

MAN SAYS HE WAS ASSAULTED BY POLICE OFFICER

Burlington Employee Declares He Will Prosecute Policeman Who Beat Him Without Reason.

F. J. Winger, 1113 Blaine street, an employe of the Burlington railroad for 20 years at Gibson, was badly beaten up by Police Officer Frank Zurek at Twenty-sixth and N streets Friday night. The policeman declared in police court yesterday that Mr. Winger was resisting arrest.

Mr. Winger denied that he was resisting arrest and declared the assault was unprovoked and without excuse.

Says Swore at Him.

"I came to town to have my watch adjusted in a jewelry store at Twenty-fourth and N streets," he said. "Finding the store closed, I went to take my car. I was standing at Twenty-sixth and N streets waiting for the car when the officer came past. He said, 'Who in the hell are you?' I asked him how he would like me to address him in such a manner. Then he struck me with his fist, grabbed me, dragged me into a restaurant and called the police."

Witnesses say the officer struck Mr. Winger several times with his fist and club while they were in the restaurant.

Fined $5 and Costs.

Mr. Winger, accompanied by his wife and daughter, was in police court and was fined $5 and costs this morning on the charge of resisting an officer.

"I shall swear out a warrant for the officer who assaulted me," declared Mr. Winger. "I am making $16 a day now and can't afford to go to jail. So I will pay the fine but I will have justice for the assault that was committed on me."

Officer Zurek's Statement.

"I asked Winger whether he lived in Omaha, thinking I would direct him to some rooming house as I do several people every night," stated Officer Zurek. "He used profane language, asking what business of mine it was. I threatened to arrest him and he tried to break away. I showed him, but did not strike him."

Renovals, who witnessed the arrest, said that Zurek hit Winger with his club. He declared about 20 people witnessed the incident. Winger returned to the South Side Saturday night to get names of other witnesses.

German Hint at Big Surprise in Aeronautics

Berlin, Sept. 6.—A note of ironic bitterness marks German press comment on the achievements of the British dirigible R-34 in making the transatlantic round trip. Every German newspaper emphasizes proudly that the R-34 was built on the basis of secrets of German airship construction "culled" by the British from Zeppelins brought down during the war. Some call the big dirigible a "true copy" of the German aerial cruisers of the "U" type.

While generally giving the British due credit for the feat, all the German commentators attach to their left-handed compliments a few sarcastic remarks, and all point out that the record for long-distance flights still belongs to the Germans, the "L-59" having made the round trip from Bulgaria to Africa in 1917. It covered 4,223 miles in 95 hours, at an average speed of 43 miles an hour.

Much emphasis also is placed on the distress in which the R-34 found herself on her voyage to America. German experts pointing with glee to her many S. O. S. calls for help from the American Navy department.

The L-59 after its record trip had fuel left for two and a half days, it is pointed out, while the R-34's supply was exhausted when it reached its destination in America.

Some of the German commentators make mysterious hints at German aerial surprises immediately after the formal conclusion of peace. Of this the Frankfurter Zeitung says:

"The English are mistaken if they believe they have built the largest aerial liner. They are due to experience some surprises as soon as we can live and fly again."

"It was the fear of German competition that inspired the British to accomplish a record-making feat as long as we were still cut off from the world, unable to show what we ourselves can do."

"It is interesting to watch the British go through the infantile sicknesses of aeronautics that we passed through years ago."

"We cannot but smile at the statement of the American commander. Read the first to cross the ocean, that he saw the time when flyers would attain a height of 10,000 feet and make the round trip across the ocean in one day. There is a limit to the physical resources of man that cannot be overcome even by the steady progress of technique."
