EUROPEAN NATIONS NOT BANKRUPT

Oscar T. Crosby returns from Europe with the assurance that the nations over there are not bankrupt.

Germany is undoubtedly in the worst predicament, having been required to assume the enormous burden of the indemnity in addition to its own war debt.

The internal problems of the disturbed regions may well be left to the people themselves to settle.

Just now the condition of the world requires the exertion of all the powers of all the people in production, that the tremendous wastage of the war may be compensated.

A group of American army officers, detached from regular command and listed as casuals, were required to take passage home from France without "first-class accommodations."

Another bull has been sold for $100,000, and the Agricultural department has the nerve to tell us the cattle growers are losing money!

Missouri proposes to restore the death penalty, which will lessen the popularity of that state as a place of residence for impulsive persons.

If the League of Nations pact is really good, it will withstand all the criticism aimed at it.

A "desert rat," 60 years old, has just learned of the war, and immediately set out to fight the Hun.

Germany announces readiness to comply with terms of the treaty. The sooner this announcement is transmitted into action, the quicker will the world be relieved.

It is really fortuitous that the Epworth League and the legislature may meet simultaneously at Lincoln, but just where the connection is may not be clear to everybody.

The president's confessions on shipboard may revive the song of the sailors in "Pinafore," yet no matter what else he might have been, he carefully stuck to his job shore.

The offer of the five sons of the ex-kaiser to stand trial in his stead reminds us that this was one German family that was not called on to mourn the loss of a son killed in battle.

Herr Hindenburg also clamors for a place in the prisoner's dock. He need not worry; although his plea of guilty as to starting the war may not be accepted, the indictment will doubtless be broad enough to include several things for which he is to be blamed alone.

Arthur Conan Doyle says the life beyond will be all beautiful, especially because each renews his youth after shuffling off this mortal coil.

Supporters of the late "champion" may comfort themselves that as soon as he can see from his blackened eyes he will be able to count in cash a sum far greater than the ordinary man gets for his life time endeavor.

Quite apart from the sympathy for China that has been created through the refusal of the peace congress to permit it to make reservations to the Shantung settlement there is a side of the matter that bears upon the possible experience of the United States.

Men whose lives were devoted to and whose fortunes were bound up in the imperial militaristic regime in Germany are asking that blame for the great war be placed on them, and that the late kaiser be exonerated.

John D. Rockefeller, who celebrates his birthday tomorrow, is described as an "old man at 60 and a young man at 80."

Experts who are reducing the yield of wheat in Nebraska ought to get together. It is a little confusing to be told by one that heat did it and by another that the cold, wet weather is responsible.

No Vicarious Atonement

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. We do not think it at all probable that the allied and associated powers will agree to Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg's proposal that he be placed on trial for the offenses of the German imperial government instead of the former kaiser.

But it is hardly conceivable that the allied and associated powers will base their action upon this subterfuge of the German constitution. They will consider the fact that the constitution made the kaiser the actual head of the German empire, and put into his hands the autocratic powers over its government and people that enabled him to direct their course in accordance with his personal will.

It is not possible for the world to think of such a man as an irresponsible figurehead. The constitution of the empire gave him supreme power, and he used it constantly and dominantly. Every utterance of his was an expression of the arrogant declaration of Louis XIV, "I am the state."

The Americanization division of the bureau of education, mindful of the fact that the federal census is soon to be undertaken in the United States, is calling public attention to the various percentages of people unable to speak English in the population centers of the country at the time of the last census.

Among the various uses of coconut oil in India is its application as a mangle cure for dyes, for which purpose it is said to be very effective.

The bee industry in Switzerland is very large, honey being a part of the daily diet of almost the entire population. An American agent could possibly establish a satisfactory and profitable business here for bee-keepers' supplies.

An Oregon girl, who is cashier in a bank, saved $50,000 worth of Liberty bonds when she was held up by robbers. They made her take packages from the safe, but she hid them and they did not see those lying on a table, and she promptly took occasion to faint, falling neatly upon New York City, 227 per cent, and St. Louis, 18.6 per cent.

The teaching of the English language is very properly regarded as an essential in the Americanization of the foreign-born. He must understand the language of the country before he can understand and enter into the spirit of its people.

An American architect, representing a company in Christiania, Norway, has built of American material at the Norwegian-American exposition in Christiania, Norway.

"That's a wet looking car." "Well, it's not a license, whassamatter?"—Boston Globe.

"Dear," I cried, resolved to change her. "There are worse than I burn to see." "Then she made this terrible answer. "All right, dear, please away!"—Knockville Sentinel.

"How do you manage to keep your cook so long," asked Mrs. Naylor. "Oh, that's easy enough," replied Mrs. Subbs. "I discharge every Saturday and she stays just for spite!"—Knockville Journal and Tribune.

"They say his wife fairly worships him." "I guess that's so," went out there unexpected the other day and noticed she served a burnt offering."—Boston Transcript.

DREAMLAND ADVENTURE

By DADDY.

"THE WATER GOLBINS."

(PEGGY AND BILLY GO SWIMMING IN THE RIVER. GENERAL CROAKER BRINGS THEM TO THE BANKS AND MAKES THEM FIND THEMSELVES IN A WONDERFUL FOREST.)

The Merry Sunfish.

O! this must be an enchanted woods," thought Peggy as she found herself amid branches, lacy vines, and tangled waving undergrowth. It was unlike any forest she had ever seen—very odd and very beautiful.

"There's No Danger," Gurgled General Croaker.

bushes and shrubs grew all about and would have blocked the path had Peggy been walking instead of gurgling. They were so comical, they resembled pictures of tropical jungles.

The New Era. Council Bluffs, Ia., June 21.—To the Editor of The Bee: The stage coach has gone. Modern times demand a more rapid sort of transportation, and so the auto.

The Bee's Letter Box.

There was a time in our nation's history when "Uncle Sam" and "Ernie" Jones had a place in our national life, but that time has gone with the stage coach, the hour-glass and the old-fashioned way.

Our forefathers were a simple, common domestic people. They chose one of their number as chief executive of the country and he journeyed to the seat of government in the old-fashioned way.

Let the changed condition is here and let us prepare for it. Up to this time our executive and his spouse have been "garbed" the same as other well-to-do citizens in the throng their identity is lost.
