

PACKERS DENY HOARDING FOOD IN WAREHOUSES

No Attempt Made, However, to Refute Figures Showing Vast Quantities In Storage Here.

Omaha packers deny that they are hoarding food in local cold storage warehouses. No attempt was made, however, to refute statistics published in The Bee showing that three months ago over 10,000,000 pounds of meat was stored in Omaha cold storage warehouses by local packers, and no claim was made by packers today that the quantity had been greatly diminished during the past 90 days.

R. C. Howe, general manager of the Armour Packing Co., said he had no figures which would show the amount of meat stored in the Armour warehouse on the South Side. He declared that it was necessary, however, to store large quantities of meat during the fall shipping season to supply the demand during the year.

M. R. Murphy, general manager of the Cudahy Packing Co., estimated that the Cudahy company in Omaha had 3,000,000 pounds of meat on hand at the present time, but declared that a large part of it was in the process of curing and not marketable.

Official figures given out by the Chicago Board of Trade show that 53,700,000 pounds of meat are in storage on the South Side, in the process of being cured or in storage.

H. O. Edwards, general manager of the Swift Packing company, admitted that a large part of this amount was probably in storage, but declared that large amounts were always stored at this time of year. The Chicago Board of Trade figures show that there were 53,200,000 pounds of meat on hand at the South Side a year ago at this time, or 500,000 pounds less than this year.

Frank A. Petersen, assistant United States district attorney, stated today that figures printed in The Bee showing the enormous amounts of meat stored in local warehouses would be of great value to him in his work of prosecuting hoarders.

County Attorney Shotwell said he believed the federal government would be able to deal with the cold storage problem, and promised all the assistance his office could furnish.

Juvenile Victim of Aphasia Is Taken To Riverview Home

Joseph Kofitz, 11 years old, was turned over to juvenile authorities Thursday by street car employes, who stated he had ridden on one street car for several hours and had remained on the car when it was taken into the car barn.

Young Kofitz was unable to tell juvenile officers where he lived and said he could remember nothing of the past.

"I am not sure whether I live in Council Bluffs or in Omaha," he said. "I went to what they called Avenue B school, and my mother's first name is Lizzie. That's all I can remember."

Juvenile officers at first thought the lad was a runaway, but after much questioning decided that his mind was a blank as far as all past events were concerned.

He was taken to the Riverview home pending further investigation.

Butler to Start Move In Council to Repeal New Parking Ordinance

So unpopular is the "parallel parking" ordinance, passed recently by the city council that a move will be made to repeal it at the council meeting next Monday when Commissioner Butler will introduce a resolution for this purpose.

"Scores of complaints have come to me," he said. "People drive their cars in parallel to the curb and then someone drives right up behind them and one right in front of them and it's next to impossible to get out. It doesn't serve any good purpose at all."

The ordinance provides that cars on all streets having street railway tracks and on all other streets 40 feet or less in width must be parked parallel with the curb instead of "head on" to the curb.

14 Carloads of Tanks And Artillery Will Be Shown Here Next Week

The Chamber of Commerce is advised that either Wednesday or Thursday of next week Ordnance train No. 100, carrying 14 carloads of tanks, tractors and heavy artillery will be in Omaha.

The movement is in charge of Lt. A. V. Winton.

Lieutenant Winton writes that all of the army equipment is from overseas and was used on the battlefields of France. He desires the assistance of the Chamber in obtaining exhibit and suggests that the location be wooded and somewhat hilly.

For viewing the exhibit, which is in the interest of the recruiting branch of army service, no admission will be charged.

While attempting to cross the street in front of his home yesterday C. F. Bonghart, 330 South Thirty-first street, was struck by an automobile and injured. He was carried back to his home. His injuries are not serious.

No Gas Shortage Here

While Des Moines and other Iowa cities report a shortage of gasoline due to the strike of railroad employes, local oil men say that there is no shortage of gas in Omaha or Nebraska.
