Red Cross

Varied and interesting are the experiences of the workers at the sta-and rescued from an island, and were enroute to New York to sail for Brest. Mr. George Prinz conversed with them, obtaining this information, but as the men had no knowledge of English the pretty Louise Cotter, who was acting captain, received a pretty necklace from one of the sailors, made of tiny yellow shells. Three pearls were also given to Miss Cotter, and the shell in which they were found. Ribbons, buttons and decorations were cut from their uniforms and presented to the young women, as with smiles and nods the Frenchmen said goodby.
