

BURGLARS TALK WAY TO FREEDOM WHEN CAPTURED

Many Small Losses Reported to Police Through Activities of Thieves On National Holiday.

Two burglars surprised by P. L. Ernst, 6709 North Twenty-fourth street, while trying to gain entrance to his home, talked their way to freedom Friday.

Ernst and his wife drove from down town to their home and found the two men on the front porch of the house ringing the door bell.

After asking Ernst if a "Mr. Carson" lived there and receiving a negative answer they left.

Ernst discovered later that the screen on a front window had been removed and holes bored about the lock.

Ernst said he informed police of the occurrence but an officer was not sent to his residence till 24 hours later.

Mrs. Austin Goodman, 1128 North Twenty-third street, found a revolver missing from her home when she returned Friday night.

Sneak thieves gained entrance to 2883 Crown Point avenue and escaped with a purse containing $25 belonging to Miss Anna Wilhelm.

Forcing a kitchen window burglars stole $50 from Mrs. C. Nelson's residence, 1136 North Twenty-second street.

The Parlin-Ordendorff Implement company reported to police yesterday that burglars stole a $55 rug from the office floor. They overlooked stamps and small securities.

John Yeoman, 1710 Chicago, missed a watch when he returned to his home Friday night.

H. Neuman, 1712 Burt street, had his pocket picked of $135 in money and checks at Krug park.

President of Irish Republic Invited to Deliver Address Here

Mayor Smith will send an invitation to E. De Valera, president of the Irish republic, to visit Omaha and deliver an address here.

Thomas Lynch, an attorney, wrote to the mayor and city council asking them to do this and has received a reply from the mayor stating that it will be done.

"I base my request for an official invitation to Mr. De Valera on the fact that he is a man of great learning, that he has been honored by the people of Ireland, and that he stands for human freedom," says Mr. Lynch in his letter. "The city authorities of New York and Boston, true to American tradition, have entertained Mr. De Valera and have found that his ideals are of a sort that every patriotic American must approve."

An invitation has already been extended by an Irish society of the city to Mr. De Valera, but no response has been received from him.

Feud Started in Italy Ends in Stabbing in Omaha; Man May Die

Calmina Fortunato, 1115 North Seventeenth street, was stabbed twice, once near the heart and another wound in the groin, at Thirtieth and Grace streets, about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He told police that Carmelo Castigliano, Seventeenth and Nicholas streets, was his assailant. Fortunato was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where attending physicians hold little hope of his recovery.

According to the story told police a feud started between the two men before they left Italy when they were members of rival secret bands. Fortunato told police that they engaged in an argument during the noon hour and that Castigliano attacked him with a long stiletto. Castigliano escaped and police are now searching for him. Both men were employed by the Illinois Central railroad on track work.

Government Mediator Will Come to Omaha to Settle Wage Dispute

Mayor Smith has received a telegram from the Department of Labor in Washington, advising him that a government mediator will be in Omaha Tuesday or Wednesday to meet stationary engineers and firemen and their employers.

This mediator will try to settle the differences of opinion between the employers and employees of the large ice and beverage plants of the city.

Stationary engineers and firemen have agreed to abide by the government mediator's decision, according to C. L. Shamp, international secretary of the firemen's union. He expressed hope that a strike will be averted.

South Side Man, Hit By Street Car In K. C., May Die of Injuries

Kansas City, Mo., July 5.—(Special Telegram).—Michael Finighan, 50 years old, of South Omaha, Neb., was probably fatally injured late yesterday afternoon when he was hit by a street car while attempting to cross the car tracks at the James street bridge. He was taken to the hospital, where it was found he suffered a fractured skull, a compound fracture of the right leg and internal injuries. Attending surgeons say he probably will die. Finighan was visiting Henry Miller, 324 Barnett avenue.

Michael Finighan is not listed in the Omaha city directory.
