

SEDLACEK SAYS CITY DETECTIVE BROKE UP HOME

George Armstrong, Recently Whitewashed by Certain Members of Council, Named in Divorce Case.

Charging Detective George Armstrong, recently whitewashed by certain members of the city council in connection with the unlawful raid on the Brown apartments, with breaking up his home because of the detective's alleged improper relations with his wife, Stephen Sedlacek, through Attorney Eugene O'Sullivan, Friday filed an answer to Anna Sedlacek's suit against him for a divorce.

The petition, which was prepared several weeks ago by Attorney O'Sullivan, was not filed with the district court clerk at the time because, it was said, another man was implicated in an affair with Mrs. Sedlacek, and before naming this person in the suit it was necessary for Mr. O'Sullivan to obtain additional information.

Sam Ulden is the other man accused of having contributed to the woman's downfall.

Charges Extreme Cruelty.
Sedlacek charges extreme cruelty on the part of his wife, whom he accuses of remaining away from her home on numerous occasions until late at night in Armstrong's company, and on other occasions with Sam Ulden. Mrs. Sedlacek is said to have taken automobile rides with these men. She is said to have accompanied Armstrong repeatedly in wild rides about the city in police department automobiles.

The detective and Mrs. Sedlacek are accused of going to Krug park together. They also have been seen frequently in restaurants and cafes together, the petition alleges.

The husband is said to have remonstrated with his wife and Armstrong because of their conduct. Mrs. Sedlacek is declared to have called her husband vile names and frequently referred to him in profane language.

Says She Abandoned Him.
The woman is said to have abandoned her husband June 29, 1918, prior to which time she is alleged to have been in communication with Detective Armstrong.

Because of her improper conduct with the detective, Sedlacek alleges, the legitimate ends and objects of matrimony had been defeated and his married life rendered intolerable.

Charging that his wife is an unfit person to care for their two children, Stanley, 13 years old, and Harry, 11 years old, Sedlacek asks for their custody.

The couple were married March 23, 1905, in Omaha. "My wife was a good woman until she met Armstrong," declared Sedlacek. "She was a faithful wife and a good mother until this man came into her life and prevailed on her to violate her marriage vow. I hold Armstrong responsible for wrecking my home."

Threatened With Arrest.
"When I appealed to him to let my wife alone, he begged me not to say anything about his attentions to Mrs. Sedlacek, because, he said, he was afraid his wife would hear it and leave him. I said nothing about the affair at the time in the hope Armstrong would cease taking my wife out. He continued to go with her and Mrs. Sedlacek frequently threatened to have me arrested if I protested against her behavior."

Detective Armstrong recently filed suit against The Bee for publishing a story of his alleged association with Mrs. Sedlacek. He asks $10,000 damages.

Mass Is Celebrated In Memory of Soldiers Who Gave Lives In War

A high memorial mass was celebrated at St. Cecilia's cathedral yesterday by Rev. Father S. L. Dowd, chaplain at Fort Omaha, assisted by Deacon P. W. Burke of St. Agnes' church and Sub-Deacon D. J. Teahan of St. Bridget's church. The service was a memorial for soldiers from the diocese of Omaha who gave their lives for their country in the war.

The 20th Infantry band from Fort Crook played special music. A squad from Fort Crook fired the salute after the mass and taps was sounded by the bugler from the fort. The Gregorian mass was sung by the cathedral choir, and also sang "De Profundis" as a motet for the offertory. Absolution was pronounced by Archbishop Hart.

The services were held under the auspices of the Isabella club of the South Side, which was active in war work and soldier entertainment at Fort Crook. The altar in the chapel at the fort was the gift of this society.

Youthful Watermelon Thieves Are to Repeat Sin On Farms

Leander Terrigutti and Sebastiano Police narrowly escaped sentences to the Kearney industrial school in juvenile court yesterday. They were in court for stealing and selling watermelons. Railroad detectives testified that the boys broke into boxcars and stole the melons and sold them at 50 cents each.

Superintendent Sexton of the Riverview home, said he had farms waiting for the boys. They will be sent there.

Twenty-Five Speeders Get Golden Rule Summonses

Motorcycle Officers Cain and Emery last night started a crusade against speeders and picked West Center street as their territory. Twenty-five motorists were given Golden Rule summonses to appear in police court Monday morning.

Five members of the Omaha Motorcycle club, among them Victor H. Roos, president of the organization, were arrested. They were on their way to a weenie roast.
