WILSON SAYS HE WAS HOMESICK WHEN IN EUROPE

President Gives Real Heart Talk in Carnegie Hall Following His Arrival Tuesady From Overseas.

I had crossed the seas with the kind of men who had taken them over, without whom they could not have got to Europe, and then when I got there I saw that army of men, that army of clean men, that army that one was glad to point out and say: "These are my fel-low countrymen."

softens the homesickness a good deal to have so much home with you and these boys were constantly reminding me of home. They did not walk the streets like anybody else. I do not mean that they walked the streets selfassertively. They did not. They walked as if they knew that they belonged wherever free men lived. that they were welcome in the great republic of France and were comrades with the other armies that had helped to win the great battle and to show the great sacrifice. Because it is a wonderful thing for this nation, hitherto isofrom the large affairs of the world, to win not only the uni-versal confidence of the people of the world, but their universal af-

that, is what has happened. Wherever it was suggested that troops should be sent and it was desired that troops of occupation should excite no prejudice, no uneasi-ness on the part of those to whom they were sent, the men who represented the other nations came to me and asked me to send American soldiers. They not only implied, but they said, that the presence of American soldiers would be known not to mean anything except friendly protection and assistance. Do you wonder that it made our hearts swell with pride to realize these

But while these things in some degree softened my homesick-ness, they made me all the more eager to get home, where the rest of the folks live; to get home where the great dynamo of national energy was situated; to get home where the great purposes of national action were formed and to be allowed to take part in the counsels and in the actions which were formed, and to be taken by this great nation which from first to last has followed the vision of the men who set it up and created it. We have had our eyes very close upon our tasks at times, but whenever we lifted them, as we were accustomed to lift them to a distant horizon, we were aware that all the peoples of the earth had turned their faces toward us as those who were the friends of freedom and of right, and when-ever we thought of national policy and of its relations upon the affairs of the world, we knew we were under bonds to do the large thing and the right thing.

Some Unaware of Vision. It is a privilege therefore, bewhether in a great capacity or a small capacity, to take part in the counsels and in the resolutions of a people like this. I am afraid some people, some persons, do not understand that vision. They do not see it. They have looked too much upon the ground. They have thought too much of the interests that were near them and they have not listened to the voices of their neighbors. I have never had a moment's doubt as to where the heart and purpose of this people lay. When anyone on the other side of the water has raised the question "Will America come in and help"

I have said "Of course, America will come in and help." She cannot do anything else. She will not disappoint any high hope that has been formed of her. Least of all will she in this day of new-born liberty all over the world, fail to extend her hand of support and assistance of those who have been made free. I wonder if at this distance you can have any conception of the tragic intensity of the feeling of those peoples in Europe who have just had yokes thrown off them. Have you reckoned up in your mind how many peoples, how many nations, were held unwillingly under the yoke of the Austro-Hungarian empire, under the yoke of Turkey, under the yoke of Germany?

These yokes have been thrown off. These peoples breathe the air and look around to see a new day dawn about them and whenever they think of what is going to fill that day with action, they think first of us. They think first of the friends who throughout the long years have spoken for them, who were privileged to declare that they came into the war to release them, who said that they would not make peace upon any other terms than their liberty and they have known that America's presence in the war and in the conference was the guarantee of the result. The governor has spoken of a great task ended. Yes, the formulation of the peace is ended, but it creates only a new task just begun. I believe that if you will study the peace, you will see that it is a just peace and a peace which, if it can b preserved, will save the world from unnecessary bloodshed.

And now the great task is to preserve it. I have come back with my heart full of enthusiasm for throwing everything that I can, by way of influence or action, in with you to see that the peace is preserved, that when the long reckoning comes, men may look back upon this generation of America and say, "They were true to the vision which they saw at their birth."

Acknowledges Cheering. In a car with President Wilson were Mrs. Wilson, Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan. The president remained standing, raising his hat constantly in response to the wave of cheering which rolled along the route of march. At one point on Twenty-third street, opposite a large factory building, the windows of which were filled with girl workers, the president seized an American flag and waved it vigorously in acknowledgment of the girls' cheer-

As the president stepped from his automobile a massed naval and military band played the "Star Span-gled Banner" while the military escort presented arms. Mr. Wilson was preceded to the stage by Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall, Champ Clark, former speaker of the house, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, all of whom were recognized and

The president's appearance on the platform was the signal for an ovation which lasted some minutes, ending when the band broke into the strains of 'Over There." Judgment In Dwyer Case Set Aside by Court to Aid Appeal

District Judge Troup yesterday set aside the judgment which he gave in the suit of Francis Dwyer against Clara Dwyer last Wednesday, refusing to annul their marriage because he found no evidence to support Mr. Dwyer's allegation that negro blood flows in Mrs. Dwyer's veins. This action, Judge Troup said, is merely formal in order to get the case before the supreme court of the state. Mrs. Dwyer will now withdraw the cross-petition which she filed while the hearing on Mr. Dwyer's annulment suit was going on.
