

EX-SALOONIST FINED $100 ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Charles Lewis Appeals Case to District Court—Contraband Held Pending Hearing.

Charles Lewis, former saloon keeper, was fined $100 and costs yesterday in police court by Judge Foster for unlawful possession of liquor.

Lewis appealed the case and the confiscated liquor was ordered held pending a hearing in district court.

Lewis' conviction followed a raid and seizure of whisky, wines and cordials at his home, 1030 South Thirtieth avenue, by State Agent R. P. Samardick, Wednesday night.

Stock Worth $15,000. The wines and liquors seized in the raid were valued at $15,000, according to officers.

Mr. Lewis, however, denies the value of the seized liquor exceeds $600.

"It cost less than $600 at the time it was purchased," he said. "Of course, what the liquor might be worth today, or next year, is problematical. Reports of the value of the stock, however, have been greatly exaggerated."

Lewis declared the liquor was stored in his home before the first of May, 1917, the date Nebraska went dry.

Judge Foster, in imposing the fine, said the quantity was unreasonable. Samardick testified Lewis threatened him with a shotgun. He said Lewis dropped the weapon after Mrs. Lewis pleaded with him.

"I didn't intend to hurt anybody, judge," said Lewis. "I thought the gun would lend emphasis to my remarks. I didn't know the men were officers until my wife and others in the room said they were."

Mr. Lewis was not at home when Samardick, accompanied by the police morals squad, came to the house.

He was located at the Elks' club by Mrs. Lewis, who told him men purporting to be officers were searching the house for liquor.

The Lewis case is similar to the Burright case, tried a year ago in district court.

Burright, a former Omaha saloonkeeper, was arrested and fined in police court for unlawful possession of liquor. No evidence was introduced to show he had sold or given any of it away.

Case Was Appealed. The case was appealed and a jury decided in Burright's favor. The liquor, a quantity equal to that seized at the Lewis home Wednesday night, was restored to him.

A feature of the case was that though the police morals squad accompanied Samardick to the Lewis home they were ordered by Captain of Police Haze to take no part in the seizure.

The arrest was credited to the state agent. Captain Haze declared at the time that in his opinion the seizure would be futile.

Special Train of Navy Will Be Here August 22. An advance party of navy publicity men, headed by Chief Yeoman J. H. Adkins of the New York Bureau, and including Clark Kimball, managing editor of the Great Lakes Bulletin and William Magrane, an assistant to Lieutenant Commander Wells Hawks, navy publicity officer, is in Omaha preparing for the visit here of a navy special train in Omaha August 22. South Side SOUTH SIDERS ASK EXTENSION OF CAR ROUTING

Want Bellevue Line to Go Through to J Street to Benefit Churches and High School.

South Side citizens have signed a petition asking the street railway company to extend their route of the Bellevue cars to J street. Three churches and the high school are at Twenty-third and J, while other public buildings are within the radius of a block from that point.

At present the car backs onto the "Y" at Twenty-fourth and N streets. This makes it necessary for several scores of Sarpy county high school students either to walk four blocks in winter or to pay another car fare. On Sundays, worshippers from Bellevue and college students there have had to walk the remaining distance or wait for a second car.

N street is only one block inside the business district, the petitioners say, and service as far as L street, at least, should be given. So sincere are the signers in their purpose that they offer to pay the entire cost of laying a new "Y" at J street.

J street is the widest street running east and west on the South Side. It is 98 feet broad at Twenty-third street.

Practically no Poles are leaving the South Side for Europe. Because of conditions in Poland none are able to leave the country for America, say South Siders, who are awaiting relatives from the old country.

Several Narrowly Escaped Injury When Autos Crash. Several persons narrowly escaped serious injury in two automobile accidents on the South Side, Wednesday. Harry Shophier, 2514 J street, and Harry Nieman, 3715 South Twenty-eighth street, received minor injuries when autos driven by them collided at Twenty-fifth and J streets at 8:45 p. m. Wednesday.

E. Fitzgerald, 4430 South Twenty-second street, was arrested for careless driving upon the complaint of Tom Dimirff, 3120 Q street, who was hurt when Fitzgerald knocked him down. Fitzgerald was dismissed in police court. The accident occurred at Twenty-sixth and Q streets.

Stolen Car Recovered. A new automobile, stolen from Herman Eckerson, 2114 Harney street, was found yesterday by South Side police near Avery, Neb. A front wheel was broken and all accessories stolen. The machine was taken from in front of 203 South Fifteenth street Wednesday by two men.

Omaha Youth Who Saw Much Fighting With the A. E. F. Returns Home

Sergt. Fred M. Seger, an Omaha boy, formerly a Bee carrier, has returned from 16 months spent overseas. Fred landed in New York August 6.

Sergeant Seger was a member of Company H, 39th infantry, Fourth division, and was all through the Argonne forest fighting, August 4, 1918, he was gassed and was in the hospital nearly three months. July 4, 1918, he was in Paris, and the following day left for the front. From that time on until the signing of the armistice, with the exception of the three months in the hospital, he was in the thickest of the fighting.

The company to which he was attached, was the first to cross the Vesel river when the allied troops started on their march to Germany. His battalion was the first to occupy the city of Coblenz. His twin brother is still overseas with the army of occupation.

Warrant Issued for Hog Rancher Who Had $5000. A federal warrant was sworn out yesterday for Joseph Spoljar, manager of a hog ranch, four and one-half miles northwest of Papillion, arrested Wednesday when a whisky "still" was discovered on the farm. He is charged with setting up and operating a still without paying the government revenue tax.

Warrants have been sworn out for two other men on the same charge.
