All the delicate tints of the rainbow were reflected in the flowers and gowns of the bridal attendants of Miss Dorothy Morton, whose marriage to Herman Robert Jobst was solemnized Wednesday evening at All Saints church. Rev. T. J. Mackay read the marriage lines. The altar was banked with daisies, snapdragons and a profusion of pink roses, making a beautiful setting for the bridal party. Miss Susanna Jobst wore an organdy frock of delicate blue and carried Ophelia roses. Miss Margaret Williams, maid of honor, chose lavender, her picture hat and shower bouquet of sweet peas harmonizing with her gown. Imaguri W. J. G. Who are you to Flatter me thusly And brush the cobwebs From my murky brain In humid weather Better than coca-cola Or Java Or the product of The Poppy Which At $150 per ounce Is quite as precious To those who need it As your "appreciation" is To me Who needs many more Than are ever received. Yes W. J. G. my soul Has triumphed Over earthly drudgery For the kitchen sink Hath no terror for me Even when it is Stacked to overflowing With bad-housekeeping. Organdy is mostly One sweet song And my work Is my pleasure Except for the Burdensome task Of constantly pruning the Weeds of egotism From the fruit Of my mentality. I am with you Kind friend in your prayer That my "mentality" May constantly expand. Together we sit (My musings and me) Laughing and sighing And philosophizing To the sweet tune Of my little Corona keys While the wild old world Sins on and on. If this be not all true Pray Does it not ring true? SELAHI

You Can Be Cool In This

By Gertrude Beresford. An effective calico gown is shown in this morning frock of English print, which is the finely woven member of the calico family. A white ground is sprigged in coral pink and light blue. The bodice is cut square and the opening is outlined with a knife plaited ruffle of hemstitched linen. A little shirred vest is held by a bow of old blue ribbon making an attractive trimming for the wide girdle of calico. The skirt of this gown is plainly gathered and is cut with a deep pinafore of calico. With this picturesque frock is worn a broad brimmed hat of old blue straw trimmed with old blue ribbon.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Love Comes Unbidden and, "To Love or Not We Are No More Free Than the Riddle to Rise and Leave the Sea."

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mother of Three.
Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I am writing to you for information, and hope you will be able to give me some. Owing to a separation in our home, I am forced to put my three children in a home and seek employment.

I have been informed that there is a good home in Council Bluffs, The Bethany Home, I believe, is the name of it. Do you know the address of such a place, or is there any other good home you can recommend? The oldest is a girl, 8 years old, and two boys, one 5 years, and the other 16 months. I also wish to take up nursing as morning to be the house guest of Mrs. J. H. Rushton.

Mrs. R. S. Hall and daughter, Dorothy, will leave Thursday evening for Stamford, Conn., where they will spend the summer. Jasper Hall, who has been attending school in the east, will join them there.

Miss Dorothy Lyle, 5201 Underwood avenue, left Wednesday evening for Cleveland, where she will spend two weeks visiting a school friend. She will spend the remainder of the summer in Boston visiting relatives and friends. Mrs. A. C. Powell has gone to spend the summer at La Jolla, Cal.

of Control, State House, Lincoln, for details. If you wish to give up your children (and I hope you do not) you could no doubt find homes where they would be adopted, provided the children are normal. Write the Child Saving Institute, Omaha; also the Christian Home, Council Bluffs. We understand, however, that these places could only give you temporary help, but would not undertake entire support of your children for a period of years. (I do not know of a Bethany Home at Council Bluffs, though there may be one. Try reaching them with a letter.)

Regarding nursing: It is a splendid profession, but if you wish to take a thorough course of training, it will require three years, with practically no remuneration. Moreover, the really good hospitals and institutions of training will not accept women over 30 unless they have exceptional educational advantages. Write any hospital for a statement of its entrance requirements. You might be able to get some incidental training and plenty of work as a practical nurse.

Two Classmates—Freckles at 15 do not mean freckles all through life. Lemon will take the summer's sun freckles off and cold cream on the face before going out will prevent a great many. You need not worry about your popularity with boys yet. If you have many girl friends and the boys are your friends, too, why should you want more just yet. It seems to me that you are fortunate. You could not have this reputation if you had followed that custom you write of of seeking strange friends merely for the sake of a soda fountain drink.

Sweet Sixteen—My advice to you is to make this year of your life, just what you have signed yourself. It is silly to forfeit the fun, the happiness and beauty that could come into this year for such trivial, common ideas. You are old enough to have a standard and ideal—and live up to them. In this ideal I should include the custom of having your friends call for you at your own home, when you go out with them. And I should certainly bar those good night kisses that you are uncertain of.

It Certainly Would.
"Pop,"
"Yes, my son."
"Who was Pocahontas?"
"She was an Indian princess of Virginia, who saved John Smith's life."
"Well, Pop, it would be some contrast if she was called upon to do that same act for all the John Smiths today, now, wouldn't it?"—Yonkers Statesman.
