

CITY CLERK SAYS TIME EXPIRED ON RECALL PETITION

Promoters of Movement Believe There Is "Joker" and That They Yet Have Two Days' Grace.

City Clerk Hunter asserts that the 10 days in which a supplementary recall petition should have been filed in his office, expired at 5 p. m., Tuesday.

No supplemental petition has been filed and, therefore, he contends that the original petition for the recall of Mayor Smith and City Commissioners Ringer, Towl and Ure has been automatically rendered null and void.

The petition was filed with the city clerk August 15, containing 5,480 signatures. August 23 the city clerk reported to the council that the petition did not contain sufficient signatures, although he did not certify as to the correctness of the signatures in the petition.

Based on Gas Proposition. The clerk, in his certificate, stated that he held that the number of signatures should have been based on 30 per cent of the total vote on the gas plant purchase proposition at the last city election, which was about 22,000.

The promoters of the recall petition have been basing their calculation on 10 days from the time the city clerk certified to the council, which was on August 25, rather than on 10 days from the date of the clerk's certificate. They believe there is a joker in this and that they yet have two days of grace in which to file their supplement petition, which they declare contains 4,000 or 5,000 additional names.

May Disregard Old Petition.

"If they are going to follow these methods and refuse to accept our supplemental petition, we will file it, all we will have to do is to disregard the old petition and start all over again," said J. R. Lones, one of the attorneys who is interested in the recall movement. "We can and will prepare another recall petition and will be able to obtain all the signatures that the city clerk or another city hall official may believe are necessary. We can go beyond the 6,400 limit which they have set. We can go out and get 10,000 signatures just as easy as 5,000. It only means a little work. Another recall petition will be started if the city hall officials insist that it is necessary."

Burglar Gets $1,000 In Loot From Home While Family Is Away

A burglar stole furs and clothing worth $1,000 belonging to Mrs. H. Newton, 2852 Newport avenue, Tuesday. The thief pried open a basement window during the absence of the family and ransacked the house.

For the second time in a week the grocery store of H. Reuben, 2424 Sherman avenue, was robbed Tuesday night. The burglars entered through the transom opening over the front door and stole about $100 worth of tobacco, candy and groceries. At the previous robbery the burglars gained entrance by cutting out a section of plate glass window.

"Festival of Fun" Attracts Big Crowds at Krug Park

The "festival of fun" at Krug park opened Tuesday evening with one of the largest crowds of the season. Hundreds were in fancy costume and the clown band furnished plenty of amusement.

The nail driving contest was won by Miss Francis Gannett, 520 South Twenty-sixth avenue.

In judging the costumes Miss Norma Mach won first prize for the fanciest costume and Miss Virginia Brillhart second.

Two Comforters at About the Price of One, Next Saturday Union Outfitting Co.

Such a Saving Is Due to a Special Purchase Made Months Ago.

Comforters Are Covered With a Good Grade of Art Ticking.

Next Saturday the Union Outfitting Company places on sale thousands of warm, cozy comforters at lower prices than similar qualities could be purchased at the wholesale houses today.

Such a remarkable offer at the very beginning of cool weather is due to an enormous purchase, placed months ago with eastern mills when cotton was quoted at just about half what it is today.

The Comforters are covered with high grade art ticking that will last for years; are quilted or yarn tied and can be had in a good variety of beautiful designs.

The substantial savings further illustrate the great Purchasing Power of the Union Outfitting Company, located just out of the High Rent District. As always, you make your own terms.

BRINGING UP FATHER—

My HEART and My HUSBAND Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

Why Nervousness Gripped Madge On Her Way to School.

If the occasion of our difference had been other than it was I am afraid I should have experienced a distinct thrill of gratified feminine malice at Katie's revelation. Dicky's discomfiture when he learned that in his own phraseology I "had beaten him to" the very scheme he had outlined for not meeting him at the breakfast table had indeed something ludicrous in it, but my sombre mood held no opportunity for lightening.

For as the moment approached for my return to the Bayview school my facing of the gruesome tragedy in which my principal was involved—in which, indeed, Alice Holcombe and I might be enmeshed—my nerves began to assert themselves again. The delicious iced cantaloupe suddenly lost its flavor, and I pushed it away only half-eaten.

Katie, coming in with the cereal, was voluble in her disapproval. "Oh, Meesie Graham! You not eat dot melon, and it look so nice, too. Vot matter? Was dere a bad spot in eet?"

"No, no, Katie. It is delicious, but I do not feel like eating this morning. I don't wish any cereal either. Just bring me my coffee. Is it strong?"

"She just say I always make her," rejoined Katie, with the idiom at which in a less perplexed moment I should have hugely enjoyed. "But I no bring coffee till you eat dot mush," she went on with the solicitous tyranny Katie reserves for me sometimes. "You not can go to school and no eat your breakfast. Coom, Katie feex for you, nice."

"All Right, Katie." Her voice was the same as she would have used to Junior if he had been a year or two older. She busied herself with the cereal, preparing it as she knew I like it best, and put it before me with an appealing little glance which asked pardon for her importunity.

"All right, Katie," I smiled forgivingly at her. "I'll try to eat this, but bring my coffee at once, please, and nothing else."

"Oh-h Meesie Graham," she protested, "ven I feex you sometimes so-o nice!"

"I'm sorry, Katie, but I cannot possibly eat anything more," I said firmly. "Suppose you eat it for your own breakfast."

"I feel like throwing eet at dot cat," she muttered in fearful childish rebellion as she left the room. But when she returned her volatile nature had thrown off her disappointment and she was intent only upon the coffee, over which she fussed as if it were some life-saving medicine which she was charged to administer.

"You drink dot, every drop," she asserted, and I gladly obeyed her, for the hot, fragrant liquid always puts new vigor into my veins.

At the station. I felt the need of all its bracing influence as I left the train at Bayview. It was a much earlier train than I usually take, for Alice Holcombe and I had agreed to meet at the schoolhouse very early in the morning, so as to get out of the way the administrative work which awaited us in Mr. Stockbridge's absence, and as I stepped off at the platform I saw a large group of the commuters whom I miss with the later train.

They were excitedly talking together, and I heard the name Stockbridge two or three times, and knew they were discussing the tragedy. Then as I hurried down the platform past them, looking neither to the right nor the left, I heard a comment which annoyed me.

"There's one of 'em now," a man's voice said in a low tone. "Where?" a woman's shrill voice whispered.

"That pippin with the auburn hair?" "Her? I don't think she's anything much for looks," the man rejoined tactlessly. "I don't wonder Ken decided to bump the old girl off when he had anything like that in the school."

"Shut up," apprehensively. "You don't know that he did it," it, and you're good business—"it, and the sound of their voices left me, but I had heard quite enough. I had hard work to keep my knees from sinking with my weight as I realized that not only was Ken-

HORSESHOES AND BOX OF MATCHES WRECK THRESHER

Act of Sabotage Charged to I. W. W.—Sheriff Offers $100 Reward.

Two horseshoes and a box of matches placed in bundles of wheat on the farm of Otto Armbrust, six miles west of Omaha on the Center street road, resulted in crippling a threshing machine and starting a fire Tuesday afternoon.

An act of sabotage is attributed to the I. W. W. organization. Mr. Armbrust telephoned Sheriff Clark, who sent Deputy Sheriff Christensen to the farm.

Fed Into Thresher. He found that the wheat bundles containing one of the horseshoes and the box of matches had been fed into the threshing machine. The horseshoe knocked out 10 cylinder teeth and broke the concave in the threshing machine. A fire, started in the straw by the matches, was put out before much damage was done.

Sheriff Clark yesterday offered a reward of $100 for information which will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who placed the horseshoes and matches in the grain bundles.

Want No I. W. W. Here. "I am offering this reward out of my own pocket," said the sheriff. "This is the first instance we have had in this county of the alleged activities of the I. W. W. and I can tell them right now they are monkeying with the wrong people. We don't stand for any of this sneaking, cowardly business around this part of the country. If there's anything I hate it's a coward. And I am willing to pay $100 of my own money to get those fellows behind the bars."

The threshing outfit belongs to R. Dall, a farmer on West Pacific street.

Admiral Cowan Plans for Siege of Petrograd

Helsingfors, Finland, Sept. 3.—Admiral Cowan, commander of the British squadron in the Baltic, has arrived here in connection, it is understood, with preparation for an attack on Petrograd. The admiral intends, it is said, to confer with members of the British military mission on the plans for the attack.

Stockbridge's names being coupled with the cause of his wife's death, but that the teachers working with him were being mentioned odiously in the same connection. (Continued Tomorrow.)

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. They did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 151 F. Marcellus Avenue, Menasha, N. J., I will send you the name of the man who has cured others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the danger of an operation.—Advertisement.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Adv.

Omaha Teachers, Back From Trip to Coast, Delayed by Strike

The Misses Mima and Isabelle Doyle, public school principals, returned yesterday from California where they were victims of the railroad strike.

The sisters traveled in an automobile from San Diego to San Francisco, 700 miles, and relate amusing scenes in the hotels where motor-travelers lodged for the night.

At one of the hotels they saw men and women sleeping in chairs and seats.

The Misses Doyle were accompanied on the automobile trip by two Harvard students who were returning to their studies.

Client (after confession)—Do you think you will be able to keep me out of jail? Lawyer—I may not be able to do that, but I can make the state spend a lot of money in putting you there.—Boston Transcript.

Girl Who Disappeared Week Ago Is Found In Convent

Miss Genevieve Keefe, who disappeared from her home in Benson a week ago last Friday night, has been located in the Good Shepherd convent. She is said to have applied at the convent for admittance on the grounds that she was an orphan. When an account of her disappearance reached the convent her return to home quickly followed.

The police believe that the woman's actions indicated a temporary mental lapse.

Miss Keefe is 25 years old and lives at 6324 Pinkney street. Her father is Timothy Keefe.

Negro Makes Escape After Attacking Woman In Home

Mrs. H. Hannery, 1816 I street, reported to the police that a negro entered the kitchen of her home Tuesday and attacked her. Her screams attracted neighbors and the negro fled.

Relief Committee Here Gets Report On Sufferers Abroad

What Paris women do from choice, men, women and children of Poland do from necessity, according to Frank W. America, American Red Cross representative in Warsaw. Mr. America, whose report has just been received by the Nebraska committee for the relief of Jewish war sufferers, refers to the lack of stockings. But Poland extends the custom to shoes.

"In a whole day's travel," writes Mr. America, "we did not see a cow, nor did we pass a horse or a dog. The peasant refugees who did have a cart full of meager household goods hauled it themselves. Then we noticed that they were carrying their boots under their arms. They were saving them for the cold days when there was snow and slush under foot. Many had none at all."

Food and clothing for these unfortunate are to be purchased with funds contributed by Nebraskans during the week of September 15-22, when the committee for the relief of Jewish war sufferers expects to raise $400,000 as part of a national fund.
