

RECLAIM LAND IN ENGLAND FOR USE OF HEROES

Coast Land Will Be Given Disabled Soldiers to Make Them Independent of Charity.

By WILLIAM L. MALLABAR, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, June 14.—How to make discharged and disabled—or partially so—soldiers and sailors independent of public or private charity is one of the questions that is at present occupying the attention of many people in England.

Thomas H. Mawson, the well-known architect and town planner, who was perhaps the first man to see the vital necessity of arranging for the future of the disabled soldier and whose book on this subject attracted general and serious attention, has sketched out a plan for giving the discharged men a permanent and comfortable home, with a certainty of material profits.

The proposition is to place these men on reclaimed land around the English coast. There are many places where the tide flows in twice a day over good rich land. This land is to be reclaimed and given to the discharged soldiers for cultivation. The British board of agriculture has already arranged to survey these sections and build sea walls to protect the land.

One place has already been started at Meathrop, a little village near Liverpool. A corporate body known as the Industrial Settlements, incorporated, has been formed and this society has arranged for the instruction of the settlers in the art of afforestation and plant growing, expert instructors having been engaged for this purpose. All products of the land will be sold through the society and the settlements themselves will be run on a profit-sharing basis, the organization taking nothing from the proceeds and the soldiers dividing the money according to pre-arrangement.

The reason for asking for land near large cities is that it has been discovered that soldiers who have been used to mingling with their fellows in camps and holds on the various battlefronts are not willing to go to places where they may be shut off from companionship, except at some expense of time and money to reach more crowded districts.

Soldier's Plea Saves His Aged Mother From Jail for Being Drunk

Boston, June 14.—The appeal made by Mary Gallagher's war hero son saved her from a jail sentence when she appeared in the superior criminal court charged with drunkenness.

Assistant District Attorney Sheehan, too, saw the mute understanding between the pair, and called the boy to the stand.

Samuel Carr Wins His Suit Against City After 10 Years of Litigation

A judgment for $12,427.13 in the case of Samuel Carr against the City of Omaha was handed down by District Judge Redick yesterday after more than 10 years of litigation. It was next to the oldest case on the district court docket.

In April, 1907, the city council passed a resolution taking 60 acres of land at the southeast edge of Carter lake for park purposes.

Since then the case has been fought. It was taken to the supreme court twice and finally the city commissioners agreed to the judgment approved now by Judge Redick.

Boy Scout Committee Urges Mailing of Subscriptions

The Boy Scout drive for $27,000 is drawing to a close and the committee having the campaign in charge finds that many who should have contributed to this worthy cause have neglected to subscribe.

Mail your check for $1 or more either care of The Bee or to the committee direct. All subscriptions sent to The Bee will be promptly remitted to the committee. Subscriptions will be taken today.

Seattle, Wash., June 14.—Ernest Lister, governor of Washington, died here today. He had been ill for several months.

BRAVE AMERICANS

Portraits of Medal Winners, Made at the Front by JOSEPH CUMMINGS CHASE, Official Portrait Painter of the A. E. F.

Sgt. Joseph H. Stowers, Headquarters Company, 167th Inf., 42d Div. Sergeant Stowers fell in with the boche on the Champagne front. One of his acts was dashing out of his trench in the face of a wave of oncoming Germans advancing in massed formation, July 16. Running 50 yards toward the enemy, he picked up a wounded comrade and in spite of gas and rifle fire succeeded in safely bringing back to his own lines the wounded man. By the time he went into the Chateau Thierry drive he was on intimate terms with the boche. They "got to him," as the boys say. Stowers took a month's vacation in the hospital, but returned to his regiment in time to take a conspicuous part in the St. Mihiel drive. In the Argonne, too, he distinguished himself in the attack of the Cote-de-Chatillon, Hill 288. "Through all the campaigns and battles of his organization he has made a soldier of great courage, a leader of marked ability on all occasions, whose brilliant daring has been an inspiration to his men," reads his citation.

COMPOSER TOLD LOVE AND HATE TO WIFE IN HIS SONGS

(By Universal Service.)

New York, June 14.—It's a long bark from being the inspiration for the writing by her husband of the song, "One in a Million Like You," and after two years of married life the inspiration for the song, "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat," that is what Mrs. Helen Clarke alleged in testifying in the supreme court in her suit for a divorce against her song writer husband, Grant Clarke. Her sister, Miss Inez Patten, testifying to having discovered in Clarke's apartments here during a raid, a striking blonde whom she described as the song writer's new "inspiration."

"Mr. Clarke and I were married 45 minutes after we met, four years ago, in Kokomo, Ind.," said Mrs. Clarke while testifying. "He told me I was his inspiration, the wife he had been dreaming about for many years."

"Before he married me he wrote 'One in a Million Like You,' and for two years I was the 'you.' Then we had differences and he wrote 'Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat.'"

"About the time he was first seen by my friends with a blonde he wrote 'I Love the Ladies' and 'There's a Little Bit of Bad in Every Good Little Girl.' About that time I sued him for divorce and he wrote, 'I Hate to Lose You,' but I didn't know whether he meant me or the blonde."

Decision was reserved by Supreme Court Justice Giegerich.

WITNESS STATES JUDGE ACCEPTED $400,000 BRIBE

Declares Henshaw Promised "to See What He Could Do" About Reversing Ruling in Fair Will Case.

San Francisco, June 14.—William J. Dingee, under oath in a deposition taken here today, asserted that $400,000 had been paid Frederick W. Henshaw, then justice of the state supreme court, after Henshaw told him, Dingee said, he would see what he could do in regard to reversing a decision of the supreme court so as to effect a breaking of the trust clause in the $22,000,000 will of James G. Fair.

The final decision of the supreme court in the case was March 19, 1902. The deposition was taken by attorneys of heirs of Fair, who are seeking to reopen the will contest. A superior court ruling on a motion by defendants in the case to annul the deposition proceedings yesterday, permitted taking of the deposition June 24, but attorneys for the heirs announced they would proceed today.

Took $100,000 in Checks. Dingee, under examination, said that the late George A. Knight, one time attorney in the Fair will contest, interested him in connection with Henshaw, then justice. He said that he took $100,000 in checks, signed by S. G. Murphy, president of the First National bank, for delivery to Henshaw, and entered the checks in account of "J. Brown" in his brokerage office. Dingee said he opened the "J. Brown" account at the request of Henshaw, for Henshaw later tendered $300,000 through other agencies and other means to Henshaw.

The deposition was taken by attorneys representing Wesley Crothers and others as claimants to the Fair estate, who have filed with the superior court here an action to reopen the will case on charges that the final disposition of the case involved irregularities, including the alleged receipt of $140,000 by one of the justices, Henshaw, to influence decision.

A Disheartening Surprise. They had been engaged for full 30 minutes by the cuckoo clock. "I have a surprise in store for you, Alfred, dear," she said. "I can cook as well as I can play the piano." "That being the case, darling," he replied, "we had better live in a boarding house."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

See the New Hudson Super-Six

It Is Just Such a Quality Car As You Might Expect--We Are Now Showing It

How often you must have heard users say the Super-Six is potentially the finest automobile that is built. Four years with 60,000 cars in use have shown how to free it from many of the annoyances regarded as inevitable to all cars. It expresses the attainment of an ideal long cherished but never before possible.

Experience Showed the Way

Hudsons have been leaders for ten years. The Super-Six was the result of six years' experience. It marked a new advance in motor cars, for it minimized vibration and added to endurance without sacrificing simplicity or increasing weight.

It gave 72% more power than other motors of equal size.

A new motoring pleasure resulted. There was power for any emergency. There were speed possibilities beyond the needs of any driver.

That was shown in its establishing speedway records that are known to everyone.

As a result the Super-Six became the largest selling fine car in the world.

Each year saw an advancement over previous models.

What was learned from cars delivered served to make subsequent cars finer and more durable.

The development in beauty kept pace with the improvement in mechanical detail. Hudsons became pattern cars that the whole industry recognized.

On That Experience A New Hudson Was Built

Such a car would be impossible of any other organization. The men responsible for the Super-Six are likewise responsible for its development. They have retained all its earlier advantages. It is the same fine car you know, but it is enhanced in ways that meet the standard of our ideal.

The New Price Is $1975 f. o. b. Detroit

Every season has seen a Hudson shortage. Buyers have waited months to get the car of their choice.

When the new Super-Six gets into its natural swing, buyers will have to wait their turn. There has been a marked Hudson shortage for more than a year.

This new price would in itself create a big demand. But that $1975 buys a finer Super-Six must mean more people will want it. Its over sale will be tremendous.

For that reason you will want to see the new Hudson Super-Six as soon as possible.
