DOUBTING THOMAS ON THE TREATY. ТНЕ ОМАНА ВЕЕ

DAILY (MORNING)-EVENING-SUNDAY FOUNDED BY EDWARD ROSEWATER VICTOR ROSEWATER, EDITOR THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY, PROPRIETOR

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Associated Press, of which The Bee is a member, is ex-clusively entitled to the use for publication of all news dispatches prediced to it or not otherwise credited in this paper, and also the local news publiched herein. All rights of publication of our special dispatches are also reserved.

BEE TELEPHONES: Private Branch Exchange. Ask for the Tyler 1000 For Night or Sunday Service Call: 5ditorial Department Tyler 10001 Arculation Department Tyler 10081 Avertiang Department Tyler 10081 OFFICES OF THE BEE: me Office. Bee Building, 17th and Farnam 4110 North 24th Park 6114 Milliary Are. South Side Bluffs 14 N. Main Vinton 2516 North 24th (Walnut Out-of-Town Offices: k City 286 Fifth Are. (Washington Seeger Bidg, Lincoln 2615 Leavenworth 3318 N Street 2467 Houth 16th 819 North 40th New Tork City 1311 G Street 1330 H Street JUNE CIRCULATION: Daily 64,611-Sunday 61,762 Average circulation for the month subscribed and sworn to E. B. Ragan, Circulation Manager.

Subscribers leaving the city should have The Bee mailed to them. Address changed as often as requested.

You should know that

The per capita production of live stock in Omaha's territory is $240; elsewhere, $66 annually.

Going up-local school taxes.

Japan passes the buck to the president. Who will he slip it to?

Why not match Ole Hansen and Jack Dempsey, and have a real fight?

It is cruelty to make Dan Butler fight for his muny coal yard in this temperature.

Receipts of grain and live stock at Omaha give little sign of any danger of starvation.

Chicago is certainly enjoying the heated term, with a race war and a street car strike added to a hot wave.

The visiting soldiers had a warm time in Omaha, if they were denied the social entertainment planned for them.

The president appears willing to make some concessions to the senate. American harmony is quite as necessary as European peace.

The president has given the senate the French treaty, proof that he can be reached. Maybe some other concessions will yet be made.

Champ Clark says he does not care a hoot what they talk about in congress, so they do not talk politics. Of course, he is never disappointed.

Another year of Ak-Sar-Ben down town is all right, but the big show will never attain its true proportions until the new field is used to its fullest extent.

Instructors at Harvard are coming in for a little comment on account of their low wages. Most of them are paid less than common labor-

Senator Thomas of Colorado, of whose democracy and equal sanity there can be no question, finds himself unable to agree that the pending peace treaty with its accompanying covenant for a League of Nations, will accomplish the purpose for which it is framed. He sees in the "peace of force" promise of a future war. A league to prevent war accompanied by such a treaty is self-destructive, or else it destroys the treaty.

"Their ways are divergent, their objects antagonistic, their details insistent," he savs. "The league, inspired by unselfish and uplifting impulses, typifies peace and reconciliation. The treaty, based upon passion and self-interest, embodies suppression, reparation, indemnities, partition, punishment."

The inability of Senator Thomas to reconcile in his own mind the conflict between the two is shared by many. Most people are agreed that Germany should be punished for enormous crimes against humanity. Also, it is a common desire that saleguards be set up against a repetition of these crimes. The more the present document is debated, the less it seems fitted to meet the ends it is intended to secure. This uncertainty is not allayed by the assertions of the democratic clacquers, who reply to criticism only by repetition of phrases that do not contain fact, substituting continually, rhetoric for logic.

The "clarification of counsel" suggested by the president proceeds but slowly, but as it does make progress, the certainty of definitive reservations being made comes more and more into view. And the fact should not be forgotten that the treaty is now being discussed by a body of men whose patriotism, wisdom and personal ability is unchallenged, save by partisan blindness. When the senate has reached a conclusion and is willing to give its consent to ratification, we may be sure that American interests have not been sacrificed.

How Private Wealth Has Helped.

For many years one of the popular pastimes has been to rail at the possessors of great wealth. Those who are unfortunate enough to be encysted in mere money, buried deep enough to defy penetration from the outside, are alternately damned or ridiculed by the more favored many who never felt the burden of an incrustation of millions. Every now and then, however, the observer encounters something that serves to justify private control of considerable sums of wealth.

Such an instance is at hand in the form of Dr. George Vincent's report as president of the Rockefeller Foundation. Tersely, succinctly, but vividly, Dr. Vincent has reviewed the work of 1918, telling of endeavors in many lands and in widely separated fields, but all tending to the good of man. War work in France, yellow fever work in Guatemala, educational work in China, anti-malaria work in Arkansas, the hookworm here, the fight against tuberculosis there, instruction in training camps, assistance to medical schools and to research work, and such like undertakings have occupied the expert investigators and administrators of the funds at the disposal of the foundation.

The beauty of this is that the work may be carried on continuously, with a definite and assured knowledge that the needed means are provided. No inquiry is likely to be checked

Baldwin's Beginning

From the Philadelphia Ledger. "The history of the Baldwin Locomotive works has been a series of personal romances," said Alba Johnson. "Matthias W. Baldwin's career was a victory of high character, industry and exalted motives over adverse circumstances.

"The story seems always new. Frederick Fraley has given me his personal reminiscences of Mr. Baldwin. He began as a jeweler, without a store. The house he occupied in Frankford still stands, near Wissinoming station.

"Mr. Frailey told me that Mr. Baldwin every Friday afternoon took his wicker basket on his arm to peddle the jewelry he had made in the for it anyway, saying that if I could preceding week.

"Second street was then the chief retail street, and the jewelers along that thoroughfare would buy Baldwin's modest output directly from his basket.

'He was a deeply religious man, and it was a grief to him that his trade ministered to worldly vanity.

"He wanted to be a printer, for he held that this was the noblest art open to man since it meant the dissemination of knowledge.

"His business prospered, and he began to bound to pay off that note? Answer.-...If note is in the hands make bookbinders' tools. To dispose of his wares he opened a shop in Lodge alley, where he made calico stamps.

"Ellwood Pusey, who still continues the business, has informed me that he possesses some of the old Baldwin stamps. 'Mr. Baldwin wanted a stationary engine.

He decided to build one for himself, and accordingly he designed a 20-horsepower upright engine, which is still preserved at the Baldwin He is in Canada and promised to works and was in use up to five years ago.

steam engine, and his studies had created a ively interest in the possibilities. "At that time the Liverpool & Manchester railway was holding its locomtive trials, from which George Stephenson's 'Rocket' emerged triumphant. "The mind of the public was engaged with the steam locomotive, just as it was with aeronautics after the Wright experiments. "The Camden & Amboy railroad imported four of Stephenson's locomotives, one of which, the 'John Bull,' is still extant.

"When the brig carrying the locomotives reached Bordentown, Baldwin went to see the pieces discharged. He said he could build one himself.

"Franklin Peale, brother of Rembrandt, had a museum where the old Masonic temple stood on Chestnut street west of Seventh, where Singerly put up the three banks. He hunted up Baldwin and got him to build a little locomo-agree upon the division of the proptive, with a gauge of 18 inches, to run around a track in the museum.

"Baldwin did not then entertain the idea of becoming a builder of locomotives exclusively. "The promoters of the Philadelphia, Gerpartition mantown & Norristown railroad saw his little | ordered sold and divided equally be locomotive, and decided that one like it would | tween you.

"So they ordered a four-ton locomotive. It took Baldwin a year to make this. He had to manufacture everything-his own tubes, tires and pumps. There were then no collateral industries. He finished his engine in November, 1832.

$3,600 instead of the $4,000 he asked.

"The railroad, nevertheless, finally accepted the machine and advertised: "The locomotive will be attached, as usual.'

"Baldwin said he was through with locomotive building; he would never make another. "He didn't realize that there would be such

Our Free Legal Aid State your case clearly but briefly and a reliable lawyer will furnish the answer or advise in this column. Your name will not be printed.

Let The Bee Advise You.

By DADDY. Insurance. F. M .- In March, two insurance men came to my house and insisted

The Family That Was Happy.

HE farmer boy's family, father, mother, Sister Sue and Sister Jane, were gathered around supper table, happy in their enjoy-ment of the evening meal. They chatted merrily and it took but a clance to see that here was a household in which dwelt peace, contentment and harmony grab it and run away.

handle my papers at that time as they had sold my note to a bank in "I wonder what is keeping Hen-ry!" said the mother, looking out another town. As I have not drawn ry!" said the mother, looking out any benefits from this company and over the fields. She didn't see Henthey have broke their agreement without first notifying me, am I boy was behind the barn hiding the pot of gold under a pile of straw.

fore maturity, you will have to pay and left my man for two good reasons, for non-support and going with they would have to make themother women when I am true to him, selves large again, for now He is in Canada and promised to send me $40 a month if I would they thought that would be easy by a month to live on. Could you please tell me how much alimony I can get. the farmer left the supper table to Will I have to sue for alimony. I look for him. The farmer boy didn't just got a letter from him saying like to leave the pot of gold, even me any after he had hidden it securely, and nore money and he is making over crept back to take another Could a came around the corner of the ness for me? Please let me hear "There you are, Henry!

alimony as you cannot get personal service on your husband. You can sue for divorce if he fails to support

Division of Property.

through the columns of your paper under the head "Legal Aid" the following question: My mother died, leaving my sister and myself two erty. What is necessary for me to do in order to divide this property up between oursleves? Answer .--- You will have to employ an attorney and bring an action The property will then be of coffins.

Answer .- No.

dead 10 years.

the family

lish oak

Serses.

to Mecca often exceeds 100,000.

used to vaccinate on the tip of the

The great armadillo has 92 teeth

The sky reflection of the lights of London has been seen in favorable

Stags are bred in China for their Men attending the pans in salt works are generally supposed to Many old houses in Holland have a special door which is never opened except on two occasions-when there is a marriage or a death in

In Ashanti grows a tree, re-sembling in appearance the Eng-lish oak, which is said to furnish excellent butter. This vegetable but-

DAILY CARTOONETTE.

I HAVNT TAKEN MY WIFE

ANY WHERE FOR 5 YEARS

I THINK I'LL ASK HER

TO GO TO THE THEATRE

WITH ME!

horns, the horns being cut while soft each year and used in the weather 50 miles distant.

manufacture of medicine.

attract excursion patronage. Personal Injuries.

veloped.

"It was found to be too heavy by half a ton. The railroad refused to receive or to pay for it. As a result of arbitration he received again?

engine, manufactured by Matthias W. Baldwin, However, it is necessary to see the will run on fair days. On rainy days horses form of release and know the cir-

question

"RAINBOW GOLD." that I take a five year policy from (Peggy and Billy find the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, but Judge Owi warns them against it. While they are looking at the gold, at farmer boy drives them off and runs away with the gold.) them, as I could get it $25 cheaper that way than by taking for only a year at a time. I told them it was impossible for me to do so then but they finally persuaded me to sign up not pay for it then they would make arrangements with a local bank so that I could pay it any time between then and December 1 Nothing was then said about sign. ng a note, but a few days ago I received a letter from them saying that the local bank was unable to

of an innocent holder for value be-

Alimony and Divorce.

T .-- Could you please advise me what to do? I am a married woman

"This episode turned his attention to the come to this country to live and am engine, and his studies had created a since I came he has only sent me $12 that he would not send $115 a month. What will it cost And as he was looking his father me to sue for alimony? lawyer in this state see to this busi- barn soon as possible. Answer .--- You cannot recover any

E. D .- Will you please answer

He Was Instantly Eager to Setal It IN THE BEST OF HUMOR.

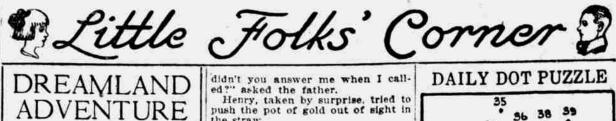

Vicar-Nothing to be thankful for! Why, think of poor old Hodge losing his wife through the flu! Giles-Well, that don't do me no good. J. E. M .- A few years ago I was injured by being struck by a railway train. I settled with the company, but at the time did not know of cer-I ain't Hodge .- Farm and Home tain injuries that have recently de-Bacon-Wasn't it said that ence upon a ime Rome burned while some one was Does the release that I gave at the time of making the settime Rome burned while some one was fiddling?" Egbert-Yes; and now Rome is setting tlement prevent me from suing hot again while the peace conferees ar-fiddling --- Yonkers Statesman. Answer.--- No doubt the release that you signed did cover all injuries "Do you know Jones?" "I lent him a tenner this morning. I should say I do know him." "You lent him a tenner? Then I should say you don't know him."-Edinburgh Scotamas that you sustained whether you knew of the same at the time or not. cumstances under which the release was obtained in order to answer your "You must have said something dreadful to Mr. Hestseller." "I merely suggested that he hire the 39

41

40

42

* 43

44

4

48

• 50

66

69

5B

•49

59

38

36

37

52

53 51

dan.

62

65

54

.55

63

Willie said, "Come go with me,

Draw from one to two and so on to the end.

ously as they rested upon the pot of gold. He was instantly eager to steal it and quickly planned a way. Sneaking across the yard to the tool house he disappeared within it. In another minute there was a loud crackling and the tool house burst ing beneath the window. Instantly ting the pot of gold for a moment, they ran to fight the flames. That is just what the convict figured they would do, and as they fied out of the (Tomorrow will be told how the convict steals the pot of gold and then loses

Beware rainbow door he crawled in at the window.

"Hoot! Hoot! Beware gold!" hooted Judge Owl.

The Human

To make our patrons

Equation

"Fire!" shouted the convict, hid-

Pretty - - you will see."

56 57

34

83

.20

19 18

17.

15

2'2

• 5

4 . 72

• 73

1 . . 75

into flames.

few minutes before was so peaceful the family quit quarreling. Forget-

• 30

.27

.24

23 22

• 29

push the pot of gold out of sight in the straw. "What have you there?" asked the farmer suspiciously. "Nothing," answered Henry, un-truthfully. "Nothing! Then why are you hiding it from me?" said his father.

severely, striding over to the straw stack. "Let me see." "I'll not. It is nothing," said Henry

"What's this? You disobey me And you answer me untruthfully? You've never done that before. the Something is wrong here.

"It's only an old pot I found in the field," said Henry. They "I'll take a look at it," said his father. Henry tried to hold father back, and in the struggle the pot became overturned and coins poured out in a golden stream. "Ah! Money! A fortune! you steal this?" did cried the ry, for at that moment the farmer's father, dropping on his knees and scooping the coins back into the pot. "I didn't steal it. I found it in Peggy and Billy, hovering above Henry's head in their toy airplane. the field. I'm going out into the world with to have a good time. "You're going to do nothing of the watched every move he made. They felt that as they had found the not You are my son and you kind. of gold it belonged to them and they found this gold on my farm; it were determined to get it back. longs to me!" exclaimed the father. They would wait until Henry went they would of course all in vain, for his father picked up into the house, and then they would the pot and ran into the house. "See what I have-a pot gold!" he shouted. "I'm rich, and I'm going to become richer, for I'll buy more farms and make them grow rich crops for me." using the Golickety charm. "Henry! Henry!" called the fathlook.

Why

gold coins.

liously.

"Ah, now I can have that new house I want," exulted the mother. "Now I can buy beautiful clothes," cried Sister Sue. "Now I can go to Eu.ope and be come an artist," added Sister Jane.

I'll need it all to buy more land and still more land until I become the ed the father, rubbing his hands like a miser as he gazed at the potful of

"You can't have it; the gold be-longs to me!" shouted Henry rebel-

"I'm going to have that new house," insisted the mother. "And I all the new clothes I want," insisted Sister Sue. "And I'm going to Europe," insisted Sister Jane. With that the whole family that only a and happy worked themselves up into a blind rage, making such a

the hedges, crept up to the window of the house and looked in. With a thrill of alarm, Peggy and Billy suit and had no hat.

Billy to Peggy.

ticed that he wore a queer, strip-

"An escaped convict!" whispered

The convict's eyes bulged covet- it.)

ow that a man, sneaking along richest farmer in the state," declar-

"You can do nothing of the kind.

Here indeed virtue is its own reward.

Missouri women who are discarding skirts at summer resorts may think they are leading the way to freedom, but they will learn that trousers have disadvantages in hot weather.

Henry Ford will appreciate the seclusion of the woods in company with Thomas A. Edison and John Burroughs. Eight days on the witness stand ought to fit any man for a season of communion with nature.

A Chicago miser, close rival of Omaha's Mickel, has denied himself every human comfort and convenience for fifty years, during which time he accumulated $300,000. Now he is in the insane asylum. The answer is plain.

The senate has requested from the State department full information concerning Mexican' relations within recent years. It will get a fine lot of ultimatums, as well as the record of a demand for a salute that was never given.

"Vic" Berger says he is for the "Wobblies" because they are "class conscious." And "Big Bill" Hayward is about to start a lecture tour to reduce the country to bolshevism. Some day we may get to a place where a sentence for treason will be carried out as pronounced.

Newport fashion leaders are vieing for the privilege of having the prince of Wales as a guest. But the young man has notions of his own, and very likely will decline to be made a successor to the monkey shows of America's idle rich.

It is good to note that The Bee's Free Ice and Milk fund is going up to record figures, but it also must be remembered that both ice and milk cost more this summer, and it requires more money to take care of the same number of babies. It is the greatest game ever played, and it is free for all. Come in.

A Simple Play's Long Run

At one of the leading London theaters a play of peculiar construction has been drawing large and deeply interested audiences for more than six months. Its success has unusual significance for Americans. The title of the play, if it can be so classed, is "Abraham Lincoln." consists of episodes in the life of Mr. Lincoln, and is, above all, concerned with his high moral qualities, the benevolent greatness of his character, his unflinching courage and patriotism, and his elemental goodness toward fellowmen. His humor is wisely omitted, for it might be misconstrued as related to comedy, whose purpose is quite different. Lincoln's humor amused but its main effect was to convince. If he was reminded of a story its chief application was an argument that fitted in genially on the spur of moment.

That this subject should have attracted large English audiences for so many months is a striking fact. There must be something astir in English minds that warms to Lincoln's place in history and example in statesmanship. Its leading lesson must be the power of sound manhood to be of supreme usefulness regardess of iron fortune and what is called low birth. England has occasion to be thoughtful on this subject. Lloyd George was an orphan boy, who was educated by an uncle who made a humble living by mending shoes. The theme of the play is manly opportunity nobly interpreted .- St. Louis Globe-Democrat. | scribed as "an organized appetite."

at its critical point because of failure of congress or some other private agency to make the needed appropriation. Fancy what would be the case if the work of these investigators were stopped in full flight as was that of vocational education bureau, when the president vetoed the appropriation bill. Private control of this great work surely has its advantages, and the devotion of great private wealth to the purpose under terms and conditions that gives independence to the workers is really a splendid service to the public.

Cutting Off Fool Taxes.

Very soon the kiddies will be able to toddle up to the counter and get an ice cream cone, or a drink of soda water, without having to pay a war tax. The republican house has taken the first step to dispense with this bit of democratic economic foolishness. When Claude Kitchin was chairman of the ways and means committee, he announced his intention of making the north pay for the war. As far as he could, he carried out this purpose. In his exuberant search for subjects on which to levy freak taxes, he encountered ice cream and soda water. These are luxuries. It did not occur to him, nor did he trouble his mind after the fact was pointed out, that the chief consumption of these is among the children of the land. An impost of 10 per cent was slapped on and driven through, and for the first time in our history the babies of the land were compelled to contribute to carrying on a war, in order that the big cotton planters of Mr. Kitchin's home land might escape at least a portion of the responsibility. If the senate will now respond to the action of the house, it will soon be known whether the pennies extorted from the little folks are vital to the existence of the great American republic.

Work of the Transportation Corps.

The transcontinental trip of a detachment of the transportation corps of the United States army ought to have a distinct value. It has no spectacular feature, for the test given the motor truck in actual service in France was as severe perhaps, as any it may ever undergo. American highways at their worst do not compare with the shell-torn tracks over which the trucks were driven up to the very front lines. Nor is the crossing of the continent by such trains any longer an experiment. What will most likely come of the present trip, in addition to the knowledge gained of engine performance, tire endurance, and similar details, will be a "logging" of the routes, the condition of the roads, and a better understanding of what is needed to establish a great highway to connect the two oceans. The good roads movement is getting proper attention from the public just now, and its importance is better understood as the difficulties of the existing transportation problem become apparent. Any contribution the journey of the transportation corps may make to the knowledge of highways, routes and the like will be of service, for it will help to make certain the future of the nation's roads.

Treasurer Jamieson of the democratic national committee tells the donkey's followers he must have money. That has been the condition of the party ever since it was so patly dea lively demand. The South Carolina railroad asked for one. Then the orders came in thick and fast.

The stories of Dr. Edward H. Williams, of Mr. Parry and of Mr. Converse are likewise full of dramtic incident. ate maintenance.

"Dr. Williams was born in Woodstock, Vt. little place, numbering today but 2,500 in habitants. His father was Judge Norman Wil liams; his mother was a woman of rare in tellectual attainments. The doctor was one of five brothers. He decided on a medical career. and made a start at the primitive medical col- in the past? lege in Woodstock.

Then he became an interne at Bellevue hospital in New York-so that he had the best medical education the times afforded-and settled down to practice at Proctor, near Rutland.

'Almost overnight he became famous through his cure of Alexis St. Martin, the man whose skull was pierced by an iron bar as a result of a quarry blast. He used simply the ordinary antiseptic methods that are now universally accepted, but then the cure was sensational, for this was the first man that had survived such an injury.

"The Rutland railroad was then being built. Its chief engineer, a man named Sewall, boarded in the same house with Dr. Williams. The doctor was insatiaby inquisitive. If he went to sea he would be on the bridge with the navigating officer. Night after night he studied engineering problems with Sewall. He made ad mirable drawings.

"One day Sewall said: 'I have a request for an engineer to build a railroad in Canada. I'm going to name you.' don't know enough,' the doctor remon strated. "'O yes you do,' Sewall insisted. 'I know how much you know. If you stay here you'll be a country doctor, driving over the hills until a country doctor, driving over the hills until be immune from cholera, smallpox, you're gray. If you're lucky you may acquire scarlet fever and influenza. a small competency. Transportation is to be the great industry of the future. Those who enter it will be the empire builders.' He painted so vivid a word picture that the doctor succumbed.

'As a result he turned his back on medicine and became a partner in the firm. It was a remarkable instance of a man who had made a brilliant success of one profession shifting in mid-career to another entirely different."

The Day We Celebrate.

Viscount Haldane, former lord high chan cellor of Great Britain, born 63 years ago.

Sir Eyre Crowe, long assistant undersecretary of state for foreirgn affairs in the British government, born 55 years ago.

John S. Runnells, president of the Pullman company, born at Effingham, N. H., 75 years

Julius Kruttschnitt, corporate head of the Southern Pacific Railroad company, born in New Orleans 65 years ago.

John Sharp Williams, senior United States senator from Mississippi, born at Memphis, Tenn., 65 years ago.

Thirty Years Ago in Omaha.

S. A. Kitteridge, one of the new Paxton proprietors, arrived with his family and is prepared to take charge of the hotel. An important innovation will be the immediate openng of a cafe.

A large force of men with teams and wagons commenced the work of excavating for S. P. Morse's new store.

H. J. Heinz of Pittsburgh, proprietor of the large pickling works of that city, was in Omaha. The city council voted $7,500 for the erec-tion of an engine house at Walnut Hill, provided someone would donate a lot on which to build Divorce. write his Magazine. books for him."-Browning M. C --- Is there some way I can get a legal separation from my hus-

"You say you have good references?" "Yes, ma'am. I have over a 'undred leadid references?" band without making it possible for "Yes, ma'am. I have over a 'undred aplendid references?" \ "And how long have you been in do-mestic service?" him to re-marry? Answer.-You can sue for separ-"Two years, ma'am."-Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Infant's Property. H. S. V .-- I am 16 years of age Harold-She turned me down, but didn't tell me why. Walle-Why didn't you ask her? Harold-Oh, I don't want to feel any and have recently been left quite an amount of property from a distant relative. Are my parents entitled to worse .- Boston Globe. any of this money for supporting me

"Why don't you get out and hustle? Hard work never killed anybody," re-marked the philosophical gentleman to whom Rastus applied for a little charity "You're mistaken dar, boss," repiled Rastus, "I'se lost fo' wives dat way." People's Home Journal. ODD AND INTERESTING. There is neither thunder not "Why are so many of these former war lightning in the Arctic circle. ords writing books The Persians have a differennt name for every day in the month.

"I support," said the sarcastic citizen "that they are trying to show how muci setter their hindsight is than their for-dight."—Birmingham Age-Herald. The annual number of pilgrims eight. LABOR. Until the year 1874 the Japanese

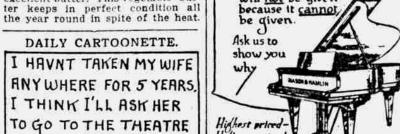

The whistle blows, And from the bench and shop And factory, a melting pot There comes a multitude; The youth with head erect And lithe of limb; The old and bent, slow of step, Their daily task Bear with fortitude. This is labor. Bear and the state of t In most Chinese cities the finest ops are those devoted to the sale more than any other animal pos-BELLEVIEW Omaha. No picture is hung in the Louvre, in Paris, until the artist has been

Why the

Mason & Hamlin is supreme VIII

Longest-lived piano in the world - bar none. Ask for a guarantee from the maker or seller of any other piano equal to the Mason & Hamlin guarantee. Such a guarantee will not be given because it cannot,

OUR EAST SHOW WINDOW EXHIBITS THE

Tonal Resonator

Have you seen anything like it on any other piano? It don't take the comprehension of a mechanic to tell that this is the device which holds the tone and keeps the sounding board perfect indefinitely.

Cash Prices .-- On Easy payments.

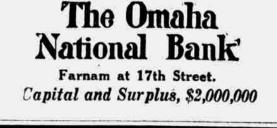

Liberty Bonds apply at par.

feel at home; to make it easy, pleasant and profitable for them to do business here is our foremost ambition.

The banking business calls for a high degree of conservatism and a strict regard for detail and accuracy.

But these things, we feel, need not prevent those engaged in this business from being human and regarding their patrons in the same light.

Chiropractic Spells HEALTH

in the second states of the Chiropractic adjustments remove the cause of disease, leaving the body in a healthy condition to properly function. Each organ being in condition to do its normal work means health and, as a result, happiness. I keep the machinery of your body running smoothly by chiropractic adjustments.

Telephone Douglas 9244. Residence Phone, Harney 7118.

Individual Attention to Each Patient

