HEREABOUTS OF LILLIAN RUSSELL'S DAUGHTER ASKED. The New York, June 30.—(By Universal Service.)—"Information wanted was concerning the whereabouts of Miss age Lillian Russell, daughter of Lillian Russell, M. K."

MORE ADVERTISEMENT APPEARING. Personal column of a New York paper this morning was the cause of much speculation among friends of Lillian Russell and her mother, who is now the wife of Alexander Moore of Pittsburgh. Interest in the mysterious advertisement was intensified by the fact that it was followed by an announcement from Lillian Russell that her daughter was with her in Pittsburgh and was employed on her stepfather's newspaper in that city.

Dorothy Russell has frequently figured in the newspapers. Until a few years ago she was in vaudeville, but of late has not been seen on the stage.

COMING DROUTH FORETOLD BY ISIAH.

New York, June 30.—(By Universal Service.)—Isiah, the prophet, may have had inkling several thousand years ago of the thirst that prohibition would raise in the land. Attention was called today to the prophet's words as found in Isiah 24th chapter, 11th and 12th verses, which read as follows:

"There is a crying for wine in the streets; all joy is darkened, the mirth of the land is gone. In the city is left desolation and the gate is smitten by destruction."

"MUZZLED THEY MAY BE, BUT CURED—NEVER."

Paris, June 30.—Amid the chorus of triumphant joy in the French press over the signing of the peace treaty, the only frankly censorious note is that of Marcel Cachin, the socialist leader. Writing in Humanite he said:

"The people were absent from the ostentatious ceremony in the hall of mirrors. The signatures are not those of their representatives. They take no part in this treaty. It is not thus that they understand the future of civilization of humanity. Other radical journals like Le Radical, Le Rappel and Libreparole do not disguise their uneasiness over what they call the menace of Teutonic unregeneracy."

"Muzzled they may be, but cured, never," says Le Radical.

PARIS ENTHUSIASTICALLY CELEBRATES PEACE.

Paris, June 30.—The signing of the peace treaty was celebrated with enthusiasm in Paris Saturday. The French soldiers, who nearly five years withstood some of the strongest onslaughts of the Germans, were the center of the crowd of celebrants on the principal boulevards. Marching columns of troops drew wild cheers from the throngs in the streets and the soldiers were pelted with flowers and blue confetti wherever they appeared. Large crowds were massed in front of the Hotel de Crillon, the American headquarters, and salutes of cheers for America were given.

The Strassbourg statue had an American flag at its apex, thus typifying the efforts of American soldiers on the fighting front in Alsace-Lorraine.

Except for the inevitable lack of spontaneity, the celebration was a duplicate of that the night the armistice was signed.

They were many American soldiers in the throng drawn to Paris by the inter-allied games. The refrain of "Hail, hail, the gang's all here," was heard almost as frequently as that of the Marseillaise. Representatives of the British dominions also took a prominent part in the noise-making.

Peace was celebrated throughout France with the utmost enthusiasm. At Marseilles, Toulon and Cherbourg, as well as other seaports, warships were dressed in flags, salutes were fired, church bells were rung, and there were illuminations and torchlight processions.

FRENCH STONE U. S. MARINES; INSULT FLAG

Disorders Begun When Naval Officer, Drunk, Tramples on Tricolor; More Than Hundred Persons Injured in Brawl.

TWO BREST CIVILIANS KILLED IN FRACAS

American Who Is Blamed for Starting Row Attacked, Kicked and Beaten Into Insensibility by the Gauls.

Brest, June 30.—Two French civilians were killed and five American soldiers and sailors were injured severely, and more than 100 wounded in riots here last night. Two of the American soldiers are expected to die.

The casualties occurred as a result of the exchange of shots between American military and naval police and French sailors.

The trouble began, according to available accounts, when an American naval officer, who is said to have been drinking heavily, tore down a French flag and trampled on it. A crowd of Frenchmen attacked the officer, and it is said, kicked and beat him until he was unconscious.

A mob of French civilians and soldiers and sailors attempted to rush the Hotel Moderne where American officers were quartered. They burned a sentry box and threw stones at Americans in uniform wherever they found them. The Americans, it is said, retaliated.

A company of marines with fixed bayonets was hurried to the scene and the Americans soon restored order. Admiral Henri Salazar, the French naval commander at Brest, ordered the marines to return to their barracks. As the marines marched back to their quarters, it is declared, they were pursued by a mob throwing stones and bricks.

The city is quiet today.

A pouch containing the bills was dispatched on the eastbound transport Great Northern, from New York on June 24. This morning the Great Northern met the George Washington, bearing the president, at Washington. Runyon Says Heavyweight Fight Like David-Goliath Scrap; Picks Dempsey to Win

Calculates That in His Opinion Dempsey Ought to Win Because He Is 11 Years Younger Than Willard, Is Faster, in Better Condition, and Hits Harder Than Champion—Willard Bets Hard to Find.

By DAMON RUNYON.

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

Toledo, O., June 30.—This is a once a prophecy and a confession. I predict that Jack Dempsey is going to knock Jess Willard for the proverbial nine of hat racks on July 4.

But, gentle reader, I confess that I am unable to guarantee it.

I don't really know that Mr. Dempsey is going to do as I predict and that's a fact. He tells me he will and the truth seems fairly to beam in his large-like orbs.

Then Mr. Willard, without giving the lie direct to Mr. Dempsey, you understand, but making the statement most emphatically, tells me Mr. Dempsey will not do anything of the sort, and I scarcely know which one of them to believe. They both talk like honest men.

Could "Clean" Town.

But I can say this much to you, G. R.: If I were dead sure of my prediction turning out as predicted, I'd go away from this town of Toledo, Ohio, with enough money to make Jake Ruppert and a lot of other millionaires sick with envy.

Whereas, in truth, and in fact, I'll probably depart with just sufficient dough to pay my taxicab fare from the Hotel Secor to the depot, which will be $18 under the present rate of Toledo taxi fares.

In short, I'm guessing, the same as you, and I'm not cocksure of my guess. And if any one else in these parts is basing a prediction as the result of the big smear on more than a guess, he's a better man than I am, John McNutt.

Counts Dempsey's Years.

I take Dempsey to win because he is 11 years younger than Willard on Willard's own statement of his age and 13 years younger on my reckoning of it because he is faster, because he is in better condition as I see it, because he is a harder hitter and because the old law of the game runs against the Pottawatomie behemoth.

I figure that last about as important as anything else. A champion lives his little day, and then along comes some young squirt and knocks him loose from his title. It has always been so, and will always be so. I believe that Willard has lived his day. He is due. It is the law of the game.

Of course, a lot of the old precedents have been upset lately what with a president of the United States going abroad and prohibition coming on, and maybe Jess will upset another. It would be just like the Kansans to do something to make a well regulated prophet look silly.

I have referred to this matter of condition. I do not claim to be a judge of condition down to the fineness of hair on a gnat's back.

I cannot tell just by looking at a man and watching him tussle around with a bunch of sparring partners what he can do in a bear fight. I gaze at him and he either looks good to me or he looks bad to me, and yet I cannot really be specific and tell you why he looks either way to me.

Prefers Dempsey's Looks.

I say Dempsey looks good to me, and I also say Willard doesn't look good to me, still talking about condition, but I can show you a whole slew of gents in the lobby of the Hotel Secor whose view is just the reverse. They think I am cockeyed.

A profound study of the proposition.

WON'T ARREST FOR SELLING 2.75 LIQUORS

Department of Justice Will Take No Action Pending Decision in Present Litigation, Says Attorney General.

INTERPRETATION OF ACT MAY PROVE DIFFICULT

With Respect to Whisky, Brandy and Other Alcoholic Beverages, Manufacturers Are to Be Arrested.

Washington, June 30.—The Department of Justice will take no action, pending decision in present litigation, against persons manufacturing or selling beer and wines containing 2 3/4 per cent or less alcohol content. This announcement was made by Attorney General Palmer. The statement said:

"After today it will be unlawful to sell for beverage purposes any distilled spirits and any beer, wine or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquor except for export. This prohibition will continue under the terms of the law until the conclusion of the present war, and thereafter until the termination of demobilization. As long as the law thus remains in force it must be obeyed, and I intend that the Department of Justice shall do its utmost to perform the duty which congress has placed upon it."

Whisky Sale Unlawful.

"This law has been held to be constitutional and valid by the circuit court of appeals sitting in New York. It plainly makes unlawful the sale of whisky, brandy and other distilled spirits and wines."

"The only controversy that has arisen is as to whether the sale of beer containing so little alcohol as not to be in fact intoxicating is prohibited. The government's contention has been that the act prohibits the manufacture and sale of beer containing as much as one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol, but the interpretation of the act is not free from difficulty, and I am endeavoring to have the question settled by the courts at the earliest possible moment."

"My course with respect to beer containing less than 2 3/4 per cent of alcohol—which it is claimed is not intoxicating—will depend upon the ruling which will soon be made by the district courts in which cases are now pending. In which other cases may be brought. I have no power to grant amnesty to anyone who may see fit to manufacture or sell beer, pending an authoritative judicial construction of the law and I am sure that brewers and dealers generally understand that the penalty of litigation will be no protection against prosecution for offenses under the law."

To Arrest Lawbreakers.

"But with respect to whisky, brandy and other distilled spirits, wine and beer containing more than 2 3/4 per cent of alcohol and other intoxicants, the prohibition is beyond controversy and but one course is open to the Department of Justice. All persons found selling such liquors must be arrested and prosecuted. The district attorneys will cause warrants to be issued for all offenders as to whom evidence is furnished by the bureau of investigation, the agents of the internal revenue bureau of the Treasury department, local officers or others, and the marshals and their deputies will promptly serve such warrants."

"With the co-operation of local authorities, it is thought that the law can be made effective.
