REGAINS VOICE BY CHOKING ON SLIVER.

Sioux City, Sept. 10.—Swallowing a small piece of toothpick was a blessing in disguise for Donald Cullings of Sioux City. The toothpick lodged in Cullings' throat while he was at dinner Tuesday night. He coughed violently, choked and nearly strangled before the bit of wood was dislodged from his throat. But with its removal Cullings' voice, lost after a gas attack during the St. Michael drive, had returned. Cullings was gassed at St. Michael September 12, 1918. Since that time he had been forced to speak only in a husky whisper.

The cardinal said he had seen the Woolworth building the tower of the Woolworth building the cardinal was greatly disappointed. WOMEN CONSUME MORE CIGARETTES.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Fewer cigars and less chewing and smoking tobacco were used in the fiscal year 1919 than in any of the last seven years, internal revenue statistics just issued by the treasury department show. Cigarettes, however, show a remarkable increase in consumption on which taxes have been paid being more than two and one half times larger than in 1913. One reason conjectured for the increased consumption of cigarettes is the increase of smoking among women. The official report, however, does not touch upon that.

MRS. WILSON POPULAR WITH CROWDS ENROUTE.

On Board President Wilson's Special Train, Sept. 10.—A crowd and band met the presidential train at Dickinson and there were again insistent calls for Mrs. Wilson. 131-YEAR-OLD MAN HAS AIRPLANE RIDE.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 10.—"It sure makes a fellow feel like he is drunk, but it's all right at that." That was the cryptic, eloquent expression that fell from the lips of "Uncle John" Schell, 131 years old, the oldest man in the world, as he stepped upon the state fair grounds again following a 15 minutes' airplane flight at the state fair here. The flight lasted about 15 minutes, and "Uncle John" traveled several miles at a height of about 400 feet. He was delighted with the experience and expressed himself as grateful that he had lived long enough to enjoy it. The aged man was helped into the machine by his pilot, M. E. Headley. As the plane skimmed along, getting into the air, Schell smiled and waved his hand at the crowd, which cheered him wildly. After the journey the old man tottered a bit, but soon regained his equilibrium and composure. Thus it was that a new and perhaps crowning experience of his life was crowded into the life of the oldest man in the world. He has seen and enjoyed many unusual and novel experiences since he was "discovered" and emerged from the Kentucky mountains two weeks ago. He has only regret, recently, has been that his 5-year-old great-great-grandson, whom he left in the mountains, has not been with him.
