ampico: "Every note, every tone shading and tone coloring was exactly as I played it. The Ampico is the artist—it is perfection."
