COAL FAMINE NEXT WINTER FACING U. S.

Unrest Among Miners, Shortage of Cars and Other Factors Cause Serious Condition, Say Witnesses.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Entering on an investigation of the increased price of coal, a senate interstate commerce subcommittee brought forth testimony that a shortage of cars and labor difficulties were hindering coal production, that certain elements in the miners' unions were intent on nationalization of the coal mines with adoption of a six-hour day and a five-day week plus a wage increase, and that unless problems of production were solved the country would be brought face to face with a coal famine in the coming winter.

So emphatic were the witnesses that the railroads were at the bottom of the present low production that Senator Frelinghuysen, chairman of the committee, indicated the committee's intention of bringing Director General of Railroads Hines into the hearing. Would Nationalize Mines. After detailing the effects of labor difficulties and alleged car shortage on coal production, Harry N. Taylor, president of the National Coal association, an organization of operators, declared a bill had been prepared for submission to congress providing for the nationalization of the mines. He added that what the miners wanted was not only that the government should own the properties but that the mines should be turned over to them for operation. He insisted that the more radical of the miners appeared to be gaining control in certain districts and that there was a serious danger that these elements would make an earnest effort for the institution of something approaching "soviet methods" in conducting the properties.

Fear Further Danger Fear was expressed by Mr. Taylor that at the miners' convention, September 9 in Cleveland, and at the joint conference of miners and operators in Buffalo, September 25, action might be taken to further endanger production. He told the committee that the strikes in Illinois, Kansas and Missouri were in violation of the Washington agreement, which provided for the continuous operation of the mines until peace definitely is established. The conduct of the strike in the middle west, he said, were in many cases influenced by radical elements. He said it was known generally in the industry that an attempt would be made at the Cleveland meeting to put through a nationalization program, with a six-hour day, a five-day week, and an increase in wages.

Car Shortage Big Factor The possible conversion of the coal-price hearing into an investigation of the efficiency of the railroad administration, was indicated during the testimony of John Callahan, traffic director of the coal association. Both Mr. Callahan and J. D. Morrow, vice-president of the association, had supplemented the statements of Mr. Taylor that a car shortage was the most important single factor in delaying delivery. Senator Frelinghuysen asked Mr. Callahan if he would obtain for him certain specific information regarding operating idle cars and other features of that information in order to question Director General Hines.

Estate of Charles H. Brown Is Divided In Three Equal Parts

The estate of Charles H. Brown, who died about two years ago, has been divided into three equal parts as the result of a friendly suit in district court. The findings of the appraisers, John L. McCague, Fred Shotwell and Howard Miller, were approved by the district court yesterday. The suit was brought by Charles H. Brown and James Brown, through Randall K. Brown and Francis A. Brogan, against Ella May Brown. Charles and James are children of the deceased, and Ella May Brown is his widow. Each share is worth a little more than $60,000. Charles Brown was a prominent real estate man. Among his holdings was the Brown block, Sixteenth and Douglas streets.

FLASHES from FILMLAND PHOTO-PLAY OFFERINGS FOR TODAY

"Yankee Doodle in Berlin," which has the bevy of beauty traveling with the picture, known throughout the world as Mack Sennett's Bathing Girls, will be seen at the Brandeis theater the second week in September. If other cities are a criterion, we will see the theater packed from floor to ceiling, as they certainly have gone wild about these girls, in the cities that have been played already. They are the prettiest girls that could be found in the west, and that's one thing we can boast, that we have beauty in the west, and that these darlings are the pick, so they must be some babies.

Empress—"A Favor to a Friend," the photoplay attraction at the Empress, is an interesting, breezy sort of story combining both romance and adventure in equal parts and as for its star, the brilliant comedienne, Emmy Wehlen, fitted with the most charming role ever given her.

Sun—"This Hero Stuff," which begins a four-day engagement at the Sun theater Wednesday, August 27, is based on the experiences of Captain November Jones, who was wearied of the adulation that confronted him at every turn. He took measures to blast his reputation for bravery and win him another for being a coward. The subject is given snappy, humorous treatment. It is replete with chuckles for the spectator who likes wholesome fun.

AT THE THEATERS

RUTH CHATTERTON, who appears in the fascinating comedy, "The Merrie Month of May," at the Brandeis theater on next Friday and Saturday, with a Saturday matinee, has been surrounded with an exceptionally fine company by Henry Miller, under whose management she appears. Lucile Watson, a most popular comedienne, and Charles Trowbridge, one of the best portrayers of light comedy parts among the youngsters, have been with Miss Chatterton before. The new members of her company include Edward Fielding, for years with the Charles Frohman companies; James Rennie, who promises to be the most popular leading man on the stage, and who, by the way, served with such credit as a member of the Royal Flying corps during the war that he came out with the rank of captain; Katherine Emmet, an old-established favorite; Sydney Booth, the last of the Booths and a nephew of the late Edwin Booth; Lawrence Edginger, well known from coast to coast as a character actor of unusual ability, and Flora Sheffield, a young woman of much promise.

Graphically told in rhythmic pantomime, the story of the time of Attila and the Huns is presented this week at the Orpheum. It is the most dramatic offering that the Morgan ballet has ever produced. That Omaha appreciates the best that the Orpheum circuit has to offer is demonstrated by the great audiences which crowd the theater at each performance. The music of the dance drama is descriptive of the story. It is a mass of movement and colorful expression. The first violins of a symphony orchestra do not bow with any more precision or harmony than the dancers move in developing the story which they vividly portray. No dance production has ever found its way to vaudeville with quite the distinction which characterizes this act.

Do You Know Your Own Business? If you own shares in a business do you want a Government employe to tell your executives how to run your business? If you are a loyal employe, do you want a political appointee to have the power to injure your concern by hampering its operations or by interfering with its efficiency? Perhaps you have noticed the effect of Government control on the railroads, telegraph, and telephone. Bills have been introduced to license and regulate the packing industry—perhaps your business will be next.
