

South Side BIG BUSINESS REPORTED LAST WEEK AT YARDS

Sheep and Cattle Receipts
Break All Records for Week at South Side
Stock Yards.

Live stock commission men are wearing broad smiles over the big business at the yards during the past week. The week's totals of cattle and sheep broke all records. Monday's total of cattle set the high mark for the year; Monday's sheep and total receipts grazed the yard records and E. E. Grimes, joint agent of the railroads, concluded the week with the promise of a record-smashing day Monday, when more than 1,000 cars are expected.

Sheep continue to come heavily to the market because of drought and lack of feed. This week's receipts were 187,334 head, as opposed to 163,692 head, the record last week. For the corresponding week last year receipts of sheep were 123,617 head. The gain over the same number of days last year is 351,737.

Cattle totalled 52,121 head this week as against 34,766 head last week, and 27,284 head last year this week. A decline of from 50 cents to $1 marked the close of the week. Cattle still show a decrease. The loss at the end of last week was only 124,555 head, as compared with the decrease of 148,977 last week.

Seventy Union Men at Armour's Plant Quit Work in Body

Seventy union men in the Armour sheep-killing gang drew their pay Saturday and left in a body when the discharge of two nonunion men was refused.

"We have two men who would not join the union, and under our government agreement we couldn't discharge them when we were asked by Jacob Davis, business manager of the union, to do so," stated J. E. Stotler, superintendent of the sheep department. "At 7:30 they refused to work. Then they got their pay and left."

Union men assert that it is a lock-out and not a strike. "They have had two men there that have been running down the union and insulting the union men," stated Jacob Davis. "Under the Alschuler agreement discrimination against union men is forbidden. We protested and they told the gang that they didn't want any more union labor than they could help and told the men to get their pay."

After leaving the plant the men assembled in the Butcher Workmen hall, Twenty-fourth and O streets, and decided not to return to work individually.

Union men assert that the two nonunion men were put into the gang to persuade new employees not to join the union. Superintendent Stotler denies this and states that the union men have been causing the trouble.

No attempt to arrange a hearing has been made. Most of the strikers are negroes.

Police Either Did Not Want To Arrest Kelly or Were Afraid to Clash With Him

Witnesses Declare Member of Morals Squad Fired Five Shots at Fleeing Youth When Latter Disappeared Into Alley—Detectives Feared What He Might Tell If Captured, is Belief.

The morals squad either did not want Roy Kelley, the youthful fugitive who has brought charges of graft and other criminal practices against certain members of the police force or they were afraid to pursue the 18-year-old boy into the darkness of an alley near South Twentieth and Dorcas streets early yesterday morning, after they saw him alight from an automobile carrying two suit cases of whisky.

According to witnesses, Sergeant Thestrup, followed by Detectives Herdzina, Armstrong and Crawford fired five shots at Kelley, when the boy dropped the cases and disappeared in the mouth of an alley.

Kelley Didn't Return Fire. Contrary to the statement given out at the police station, Kelley did not fire a shot at the policemen. The officers chased the boy for a half block and Thestrup fired at him five times. Thestrup's weapon was the only one discharged during the short race. The four husky policemen, Commissioner Ringer's selected and favored above all the members of the department, halted at the mouth of the alley in which the 18-year-old youth plunged to escape his pursuers.

They either feared to meet Roy

Kelley, four full grown men to one boy, in the dark alley, or they feared what he would tell if they arrested him, is the belief of the residents, in the vicinity who witnessed the affair.

Kelley issued a statement a short while ago over his signature charging he had paid money to policemen on Douglas street bridge for the privilege of bringing consignments of whiskey to Omaha. He also charges that the raid on the Brown apartments was a frameup between detectives, Herdzina and Armstrong and himself. This was three months ago. Roy Kelley has been in the city ever since, and some of the members of the police department have been pretending to make an effort to apprehend him. Although Chief Eberstein has issued a general order demanding Kelly's arrest, he is still walking the streets.

Thestrup Feared "Bootleggers." "The bootleggers are trying to kill us policemen," Sergeant Thestrup remarked when he returned to the police automobile in front of the soft drink saloon conducted by Elias Genko, 2202 South Twentieth street. "That fellow fired seven shots at us, I emptied my gun, too, and I believe I struck him."

Sergeant Thestrup did not venture an explanation as to why he and his men did not venture into the dark alley after the fugitive. Kelly just had stepped from an automobile with two suit cases of whisky when the chase began. Edward Watson, a taxi driver living at the Harvard hotel, remained seated in the car and was placed under arrest on a charge of illegal transportation of intoxicating liquor. Statement of Citizen.

"I heard five shots and am positive that no one shot at the policemen, who were in hiding when Kelly and Watson drew up in the automobile," declared W. H. Kessler, 2210 South Twentieth street. "All of the shots came from one revolver."

Other witnesses declared they saw Thestrup aim and fire several times at the fugitive.

Despite Thestrup's declaration that he believed he had wounded Kelly, not one of the policemen would follow the suggestion to venture into the alley to investigate.

Roy Kelley was seen talking to friends at noon yesterday on the corner of Sixteenth and Farnam streets. He was safe and sound and joined in the hilarity of the party as they laughed at the antics of Traffic Officer Dudley.

Woman Sheep Buyer Leaves Breeches at Home on Buying Trip

Mixing with the men in the sheep barn, Mrs. M. W. Slattery, the first woman buyer on the local live stock market, spent a profitable week buying 17 double-deck cars of feeder sheep for a large live stock company in North Dakota owned by her father.

"I feel that I can do everything except whistle," said Mrs. Slattery, who is a brunette, about 35 years old, blue-eyed and jolly. "I generally wear khaki breeches at home, but I don't believe I will—here."

"My father owns the Ewilla stock farm near Cogswell, N. D. I am his partner. I used to make the deals with the farmers for feeders while my father bought them in Omaha. This time he let me buy them."

"Yes, I love dogs," she said, looking at three fine collies she bought during the week. "Father has threatened to dissolve partnership if I bring any more dogs home."

Mrs. Slattery spends her winters in California after the sheep trading season is over. She expects to be back at the market soon.
