Some Spanish Recipes By Marie Walcamp

Cooking is my hobby. It's hardly correct to say that I'd rather cook than eat, because unlike many cooks, eating my own cooking is part of serving plate on top of the mold. the pleasure I get from the cooking Now turn the mold and plate upside itself. That isn't as complicated as Anyway, I like to cook and I like to eat what I cook. My specialty is famous for, and here are some of my recipes that may be of interest: Spanish Rice: Fry rice in butter When gelatine begins to set, beat until it is a light brown. Add chopwell with a Dover egg beater, then ped onions and allow to brown with whip in the stiffly beaten whites of the rice. Cover with stewed tomatwo eggs. Set aside to stiffen. Fruit toes, a touch of garlic, two red hot peppers, and cover. Let steam until rice is thoroughly cooked. Stuffed Spanish Cabbage: Take a large, solid cabbage. Take out center. Cook brains, chopped with mions, garlic and seasoning, and stuff the center. Wrap in the outside eaves, tie with string and boil. Spanish Pickles: Take one peck of green tomatoes, thinly sliced and four onions sliced. Sprinkle, in alternate layers with one cup of salt and let stand overnight. Drain, put in a preserving kettle, add 1/2 ounce of cloves, 1/2 ounce allspice berries, ounce penpercorn, 1/2 cup brown mustard seed, I pound brown sugar, 4 green peppers finely chopped. Use enough vinegar to cover, heat gradally to boiling point and cook one
