

WILSON GIVES OUT MESSAGE ON FRENCH PACT

U. S. Bound by Honor to Help France in Case of Unprovoked Attack by Huns.

Washington, July 29.—The following message relative to the American pact with France was sent to the senate by President Wilson Tuesday.

"Gentlemen of the Senate: I take pleasure in laying before you a treaty with the republic of France, the object of which is to secure that republic of the immediate aid of the United States of America in case of any unprovoked movement of aggression against it on the part of Germany.

"I earnestly hope that the treaty will meet with your cordial approval and will receive an early ratification at your hands, along with the treaty of peace with Germany. Now that you have had an opportunity to examine the great document I presented to you two weeks ago, it seems opportune to lay before you this treaty which is meant to be in effect a part of it.

Is Treaty Supplement.

"It was signed on the same day with the treaty of peace and is intended as a temporary supplement to it. It is believed that the treaty of peace with Germany itself provides adequate protection to France against aggression from its recent enemy on the east; but the years immediately ahead of us contain many incalculable possibilities. The covenant of the league of nations provides for military action for the protection of its members only upon advice of the council of the league—advice given, it is presumed, only upon deliberation and acted upon by each of the governments of the member states only if its own judgment justifies such action.

"The object of the special treaty with France which I now submit to you is to provide for immediate military assistance to France by the United States in case of any unprovoked movement of aggression against it by Germany without waiting for the advice of the council of the league of nations, but under it.

"It is therefore expressly provided that this treaty shall be made the subject of consideration at the same time with the treaty of peace with Germany; that this special arrangement shall receive the approval of the council of the league; and that this special provision for the safety of France shall remain in force only until, upon the application of one of the parties to it, the council of the league, acting, if necessary, by a majority vote, shall agree that the provisions of the covenant of the league afford it sufficient protection.

"Honor Bound to France.

"I was moved to sign this treaty by considerations which will, I hope, seem as persuasive and as irresistible to you as they seemed to me. We are bound to France by ties of friendship which we have always regarded, and shall always regard, as peculiarly sacred. It assisted us to win our freedom as a nation. It is seriously to be doubted whether we could have won it without its gallant and timely aid. We have recently had the privilege of assisting in driving enemies, who were also enemies of the world, from its soil; but that does not pay our debt to it. Nothing can pay such a debt as now desires that we should promise to lend our great force to keep it safe against the power it has had most reason to fear. Another great nation volunteers the same promise. It is one of the fine reversals of history that that other nation should be the very power whom France fought to set us free.

"A new day has dawned. Old antagonisms are forgotten. The common cause of freedom and enlightenment has created new comradeships and a new perception of what it is wise and necessary for great nations to do to free the world of intolerable fear. Two governments who wish to be members of the league of nations ask leave of the council of the league to be permitted to go to the assistance of a friend whose situation has been found to be one of peculiar peril, without awaiting the advice of the league to act.

"It is by taking such pledges as this that we prove ourselves faithful to the utmost to the high obligations of gratitude and tested friendship. Such an act as this seems to me one of the proofs that we are a people that sees the true heart of duty and prefers honor to its own separate course of peace.

"WOODROW WILSON."

The White House, July 29, 1919.

Economy and Industry

Urged by King George

London, July 29.—Economy and industry by the people, as necessary to maintain Great Britain's commercial position, were urged by King George at the Guildhall in replying to the city's congratulations on peace.

"Now that we are at peace again," the king said, "the country urgently demands from every citizen the utmost economy in order to make the best use of the resources which the country possesses, and strenuous and unremitting industry in order to insure the greatest possible production of necessary commodities. Without these we shall have to face depression and poverty.

"I am confident the ancient, sterling virtues of the British people will not fail us in the hour of need."

SENATOR THOMAS SEES LEAGUE AS NO GOOD THEORY

Colorado Senator In Speech Declares Either League Covenant or "Peace of Force" Must Perish.

Washington, July 29.—Expressing doubt as to the merits of the league of nations and pointing out that either the league covenant or the "peace of force" with which it is linked must in the end perish, Senator Thomas, democrat, Colorado, told the senate today he had reached no final decision as to the treaty.

While hoping that the war had so uplifted human morality and intellect as to make permanent peace possible, Senator Thomas said he could see "no evidence of such a change."

"The world is today more turbulent, and scarcely less bloody, than before signing the armistice," he said. "The people of no nation on earth seem inclined either to peace or to the arts of peace."

"The league proposes a plan for a new order in world affairs; the treaty perpetuates the old order. The treaty is doubtless the best that the conflict of ideals and interests could have produced. But its containing elements cannot co-exist. If the conditions of the treaty persist the league will perish. If the covenant survives, the treaty must temper its harsher features to conform with the mission of the league."

"If I could write a covenant for a league to enforce peace, I would confine it to the English-speaking nations and colonies of the world. If they cannot save the world it is past all redemption."

New Bolshevik Leader.

Helsingfors, Finland, July 29.—Colonel Kamenoff, who was a general staff officer of the old regime, has replaced the Lettish colonel, Viatzetis, as generalissimo of the bolshevik forces, according to a dispatch from Petrograd.

GENTLEMEN:—

Several shipments of furs have already come to this office for our examination before the merchandise was sent to you. These are garments purchased by this office many months ago when skins were very much cheaper than they are at the present time and they were made up at a time when labor did not cost anywhere near what it does now.

In all the years we have been handling furs we have never seen merchandise that is as beautiful, both in style and quality of skins used as the goods you are now getting.

We feel sure that they will be very easy to make sales of these garments for customers must appreciate their attractiveness.

Yours very truly,

S. M. GOLDBERG
