

WOMAN'S SECTION OF THE BEE

Alas, the joys that fortune brings
Are trifling, and those who prize the trifling
More trifling still than they.
—Goldsmith.

Then Freedom sternly said: "I shun
No strife nor pang beneath the sun
When human rights are staked and won."
—Whittier.

Gayety In Washington Is Unprecedented This Season

Washington, July 19.—(Bee Bureau).—Washington in mid-summer has always been considered the least desirable place to visit. The war has changed even that. This summer will be one of the most interesting and most attractive to men and women who are wide awake, that has ever been known. With the president "in residence," the members of the cabinet and their families all in their Washington homes, with the exception of the secretary of state and Mrs. Lansing, who will be here early next week, congress in session, and nearly all of the embassies and legations open and busy, there is every excuse for gayeties unprecedented in July and August. Not only are the official diplomatic and congressional people in town for the most part, but the prospect of the visits of royalty before the end of the summer is still further excuse.

To be sure the president and Mrs. Wilson will remain here for only another week or so, before starting on a tour of the country for some weeks, but while they stay, their good and coming are of more than usual interest. Everybody is anxious to get a glimpse of the president, to see if he has aged, (and he has) during the strenuous weeks of the Paris conference, and everybody is more than anxious to see Mrs. Wilson in her Paris clothes, and admire her really good looks. She is extremely handsome in these Paris frocks. She has superb taste—is never over-dressed, and never by any chance under-dressed. Her clothes are never conspicuous and are always of sufficient attractiveness to be worth copying. When she went with the president to the Central Presbyterian church last Sunday, she wore a particularly effective costume of gray, a short round skirt, in which she had no difficulty in stepping into her machine yet not full enough to be called "full." The bodice had a low waist line and a short distance below it, a deep fringe was set on, which fell almost to the hem of the skirt. The neck was the new round line, and her hair was a cape effect of gray, lined with white satin, striped with gray. Her hat was a small one of gray chiffon velvet with soft ostrich plumes hanging low on one side and bewitchingly becoming. She smiled and smiled, showing plainly, what she told her family on her arrival here, that she was "so glad to get home she did not know how to express it."

Wanted.
More girls to come to camp. Many of our Campfire Girls are losing a wonderful opportunity by not going to camp. Lots of the girls have gone for a week and had such a delightful time that they have stayed two and three weeks longer. The tents are all well screened and floored. We have a fine screened dining tent and an excellent cook. You will also be taught how to do stenciling, woodblocking, and also how to decorate your gown, the only expense being for the material used. You can also go canoeing on a pretty lake, which is only three feet deep, so there is no danger whatsoever.

Come and bring your friends, whether they are Campfire Girls or not.

Don't delay—come to the office, room 23, Patterson block, and register tomorrow for a week at least.

Show your colors and boost our camp, for it is a wonderful thing for our girls.

Reception.
She was quite as radiant on Monday evening when she appeared with the president at the beautiful reception in the French embassy, given by the French ambassador and Mme. Jusserand in celebration of the fall of the Bastille and of French independence. The guests included the president and Mrs. Wilson, the vice president and Mrs. Marshall, the members of the cabinet, the ambassadors, foreign ministers, and all representatives of the allied nations, the army and navy officers who saw active service in France, especially those who marched into Alsace-Lorraine after the armistice was signed; the members of the foreign relations and foreign affairs committees of the senate and house and their wives, and some of Washington's smart resident society.

It was a brilliant gathering of notable people. Mrs. Wilson was lovely in a Paris costume of black tulle encrusted heavily with cut steel beads and jets, with a cut jet tiara in her dark hair. She and the president were met at the entrance by the ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, who led the drawing room to greet them and escort them there. The marine band played the "Star Spangled Banner," and then the "Marseillaise," and afterwards the president and Mrs. Wilson took their places in the receiving line between the hosts and greeted all the guests. At the supper which followed, the president responded graciously to the handsome toast of the ambassador. They remained until midnight. They had with them Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Bertha Bolling, sister of Mrs. Wilson, and Col. Clarence Ridley, military aide to the president.

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, former chairman of the foreign relations committee, was not present, as he had joined his family in their cottage at Swampscot, Mass. His successor as chairman of the committee, Senator Lodge, was present.

Guernsey Milk

From Satisfied Cows to Satisfied Babies

OWING to a shortage in our supply of Friesland Farms Certified Milk, we are unable to serve all the patrons who prefer this product. To these patrons and friends, and to anyone else who may be desirous of using an unusually RICH, FRESH, CLEAN MILK, we ask earnest consideration of the facts which make us believe that our "Guernsey Milk" is worthy of taking its place.

Here Are the Facts:
ALAMITO GUERNSEY MILK is from tuberculin-tested herds, on NEARBY farms where sanitary methods and milk-cooling devices are used.
ALAMITO GUERNSEY MILK is trucked into Omaha daily and immediately tested, and clarified. It is then bottled in sterile bottles, capped with protective, dated, San-Lac caps—and finally, and of much importance—the last precaution for absolute safety is taken by pasteurizing this clean, rich, bottled milk in our new "In-the-Bottle" pasteurizer, which was so highly commended by the thousands of interested visitors who saw it in operation during our recent Reception and Plant Inspection.

Incidentally ALAMITO GUERNSEY MILK is approximately 12 1/2% richer in butterfat than Certified Milk and two cents a quart less in price.

A fair trial of Alamito Guernsey Milk will convince the most particular milk consumer desiring a superior, richer and safe milk, that in offering it to take the place of such quantity of Friesland Farms Certified Milk demand that we are temporarily unable to supply—that we have done ourselves proud.

Just call Douglas 409—and ask that one of our route salesmen may deliver "Guernsey Milk" to you.
