In far away India there was fashioned a wedding gown of wondrous beauty. Sprays of lilies of the valley were embroidered on the filmy net and it may be that lovely dreams were woven into the fabric, for Miss Aloha Jenkins, whose marriage to James McConnee was solemnized Wednesday evening, wore this beautiful gown, brought to her from Calcutta by her uncle, Mr. Donald Wood.

A long tulle veil caught with pearls and a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas completed the bridal costume.

"Vanloha," the summer cottage of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jenkins, was the scene of the nuptials and a profusion of midsummer blossoms was used through the artistic rooms. Rev. Titus Lowe will read the marriage lines.

Miss Grace Marie Clarke of Ames, Ia., who was the bride's only attendant, wore a peachblow gown of georgette over satin and carried an arm bouquet of Killarney roses. Mr. Richard Stoodt of Atlantic, Ia., attended the bridegroom.

Under the light of twinkling lanterns on the porch and lawn an informal reception was held following the wedding. Mr. McConnee and his bride will spend their honeymoon at Piney Inn, Storey, Wyo., going to Storm Lake September 1 for several months. The bride's traveling suit was of blue tricotee with which she will wear a blue blouse and small hat to match.

The out-of-town guests included Miss Jane McNeil of Des Moines, Mrs. Mary McConnee, Ethel and George McConnee and George and Irwin Spence and Robert Dunn of Atlantic, Ia.

Morton-Post. Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Post announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Laura Post, to Richard Morton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Morton. The ceremony took place Wednesday morning at St. Bernard's church, Rev. Father Buckley officiating. Miss Carrie Seabuck was the only attendant. Mr. and Mrs. Morton will be at home after September 15, at 2518 North Sixty-fourth street.

My enemy
Is a coward
Whose sole ambition
Is to perpetrate
A lie
With honest mien.
His sneaking eye
Belies his smooth
Soft words
That drop like manna
From his slimy tongue.
Gifts he gives
With one intent—
To bring back gain
A thousand fold.
When he is kind
He is obsessed
With one idea—
To win the confidence
Of guileless minds
And grip them in his
Vile control.
He compliments
To pave the way
For some unkind
Or cruel thrust
To pierce the pride
And wound the spirit
At the proper hour.
He is unfair—
He is a cheat—
He is a fouler
In the game of friend
That should be played
With faith and fairness.
With smiles and smirks
For those above
He grinds his wicked heel
Upon the hearts
Of those below.
His mask is smiles—
His smiles are leers—
His leers are shafts
Of lightning tearing reason
To a million bits
Within my breast
And yet
When I deduct an average
From my song of hate—
Nine-tenths of this
May be untrue—
I cannot judge—
My eyes see red
Where white may be—
Because he is
My enemy.

Interallied Club Great Rendezvous

Le Harve, Aug. 5.—This little town that juts out over the sea is the meeting place of the ends of the earth. Two women, one American and the other English, have been acting as hostesses to these meeting every since the early war days.

They are Miss Jane Stebbins of Rochester, N. Y., and Miss Leslie Harpham of London. Both are in uniform of the Y. W. C. A. One is the American cut costume. The other is the British. Together they run the "Interallied Club" as it is known, after weeks of hard travel and find in it their first only organization of its kind in France. Their visitors' book shows the record of their entertainment of group after group of nurses and other women war workers coming in varying numbers from Russia, Serbia, Rumania, Italy, Ionica, Malta, Palestine, Bombay, Egypt, Mesopotamia, Australia and Constantinople. Practically all of their guests are English, Canadian, Australian or American women on their way home.

They come to the "Interallied Club" as it is known, after weeks of hard travel and find in it their first glimpse of warmth, cleanliness, homeliness and good food. The club is not only for people passing through Le Harve but is also for any woman of allied countries in Le Harve. And this remarkable club does not even stop with a woman membership basis. There is a "Tea Room" club for allied soldiers in Le Harve.

The Blue Triangle letter has demands made upon it at all hours of the day and night, for trains and ships considering no sleeping rules. In Miss Stebbins' words "it is for ships that pass in the night and speak to each other in the passing."

Lovelorn

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Just Children.

Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Am looking for advice, so we thought we would ask you. We are two great chums and are in great trouble. We are both 14 years. We have two boy friends. They take us home from parties and dances and then kiss us good-night. Do you think it is proper? One night we went out riding with them. We were near home and the car stopped. It was 12 o'clock, and we were going to walk home because we couldn't get the car started, but our friends told us not to, and so we got home at 2:30. Do you think that is too late to be out? How long do you think we should wear our dresses? Many people tell us we wear our dresses too long and it makes us feel blue. How should we wear our hair? We use rouge and powder because our skin is tanned and freckled. Do you think that will harm our skin? TWO PUPPETS.

P. S.—Please give advice as soon as possible. Thanking you in advance. Two girls, 14 years old, should not be riding with boys at 12 o'clock. You are but children and if you start out with boys at this age you are piling up trouble for yourselves. You should be in school during the day and in bed at night. What are your parents thinking of to permit you to be out in this careless fashion?

The Bachelor. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Have seen in the "Lovelorn" where a man wants a wife. If he wishes to write to me please send him my address, but not through "The Bee," please. BLOND. I haven't his address. Sorry.
