

WOMAN'S SECTION OF THE BEE

The poor alone are outcasts; they who risked all they possessed for liberty, and last! And wander through the world without a friend. Sick, comfortless, distressed, unknown, uncared for. —Longfellow

But Knowledge to their eyes her ample page, Rich with the spoils of time, did never unfold; Call penny-repressed their noble rage, And froze the genial current of the soul. —Gray

MISS SARAH COLE, who has spent more than three months overseas as a Red Cross canteen worker, returned Thursday. Miss Cole sailed for Brest on March 26. She spent two weeks in Paris and then was sent to Toul, one of the largest canteen centers, where 20 girls were stationed. Toul was the headquarters of the Second army and Miss Cole says that the canteen served as many as 8,000 boys each day. After the Second army left that section the Toul canteen accommodated 5,000 soldiers each day. French and Belgian soldiers often frequented the canteen, but the majority of them spoke English she had very little opportunity to use her knowledge of French.

Miss Cole visited several of the devastated regions in France and made a short trip to Coblenz, where she saw many soldiers who were in the Army of Occupation. Every one of them was restless and eager to sail for the "States." This canteen worker believes that nearly all of them have sailed for home by this time.

Nine and Monte Carlo were also among the spots Miss Cole visited and she says that she would like to return to France to travel there because of the historical and beautiful things to be seen, but would not wish to make it her home as the customs differ so greatly from those of America and nothing is at all "up-to-date."

The "Patria" on which she returned made only one stop which was at Oran on the northern coast of Africa. The new section of the town is much like the cities in France, but in the older sections the Arabian customs prevail. Miss Cole is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Cole. She has made no plans as to the future, but will remain in Omaha.

Heartbeats

By A. K.

I have a thirst—
An unquenchable thirst
These hot
And parching days
The very essence
Of my being
Shrieks with piercing pangs
For quenching potions—
When these dry and arid
Eyes of mine
See lupine blue
Sometimes I lose
My courage
For the fight—
My spirit weakens
With the waning light—
Then
When night's purple curtain
Folds softly around
The earth
I grip new hope
But ever this thirst
Springs up again—
For one deep draught
I'd give my "lucky star"
All through the waking hours
This thirst consumes me
And drives cold
Barren logic
From my brain—
My daily sustenance
Is almost mockery
At times—
Little rest comes to
This weary
Worn-out brain.
Distorted is my reason—
Disfigured are plain facts
Which come to calm
This charge
Nerve-cremated
Gray matter of mine.
My wings have been singed
In adventurous flight—
I have suffered
The tortures
Of earthly hells—
But a thirst like this
That scorches
And freezes—
Keeps one thought toward Heaven
And one toward Hades.
Let me drink
Oh, Almighty!
Long deep draughts
From Wisdom's immortal well—
And quench this
Torturing
Burning thirst
For greater knowledge
And the Truth.

OF INTEREST TO ALL.

If the window screens stick during the damp days just rub a little common soap both on the screen and the screen strip and the trouble will be remedied.

Buttermilk is a highly recommended hot-weather drink. It is a food as well as a drink and decidedly nourishing. It should be kept near the ice and drunk very slowly.

Raspberry vinegar or lime juice added to cool water makes a delicious hot-weather drink, and then there is the old-fashioned mead, which can be made at home, and is a specially good thirst quencher.

There is, for instance, lemonade. If this is made up of lemon juice kept on ice and water which has been laid for Mr. and Mrs. Lee Terrell of Lincoln and Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Davis.

Then there are the fruit juices, which can be purchased in bottled form. The loganberry juice is especially satisfying and there is the popular grape juice, which is a food as well as a beverage. The fruit juices from canned fruits, especially currants, are excellent added to drinking water.

Vast amounts of soft drinks are being imbibed during these hot days. In many households the refrigerator is stocked out with these beverages. And then the consumers complain that these do not quench thirst. Then why drink them? There are so many things more satisfying, and they do not tax the digestive organs so severely.

Omar Flour Bread makes healthy, happy children

Omar

My! How the little kiddies—eyes sparkle when, after a romp, they come in for a between meals slice of Omar flour bread. And your little tot will be just about the most popular in the neighborhood, after the first day he or she trails in with playmates to "Mumsey," if Omar bread and jam, or with some good old fashioned molasses and real butter, is handed around.

Just cut liberal slices of Omar bread, and you can cut out the ceremony so far as they are concerned. Leave it to the kiddies to spot the taste—we have seen to it that the real nourishment is there too.

So that is why—with every sack there goes this guarantee:

"If Omar doesn't bake the best bread you ever baked, simply take the empty sack to your grocer, and get your money."
