

SCHOOL BOARD URGES 48 MILLS LEVY FOR YEAR

Educational Body, at Special Meeting, Votes to Ask for Increase of 25 Per Cent.

The Omaha board of education at a special meeting yesterday voted to ask the city council to make a levy of 48 mills for running the schools during the ensuing year. This is an increase of 25 per cent over the levy of last year which was only 35 mills, the maximum levy that could be made for school purposes. The legislature passed a law making 50 mills the maximum. Last year's levy did not pay school expenses, as the income from saloon licenses was cut off and various expenses were increased. It is estimated that the 48 mill levy will bring in $2,548,502 for the schools. Other incomes will bring the total income to $2,726,125. Of this sum, $1,543,950 will be spent for salaries of principals, supervisors and teachers, and for purchase of textbooks and supplies; for bond redemption and interest, $275,480 will be expended; for operation, janitors' salaries, fuel, water, light, power, etc., $250,996 will be spent; for general control, the sum of $92,156 has been set aside; for purchase of new sites, construction, alteration and improvements, purchase of new heating equipment, furniture, etc., $123,176 will be expended; on the deficit which has accumulated, $273,922 will be paid; for the pension fund, rent, insurance, special taxes, etc., $87,785 will be spent; upkeep of grounds, repair of buildings and heating plants, repair of furniture, etc., will require $43,000. The school levy of three years ago was 25 mills. Since that time increased payments in teachers' salaries have amounted to 11 mills on the assessed valuation of Omaha property; loss of revenue from saloon licenses has amounted to 8 mills; 4 1/2 mills of the present levy is to be devoted to paying off the deficit accumulated last year.

OMAHA UNIONS IGNORE MAYOR AT ANNUAL MEET

Chief Executive Not Invited to Make Labor Day Address for First Time in 25 Years.

For the first time during the last quarter of a century, the mayor of Omaha will not deliver the principal address when Labor day is celebrated in this city, September 1. Mayor Smith is the first of the city's chief executives in the past 25 years who has not been honored with an invitation to take the most prominent part in Omaha's program for this nation-wide observance. Organized labor has ignored Mayor Smith. He has been disapproved of by the central labor body of the city, and an out-of-town speaker will be invited to address the 18,000 members of union labor here when they gather for their annual celebration. The mayor's recent references to the cause of union labor have been condemned by the delegates to the central organization, and he has been officially declared to be unfair to the workmen. While arrangements for Labor day celebration were being discussed at a recent meeting of the Central Labor union, one of the delegates proposed that an invitation be tendered to the city's chief executive to deliver the principal Labor day address. The delegates who proposed the name of Mayor Smith explained that he was not prompted to do so because of his belief in the mayor's friendliness to the cause of labor, but because it had been the custom to select the head of the city government as the speaker on such occasions. The motion received a second and there were half a dozen delegates on their feet to oppose the proposition. Attention was called to Mayor Smith's many derogatory references to union labor amid enthusiastic applause. "Mayor Smith has misrepresented us at the city hall," declared one speaker. "On many occasions he has gone out of his way to show his contempt for us. He has sacrificed our respect. Why should we call on such a person to address us on Labor day?" Every delegate on the floor voted not to invite the mayor to deliver the address with the exception of the man who made the motion and the delegate who offered the second. It was voted then to invite Mayor Wallace M. Short of Sioux City, as the honored guest for the occasion. A delegation was sent to Sioux City to urge Mayor Short to accept the invitation. Mayor Short was obliged to decline the honor because of the fact he had made a previous promise to address a Labor day gathering in another city. Mayor Short declared he would be glad to speak to a meeting here of labor men at any other time.
