

They live too long who happiness outlive; For life and death are things indifferent; Each to be chose, as either brings content. —Dryden.

My very chains and I grew friends. So much a long communion tends To make us what we are; even I Regain'd my freedom with a sigh.—Byron.

Slaves
We were
Whose souls wandered
This earth in the
Bodies of women.
Slaves of men—
Slaves of circumstances—
Slaves of society—
Slaves of political systems.
There was no freedom
For women.
No political freedom—
No professional freedom—
No freedom to work
Or to roam unhampered
In the wide world.
But there came a time
When
In their righteous
Indignation
Women began with
Susan B. to wage war
On the "system."
They fought long
And hard—
A century—
For equality
For their rights
And for freedom.
Some used fire
And some used honey
But they all
Longed and fought for freedom

Friscio Girl Sues Estate for Payment of a $1,000 'Love Check'
Whether a "love check" is a legal instrument and must be honored as such is a question that the San Francisco courts have been called upon to decide by the suit of Miss Violet Guerrieri against Dr. P. H. Luttrell, executor of the estate left by the young woman's fiancée. Two weeks before the date set for her wedding to a wealthy contractor, the intended bridegroom died. When his estate came up for probate the girl presented the check for $1,000 made in her favor by her fiancée. A notation on the check in the contractor's handwriting stated that it was "a present of love."

Early Fall Coats and Smart Hats

The soft crown of blue taffeta combines charmingly with the tan suede-cloth trim, wide in front and turned back to support a long tan wing.

A blue and white wing adds a piquant note to the velvet hat rolled back from the face; in black, blue, brown or taupe.

For early autumn is this coat of dyed marmot—a rather short cut fur similar to Kolinsky—in light tan color, trimmed with collar and cuffs of taupe nutria or raccoon. Note the belted front and flared back, which are the newest lines.

Frills and Fluffs. The favorable summer hues range from periwinkle to cornflower. Dresses are combining organdie and linen, or ratine and pongee. Pleated skirt fluffs are the best trimming for sheer cotton gowns. Huge butterfly bows form the back of some smart summer hats.

I Went for a Ride
By LENNA W. BROWN
I went for a ride this morning—
For a ride in the cool of the dawn,
Far out where the hills are sleeping,
And fields like a checkered lawn.

A. I the river lay like silver,
Poured down from the limb of the sky;
F. the mist rose up in the distance,
And blended the deep and the high.
And the sun climbed up from his cradle—
Around the red fire flame.
And he kissed the pale cloud-maidens,
Till their fair cheeks blushed with shame.

And the little weeds by the roadside
Held up their sweet homely flowers;
And the fresh scent of their petals
Swept back to forgotten hours.
Swept me back to the hours of childhood—
Of another world it seems!
When the same little weeds by the roadside
Wove their subtle scents in my dreams.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Love Comes Unbidden and, "To Love or Not We Are No More Free Than the Ripple to Rise and Leave the Sea."

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Romance. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I have been a very close reader of your columns and, as I know you render good advice, I'm bringing my problem to you. I'm a young man, 23 years old. About four years ago I got to going with a near neighbor's girl, who is now 22 years old. We kept company and wrote to each other for nearly three years. Her parents always talked to me and treated me all right, but her father, according to the girl's statements, used to scold the girl and forbid her to go with me, so a year ago we made a promise not to have any relationship pass between us for a year, which we carried out, and find that our love is still true, but her father still objects. I have a very good position. My character and reputation are above reproach. I've lived a perfect life, never flirted with other girls and always thought of this one girl, who admits that she loves me dearly and that I'm always in her mind. She dislikes the idea of an elopement because she is afraid she'd never be welcomed home, and she is a great home loving, well respected and refined country girl.

HEARTBROKEN. It is indeed refreshing to read a letter like yours, for it proves that romance is not dead, as the cynics try to make us believe. Since it is impossible to overrule the objections of your fiancée's parents I see no way but to take the matter in your own hands. Before you do this, I would certainly have a talk with her father and find out just what his objections are. It may be that you can come to some amicable arrangement. You have had a long courtship and have proved that you love this girl. Frankness always pays; try to make her parents see your side of the case before you plan any elopement.

Nick Carter. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Is there any such detective as Nickolas Carter? If so, where does he reside? His real name and age, if you can tell. This is to settle an argument. AL T. LUTHER, Oxford, Neb.

Movie Actor. Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: Please, please be so kind and answer the following questions for me: Is the movie actor, Webster Campbell, married? How old is he and what is his full address? Is he a very popular star? Thanking you in advance and hoping to see my letter in print soon, I am, INQUISITIVE.

"Yvette" is "Evet." Dear Miss Fairfax, Omaha Bee: I see in "Advice to Lovelorn" where you help so many people both in love affairs and many other things, so I thought perhaps you would help me. How do you pronounce the name "Yvette"? I thought it was pronounced "Yevett."

Mickie. Your stepmother probably has a great task. Naturally she feels the responsibility of bringing up another woman's daughter, especially when this little daughter slips out. It is hard for you to see that she has your good at heart, but when you are 22 or 23 your eyes will begin to open to the true state of affairs and you will judge your stepmother less harshly.

D. L. D.— Jack Holt's address is 1624 Gardner street, Hollywood, Calif. I do not know his age or whether he is married. Dorothy Dalton is 26 years old. She lives at 805 Crescent Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. I believe that she is not married. Norma Talmage is married to Joseph Schenk. The majority of actresses have stage names. Mary Pickford is not divorced. There are too many beautiful women on the stage today to state that any one of them is the most beautiful on the American stage. I can not answer your question concerning Elsie Ferguson. Louise Huff was born and educated in Columbus, Ga.

Ambitions.—There surely are many women who would be glad to have a girl as willing as you are to help them in their household before and after school hours. I know personally of several girls who have gone through both high school and college by earning their board and room in such a way. As you like small children you will find a place much more readily.

SEMPRAY Face Powder
Always use SEMPRAJ JOVE-NAY in combination with SEMPRAJ Face Powder. Use face cream in case form—a most unusual complexion requisite.
SEMPRAY Face Powder will not appeal particularly to the matron or miss who chooses her face powder carelessly.
But to the woman who can appreciate a certain indefinable quality touch—marvelous smoothness—and the delicacy of a most wonderful perfume—there is nothing quite so good as SEMPRAJ Face Powder.

wear will be worn. The English walking shoe will be the most popular for street wear for young girls. If you decide to come to Omaha, let me know and I will help you find a home in exchange for services.

A Socialist.—I really think you are mistaken concerning the mobbery in Nebraska schools. In all localities and in all classes there are snobs. Some of those who are the most snobbish are possessed of little to make them so. Many of our wealthiest girls are more democratic than those who are in moderate circumstances. The universities of Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri are near and are not very expensive. Write to the registrar at East of these schools and ask for any information you desire.

Dolly Dimples.—You are a better judge of the young man's attitude toward you than I could be. From your letter I should believe that you do not care much for him. It would have been proper for the parents to have asked you to accompany them if they had desired to do so. It is entirely a matter for them to decide. Trips to Texas are very expensive at present and perhaps you impressed them as being too desirous of the company of other men.
