REFERENDUM PETITION ON CODE LAW PRESENTED

Point Made Against Its Legality; Prohibition Petition Filed Also Simultaneously.

Lincoln, July 14.—(Special.)—Petitions under the referendum holding up the administrative code law passed by the last legislature were filed in the office of the secretary of state this morning.

The petitions contain 26,420 names, notwithstanding the propaganda sent out by the promotion committee during the time these petitions have been in circulation led people to believe that the petitions were being numerously signed. In order to make the petitions legal 10 per cent of the total vote cast at the last election would be required. This would call for 22,218 signatures on the petitions, which shows that with all the hard work, but 4,202 names more than the legal number could be secured.

There are 81 counties represented in the petitions, but 25 of these failed to have sufficient names to make the petitions legal, so that but 56 counties came across with the required number. Douglas county furnished almost one-half of the total number of names, 11,974, while Lancaster county, the home of the propaganda committee, only furnished 1,451 names.

The petitions were brought to the state house and presented to the secretary of state by Fred Ayes, chief of the promotion committee; his assistants, A. D. Scott, J. M. Foster of Lincoln, Dexter T. Barrett and E. M. Burnett.

Governor Makes Objection.

The matter of whether the petitions filed are within the law will be decided by the attorney general before the petitions are accepted by the secretary of state. Governor McKelvie appeared this afternoon when the matter came up for opening and examining the petitions, and objected because the petitions did not have copies of the code bill attached. The petitions merely give the title. The matter will be further taken up Wednesday, after the attorney general has passed upon the question.

Never in the history of the state,

CODE BILL TO BE OMITTED FROM SESSION CALL

Governor McKelvie Gives Ten Reasons for Not Incorporating Measure in Summons.

Lincoln, July 14.—(Special.)—Governor McKelvie will not include in his call for a special session of the legislature about July 28, anything in connection with the code bill. He gives several reasons for so doing and calls attention to what the people of the state will be put up against if the bill is passed, stating that it will cost at least $150,000 for printing and circulating the code proposition. The governor charges that the "wets" are at the bottom of the whole thing. He says: "It has been urged upon me to include in the call for the special session, the enactment of the civil administrative code with the emergency theory that a referendum would probably be obtained against the code. Among those who have so advised, have been several members of the legislature, some of whom voted against the code when it was up for consideration in the last regular session.

"After having considered this matter very carefully, I have decided that I shall not include this subject in the call for the special session. I do not want it to appear—even though there could be no basis for the charge in fact—that I desire to deprive the people of any rights that are reserved to them through the referendum.

"However, I wish to present to the people, for their information, some very important facts bearing upon this subject.

Would Violate Purpose.

"First, the exercise of the referendum in this instance, would be a distinct violation of the purpose of the people in writing the initiative and referendum provisions into the constitution. The civil administrative code bill reflected the majority sentiment of the people, as was indicated by their vote at the last general election, when they approved the republican platform, in which was contained a declaration for this legislation.

"Second, the referendum petition against the code has received the substantial support of the old, wet machine that has repeatedly thwarted the will of the people in the past, and the petition, in many instances, was circulated in connection with the referendum petition against the ratification of the federal constitution.

"Third, the exercise of the referendum in this instance will cost the state $150,000 for the printing and circulation of the code among the voters, prior to the next general election. This is two and a half times the total amount of the salaries to be paid all of the heads of departments under the code.

Other States Adopt Principle.

"Fourth, the principle of administration involved in the code has been adopted by at least five other states, and several more states have made provision for its enactment at an early date.

"Fifth, the code represented an expression of the majority of the people and it had a right to be given a trial before it was held up. Had this been done, it could have been easily made an issue in the next campaign, and the legislature could have been instructed to repeal it if the people so desired, or the repeal of the law could have been initiated.

"Sixth, it was upon my request to the legislature that the code was not passed with the emergency because I wanted the three months succeeding as a period in which to organize the departments under the

Anti-League Movement Launched by Democrats

Lincoln, July 14.—(Special.)—A state convention soon will be called for the purpose of organizing against the league of nations treaty in its present form, according to a prominent democrat of Lincoln.

Like conventions will be held about the same time in all of the states of the union and delegates elected to a national convention which will meet in Washington.

The movement is in the hands of the democrats, at least in this state, according to the information given out, but republicans in sympathy with the opposition to the league of nations treaty will be permitted to participate.

code. Nor did it ever occur to me that any political party or machine would have the temerity to use the referendum as a means of enabling a very small minority, headed by a clique of political reactionaries and obstructionists, to defeat a majority expression of the people.

Will Hamper Legislation.

"Seventh, I want the people to know that a referendum against the code will suspend the operation of legislation bearing upon a business organization of the state's administrative machinery. Such legislation that was passed, intended for administration under the code, will have been seriously hampered and in some instances defeated entirely, and legislation which would have enabled the state administration to investigate and control profiteering will have been suspended.

"Eighth, I think this referendum petition, in connection with the one against the ratification of the federal constitution, amply indicates to the people of the state that the old, wet machine, which they thought they put out of business at the last general election, is still very much alive, and is exerting a very dangerous influence in the state. I realize, of course, that many good citizens of Nebraska signed the referendum petition against the code, not appreciating the pernicious influences that were back of it.

"Ninth, if a referendum is filed against the code, I shall feel that my hands were tied in giving the state an efficient business administration, but my lips are not sealed against telling the people that if they want such an administration of the state's business, they must first be awake to the pernicious activities of the machine that has repeatedly thwarted the will of the people in the past; that has attempted on every hand to embarrass public officials who believe in law, order and decency; and that in this instance has prostituted the referendum to a use for which it was never intended.

"Tenth, it should be understood that the referendum petitions have been obtained at no small cost to someone. An organization has been maintained with offices in Lincoln and several professional petition circulators have been traveling throughout the state, who is putting up the money? Does it seem probable that Nebraska's old, wet political machine would take such an altruistic interest in the public welfare, or does it have some ulterior purpose to justify the campaign it now wages?"
