J. M. Boyd Gains Fifteen Pounds After Taking Tanlac.

"I have gained fifteen pounds since I began taking Tanlac and I feel better in my life than I do now," said J. M. Boyd, a well known real estate man, whose office is at 3327 Michigan Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

"For the past twelve months," continued Mr. Boyd, "I have suffered a great deal on account of the awful condition of my stomach. I was under treatment for a good while, and took many different kinds of medicines, but I just gradually grew worse until I commenced taking Tanlac. What I ate would sour, and this would cause gas to form on my stomach, and I would be perfectly miserable for hours at a time. I also suffered from constipation, and had to take a laxative of some kind every day. I lost weight and could just feel myself getting weaker all the time.

"Well, sir, before I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I could see that it was doing me a world of good. I continued to take it until my troubles were completely overcome. I have no sign of stomach trouble now, and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly, and that is saying a good deal, for I have a fine appetite and eat three hearty meals every day. I have gotten rid of the constipation also, and have gained a lot in weight, and feel full of strength and energy.

Society

SOARING temperatures have no effect on the activities of army folk, for military duties and social affairs go merrily on at the two army posts. With the announcement that Col. W. H. Jordan would leave Fort Crook Tuesday evening, a dinner party was hurriedly planned in his honor. Lt. and Mrs. L. Phillips gave the affair at Lieutenant Phillips' quarters, and it was a farewell, as Colonel Jordan left after the dinner for the east. An artistic basket of summer flowers decorated the table and the guests included Lieut. and Mrs. George Van Studdford, Lt. and Mrs. J. D. Pomeroy, Mrs. J. L. Phillips of New York and the bachelor officers at the fort. Army folk at both posts greatly regret the departure of Colonel Jordan, for, although his stay has been short, he has made many friends.

The military transport which arrived early Tuesday morning was quite the event of the day. As Lt. Col. Charles W. McClure, commander of the expedition, is an old friend of Col. Jacob W. S. Wuest, he will be the guest of Col. and Mrs. Wuest during his stay. A delightful dinner party was given Tuesday evening at the Athletic club by Col. and Mrs. Wuest in honor of their distinguished guest. The party included a number of the army set from Fort Omaha.

Heart Beats

My rendezvous
With Fame is broken
He's a trickster
And a cheat
Although he calls
And pleads with me
I merely laugh.
Unruly lumps
Crowd hard
Against my throat
But self-control
Grows stronger
As I choke them back.
Once
Long ago
We planned a meeting
At the gay footlights
When I should make
The world pay homage
To my temperament—
My art.
But fame forgot
Our rendezvous
So the world applauded
Meekly
Sighed and yawned
And strolled away.
Again we pledged
Our true alliance—
Fame to crown
My talents rare
But sly fox
He is too illusive
Forgets his pacts—
Heeds not
My prayers.
Now when he comes
Around annoying—
Tempting me
By fraud and baits
I know too well—
Although my heart
Goes pitty-patting
And I long
To reach his heights
I merely laugh
And then remember
How he's tricked me
In the past.
Although ambition clings
Close to me
And I'm struggling
On ahead
Disappointment
Costs such heartaches
That
I make no rendezvous
With Fame.

Bulky Food Is Necessary For Health

By Dr. Lorne A. Summers Armour & Co.

It is quite common to find as much or more sickness among the well-to-do classes of people than there is among the laboring classes. This, I believe, is due to the fact that the wealthy classes are more inclined to live on highly concentrated foods which leave no residue, such as chicken, polished rice, mashed potatoes, fine white bread and pastries.

A diet composed mainly of these foods will eventually result in derangement of the liver and chronic constipation, which have been found to be the real source and cause of nearly every disease. A person in this condition eventually becomes poisoned by his own waste material. Sooner or later the vitality is lowered and disease finds an easy foothold.

The diet of a laboring man usually consists of simple, plain and, generally coarse foods, having a large percentage of cellulose material forming plenty of bulk so necessary to perfect health.

Green vegetables, legumes, fruit and some cereals are, owing to their cellulose formation, found to be laxative. Such foods as spinach, carrots, green peas, green beans, sauerkraut cabbage, either canned or fresh, whole wheat, fruit, either fresh, canned or dried, prunes, cherries, grapes, figs, oranges, etc., may easily be worked into the menus of the different meals; for instance: Breakfast: Cherries, pineapple, orange or fig marmalade, oatmeal and bran bread and gems.

Noonmeal: Green peas, spinach, green beans, sauerkraut, cooked fruit such as apricots, and whole wheat bread may be used.

Brochette of Mushrooms and Bacon.

Peel fresh mushroom caps and discard the stems (use the peeling and stem for some other dish). Break the prepared caps, if large, in two or three pieces each, roll them in melted butter and press them on skewers, alternately, with very thin pieces of bacon an inch square. Broil about four minutes on each side, or cook in a hot oven.

Push from the skewers to slices of hot toast, spread over the whole maitre d'hotel butter and serve at once.
